ZERO WAVE ENGULFS CITY

HOOVER WARNED OF SENATE FOES TO MELLON, WEST

Will Be Opposed for Cabinet, Nye Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Opposition to the expected reappointment of Andrew Mellon as secretary of the treasury by Herbert Hoover was expressed today by Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], one of the radical Republican group in the senate, during a thirty minute conference with the President Elect.

The North Dakota senator informed Mr. Hoover that a fight over the confirmation of Mr. Mellon was certain to develop if he was selected for continued service in the cabinet after March 4.

Following his conference, Mr. Nye declined to go into details, but it is understood he called the attention of Mr. Hoover to the fact that several other members of the radical group oppose Mr. Mellon's continuation as treasury secretary.

Roy West's Name Comes Up.

The name of Roy O. West of Chicago, who was appointed secretary of the interior last summer by President Coolidge, was another cabinet member who figured in the discussions held by Mr. Hoover with senatorial callers today. Both Senator Nye and Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.] admitted that West's name had been brought up during their calls on the President Elect and both declined to make public what had been said.

Senator Nye and several other members of the radical group are fighting confirmation of the West appointment in the senate on the ground of his reputed financial relations with Samuel Insull, Chicago utility magnate, and it was indicated that West's reappointment was opposed by the North Dakota senator. It is known that Mr. Nye would like to see a man appointed from out of the land grant states in the west.

Talk of Strawn and Rosenwald.

On leaving the Hoover offices, Senator Deneen declined to say whether he had urged the reappointment of Mr. West. He stated, however, that the names of cabinet possibilities from Chicago had been mentioned during the course of his interview with the President Elect. Silas Strawn, who has been mentioned for attorney general, and Julius Rosenwald, mentioned as a possible selection for the commerce post, are the Chicago names heard most often at Hoover headquarters, and it is assumed these are the ones Mr. Deneen had in mind.

A long list of visitors filed through the Hoover headquarters today, and the President Elect was busy from early morning until late at night. Among distinguished callers were Elihu Root, former secretary of state, a breakfast guest with whom Mr. Hoover discussed cabinet potentialities, and Chief Justice William Howard Taft. About fifteen members of congress called. George Akerson, Mr. Hoover's private secretary, estimated that one-third of the members of the senate had already called on the President Elect.

Farm Relief Popular Topic.

Aside from cabinet matters, farm relief led the list of subjects taken up with Mr. Hoover. Senator Nye stated positively, following his call, that Mr. Hoover intends to call a special farm relief session in the spring if the present session fails to enact constructive farm relief. He was of the opinion that farm legislation will not be passed this session. In his opinion, the farm cooperatives, large and small, will be well pleased with the Hoover plan of farm relief.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis discussed the question of the stabilization of labor with Mr. Hoover, a subject in which the President Elect showed much interest. According to Secretary Davis, Mr. Hoover is anxious to assure continued employment for every man during his administration, and will do his best to reach that ideal.

Foresee Hard Working Cabinet.

"Cabinet members selected for his official family by Mr. Hoover will have to work and work hard all the time," said Mr. Davis. "He is the hardest kind of a worker himself, and he will see that his cabinet is kept busy. I think he is in excellent health, considering the way he is working."

Tomorrow's callers at Hoover headquarters will include Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], Senator Chas. L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], Ogden Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, and officials from leading farm organizations.

HOUSE VOTES TO REAPPORTION; A BLOW FOR DRYS

Effective in 1932; Senate O. K. Sure.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—By an overwhelming viva voce vote the house today passed the bill providing for the reapportionment of the 435 members of that body on the basis of the 1930 census. The first house to be reapportioned will be that of the 72d congress, the members of which will be elected in 1932.

The bill provides for automatic reapportionment of 435 representatives by the secretary of commerce every ten years in the event that congress, at the first session following each census, fails to enact a reapportionment bill. The house adopted automatic reapportionment as a means of circumventing such nullification of the constitution as has resulted from the failure to reapportion on the basis of the 1920 census.

Responsible for this failure are the rural dry constituencies, which would lose an estimated 50 members under reapportionment to the wet cities, and states whose representation would be reduced.

Sure to Pass in Senate.

The bill now goes to the senate, where the drys were successful in shelving the last reapportionment bill, passed by the house in 1921. This time, however, the prohibitionists who would continue to nullify the apportionment provision of the constitution are up against the superior power of political pelf.

Reapportionment advocates in the senate have vowed that the bill for taking the 1930 census, carrying $40,000,000 worth of political patronage, shall not pass until after the reapportionment bill is brought to a vote. Such is the appetite for that patronage that the reapportionment bill has been assured expeditious disposition in the senate.

There was no record vote in the house on the bill for the reason that the opposition was completely routed on a previous test vote, on a motion to substitute a bill eliminating the delegation of the apportionment function to the secretary of commerce and providing merely for reapportionment by the next congress.

Beaten 226 to 134.

This substitute, which was proposed by Representative L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] on behalf of Iowa, Indiana, and other states which will lose members, was beaten by a roll call vote of 134 ayes to 226 noes. The lineup of midwestern members on the Dickinson substitute follows:

Attack on South Beaten.

Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] offered an amendment providing for the reduction of representatives of those states which have deprived citizens of the right to vote. This was a move to carry out the second section of the 14th amendment, which has been nullified by the southern states in the disfranchisement of the Negro.

It is estimated that if this provision were observed the southern states would be deprived of 33 congressmen. Its nullification is condoned by the same southern drys and affiliated northern drys who nullified the apportionment provision of the constitution, but who advocate life imprisonment and other condign punishment of nullifiers of the 18th amendment.

Mr. Tinkham did not get a chance, however, to make an argument for his amendment. It was ruled out of order as not germaine to the bill by Representative Carl R. Chindblom [Rep., Ill.], who was presiding over the committee of the whole.

Bomb Cigar Store in Loop; Rouse Hotels

A dynamite bomb, exploded early this morning in the doorway of Sammy Wolff's cigar store at 219 North Clark street, blew out the glass fronts of the shop and the Martin hotel next door and aroused guests in other loop hotels. Windows in the Rome hotel across the street and in several other nearby buildings were broken. The damage was estimated at $5,000.

At the Martin many of the residents, believing fire had attacked the building, rushed to the lobby in their night clothing. Guests of the Sherman and La Salle hotels also were awakened by the explosion.

C. J. Winston, colored, an elevator operator at the Martin, said three men drove up to the cigar store shortly before the blast. One jumped out of the automobile and tossed a package in the doorway, Winston said. As he rejoined his companions the bomb burst and the car speeded away.

Wolff, who is well known in boxing circles as a promoter of special trains to important bouts, is in New York, where he went to attend the funeral of "Tex" Rickard. Police were unable to obtain a clew to the bombers' motive, but said they discovered evidence that a race betting office had been operated at the rear of the cigar store.

DISARM DEPUTY MARSHAL; SHOOT HIS PRISONER

Five Cicero gangsters last night seized Deputy United States Marshal Adolph Thorpe, disarmed him and kidnaped and shot his prisoner, Thomas V. Novotny, whose trial comes up in Federal court next Monday on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. Thorpe had taken Novotny to Cicero yesterday under an order of Federal Judge Walter Lindley to obtain papers and documents he said he needed for his trial. After visiting the Novotny home, 2116 Euclid avenue, Cicero, and several other places, Novotny said he wanted to obtain some papers in Kolar's soft drink parlor, 6003 West Roosevelt road.

As Thorpe and his prisoner entered the place, five men seized the deputy and took his gun and star from him. Then they rushed Novotny away. According to Novotny's story he was taken to Ogden avenue, three blocks from Kolar's, and shot in the arm. He yelled so much, he said, his captors believed he was about to die, and left him. Meanwhile Thorpe was informed where he could find Novotny. He went to the place and took Novotny to the County hospital, where he was still guarding his prisoner early this morning. Novotny's wound is not serious.

Novotny last fall was promoter of the "Cook County Republican Guards" and was arrested on a charge of swindling saloonkeepers out of $50,000 for "protection" by fraudulent use of the names of United States Senator Charles S. Deneen and United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson. He declared he did not know any of his kidnapers.

SMALL TO TRIM SENTENCES OF 16 STATE CONVICTS

Hinton G. Clabaugh, retiring chairman of the state board of pardons and paroles, returned last night from a conference with Gov. Small at Springfield, and announced that from a list of 300 requests for commutation of sentence, only sixteen will be recommended. Ten men serving long terms for murder and six for robbery make up the list, of which only one, a murderer, will be recommended for immediate release.

During the session with the governor, Mr. Clabaugh said, each of the petitions was considered, but no outright pardons were decided upon, although the commuted sentence of the one murderer amounts to practically the same thing. No names will be announced until this morning, when the list will be presented to the secretary of state for his signature.

The other murder commutations were as follows: Two life sentences reduced to 42 years, one 50 year sentence reduced to 35 years, two life sentences reduced to 25 years, one life sentence reduced to 45 years, one 45 year sentence reduced to 35 years, and two 40 year sentences reduced to 25 and 30 years, respectively.

The police squad seized gambling paraphernalia and arrested 56 patrons, some of whom were women. Earlier in the day the same place was raided by the Cicero police and nine men were seized. The highway police broke down the doors to gain entrance to the place.

Raw cow's milk, which Huston drank in Alliance, O., some time ago, is believed to have caused the fever.

200 LOTHARIOS DECEIVED; RIOT WRECKS CONCERT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—Berlin's most famous concert hall, the Philharmonic, tonight was the scene of an amazing riot. A man arose from his front row seat during the concert and shouted:

"I have been the victim of a publicity gag. I have come here in reply to a letter I got after I replied to a newspaper advertisement stating that a beautiful young blonde with an independent income desired to make the acquaintance of a gentleman, with a view to marriage. The letter invited me to be present here in the first few rows at this concert, when I would be able to spot the lady by the fact that she was holding a bouquet of white roses. No lady is holding white roses here."

With these words about 200 men, all seated in the front rows, rose up and said they had been similarly deceived and demanded their money back. The rest of the audience, after loud outbursts of laughter, protested violently, and the two factions soon came to blows. They were separated by police who made a baton charge. The indignant deceived would-be lovers then rose and left the hall disgustedly, all 200 of them.

Woman Loses Propeller on Plane, but Lands Safely

Curtiss Field, Long Island, N. Y., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—When Mrs. Neva Paris, a student flyer at the Curtiss Flying school, lost her propeller while in full flight today she demonstrated woman's ability to meet an emergency by making a perfect volplane landing in a rough field north of Garden City. Neither Mrs. Paris nor her plane was injured, and a new propeller will put the machine back in service.

Police Shelter 350 in Stations; One Man Dies

With the thermometer dropping towards a predicted new low record for the winter of 5 below zero, Chicago shivered in the grip of a cold wave last night. At 3 a. m. an unofficial thermometer registered 2 degrees above zero. One death in the Chicago area was attributed to the cold and hundreds of homeless casuals sought shelter at police stations.

Some relief from the frigid blast was predicted for this afternoon, but the temperature was expected to descend again tomorrow. During the day snow flurries fell in many parts of the city and in the suburbs.

Truck Farmer Found Dead.

The death attributed to the cold was that of Leon Karcher, 71 years old, a truck farmer, who lived on a small tract of land a mile north of Wheeling. He was found dead in bed by neighbors. The fire in the stove was out. Karcher, who lived alone, apparently had been too ill to summon aid.

Police stations all over the city reported numerous requests for assistance from needy families. By 10 o'clock 350 homeless men had been given places to spend the night. On the south side, 40 men were given shelter by the South Chicago police, and 22 were cared for by the Stockyards station. Similar conditions existed on the west, northwest, and north sides.

Blizzard Rages in Wisconsin.

The cold wave had enveloped the middle west last night as a blizzard raged in Wisconsin and upper Michigan. The heavy snowfall blocked highways and hampered traffic in many sections of these states. In Wisconsin trains on several railroads were running behind schedule.

Superior, Wis., experienced 10 below zero weather with a further drop expected. At La Crosse only two highways were reported passable, owing to the heavy fall of snow. The lowest temperature reported in the area was 31 degrees below at Thief River Falls in northern Minnesota.

At Devils Lake, N. D., the thermometer fell to 26 below, the lowest in the state. Iowa, particularly the western portion, and Nebraska likewise experienced intense cold. At Boone, Ia., the temperature fell to 2 below, and Sioux City reported a minimum of 3 below.

JUDGES DECIDE TO PUT WAIVERS UP TO SWANSON

Responsibility for felony waivers in the future will rest on the shoulder of the state's attorney, John A. Swanson, it was decided in a meeting held yesterday by the Criminal court judges. The judges passed a resolution to the effect that henceforth all motions for a waiver of the felony must come from the prosecutor and that he be compelled to make the motion in writing.

In the past felony waivers have been recommended by the judges in some cases where the evidence indicated a petty case or that a bargain could be made with a defendant for a minor sentence in exchange for a plea of guilty.

The felony waiver practice which practically has now been discontinued caused the trial of three judges by a group of their associates last spring. At that time Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime commission, made charges against Judges Otto Kerner, Emanuel Eller and Stanley Klarkowski to the effect that they were too lenient toward criminals.

7 DIE IN CRASH OF ARMY PLANE; 1 A CHICAGOAN

Only Other Occupant Badly Injured.

Royalton, Ill., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Seven men met death today when a C-2 Fokker transport airplane nosedived to the earth shortly after taking off for Bolling field, Washington, at the Middletown air depot. Only one of the occupants of the plane, Sergt. Patrick Conroy of Somerville, Mass., escaped with his life, and tonight is in a critical condition. Those who were killed were:

Lieut. Henry R. Angell, Birmingham, Ala.

Master Sergeant Joseph B. McCarthy, Washington, D. C.

Staff Sergeant Henry Cronan, Takoma Park, Md.

Staff Sergeant Rudolph J. Lehutta, Washington, D. C.

Private Clarence E. Birch of 2813 West Adams street, Chicago.

Private Mike D. Kelly, Minersville, Pa.

Private Samuel P. Jones, Bell Buckle, Tenn.

Five of the men died almost instantly. Lieut. Angell, Kelley and Conway were brought to Harrisburg hospitals, where Angell and Kelley died an hour later. Conway, in the Polyclinic hospital here, was not expected to recover.

On Experimental Trip.

The Middletown airport is an intermediate depot of the United States army and flights from Bolling field and other army fields in the eastern part of the country are daily occurrences. Plane supplies are kept here and many calls are made for spare parts. Today's trip was made partially for experimental purposes and to give the enlisted men air experience.

The great tri-motored Fokker was of the same type as the Question Mark and the plane used by Commander Richard E. Byrd. It had three Wright whirlwind motors of 225 horse power each.

Lieut. Angell left Washington this morning, there being ten occupants of the machine on the way to Middletown. After the plane had been inspected and tuned up, Angell and seven enlisted men took off for the return trip. The crash occurred a few minutes later.

Lands in Back Yard.

The accident happened while the plane was flying low over Royalton, and the great airplane came down in the center of town, landing in the back yard of the residence of William Holland, near the postoffice. The borough is a town of 1,200 population.

One Royalton resident who saw the transport leaving the flying field said it had not risen more than 60 feet in the air by the time Royalton was reached. It then seemed to quiver for a few seconds and turned its nose to the ground, turning over as it fell.

The plane slid in between two frame buildings, topped a tree and crashed. There was no explosion and the gasoline did not catch fire. The first persons to reach the scene were unable to render any assistance to the aviators. Axes had to be secured to chop away the débris from the dead and the victims and it was impossible to tell at first which were still alive.

At the air depot it was said tonight that the plane was thoroughly inspected before the takeoff and found to be in good condition. None of the officers would hazard a guess as to the cause of the disaster.

VICTIM'S MOTHER ILL.

Private Clarence Earl Birch, the 22 year old Chicago victim of the Middletown, Pa., airplane crash, was the son of Mrs. Robert Barfield, 2833 West Monroe street. Yesterday his stepfather, Robert Barfield, said a heart ailment had confined the boy's mother to a private hospital here for the last year. She had not been notified of her son's death.

Barfield said the boy had enlisted here about three years ago with an uncle, Sidney Allen, who is now an instructor at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill. The stepfather said he had made an effort to have Birch come home when his mother became ill, but the youth wished to complete his enlistment. Birch's parents were divorced several years ago. His father, sister, and brother are now living in Oregon.

ARMY ORDERS INQUIRY.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—The war department late today ordered an investigation of the crash of an army transport airplane near Middletown, Pa., which cost the lives

Passenger Is Killed.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—C. H. Doson of Greenville, N. C., was killed and his body burned beyond recognition in an airplane crash late today at Poindexter field here. The young man was a passenger in the plane, which was piloted by his brother-in-law, Burt Ormond, also of Greenville, who escaped with minor injuries.

Two Army Flyers Injured.

Rantoul, Ill., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Two army flyers, Second Lieutenant Herman H. Woolard and Corporal Herbert G. Spees, are in a hospital here with injuries received when their plane crashed yesterday after striking high tension wires while making a landing at Chanute field.

Dirigible Tied Up by Weather.

Port St. Joe, Fla., Jan. 11.—(AP)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles was weather bound tonight. Moored to the mast of the tender Patoka here, it may be forced by unsettled conditions to abandon the intended cruise to Miami, Fla., and instead return to the hangar in Lakehurst, N. J.

Forecasts for tomorrow and the next few days are unfavorable for continuation of the Florida cruise. Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl said that if weather permitted he may leave tomorrow about noon for the return trip to Lakehurst.

The weather did not improve here today and Commander Rosendahl said that if the wind velocity increased he would cut loose from the Patoka's mast and drift about the vicinity until the wind subsided.

BRIDE, 21, INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT, DIES

Mrs. Catherine Ross, 21 years old, died yesterday of injuries received in an automobile wreck on Christmas eve. She was returning with her husband, Richard Ross, 1534 Vincennes avenue, Chicago Heights, from a honeymoon in California, when their car skidded into a ditch near Grant Park, Ill. Police were unable to locate Ross to notify him of the death, but at his home they found a note, saying that he was unable to face "the tragic future" and had decided "to go away."

One death in Cook county last night raised the 1929 motor toll to 22. The victim:

Louis Mackiewicz, 36 years old, 5419 West 30th street, Cicero. Died at St. Anthony's hospital from a skull fracture sustained when his automobile crashed headon into a street car at 26th street and Western avenue. The motorman, William Killens, 3042 South Tripp street was not held.

J. A. Friend, 40 years old, 2208 Sherman avenue, Evanston, a carpet manufacturer, was taken to St. Luke's hospital suffering from cuts and bruises about the head sustained when a taxicab in which he and his wife were riding was struck by another machine on the outer drive at 8th street. Mrs. Friend escaped uninjured. Herman Glover, 27 years old, colored, 5315 Michigan avenue, driver of the other car was held by the police.

BROTHER HEIR IN MISS DUNCAN'S PENCILED WILL

New York, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A will written in pencil on cheap note paper as she was about to take off on an airplane honeymoon with Sergt. Yessenin, her Russian husband, in 1922, leaves all the property of Isadora Duncan, noted dancer, who died in an automobile accident at Nice, France, in 1927, to her brother, Augustin Duncan, actor and director.

The document was filed today by her adopted daughter, Irma Duncan, also a dancer.

The dancer's attorney said her property consisted of two houses in France and the royalties of her autobiography.

Irma Duncan said Isadora, when asked to make the will, demurred, saying she would never die, but then laughed and wrote out the will.

DAILY SHOWUPS TO TEACH COPS HOW THUGS LOOK

In order to acquaint plain clothes men with the faces and peculiarities of habitual criminals in Chicago, three showups a day will be held at the detective bureau, starting Monday, to be attended by a representative from each bureau squad in the city, according to an announcement by Deputy Commissioner John Stege last night.

The deputy commissioner also declared that in the police budget just completed provision had been made for the purchase of four large patrol wagons to be used exclusively for the transportation of prisoners between the bureau and outlying police stations.

STEWART BEGINS OIL PROXY FIGHT AMONG EMPLOYES

Asks 16,000 Stockholders to Support Him.

Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the $750,000,000 Standard Oil company of Indiana, yesterday launched in Chicago his fight to hold his post against the demands for his duster made by John D. Rockefeller Jr.

More than 16,000 employés of the company who are stockholders received during the day a request from Col. Stewart that they fill in proxies to be voted at the annual meeting, March 7, for his reëlection to executive leadership in the company.

The battle of the proxies, precious slips of paper which are being made the objects of as bitter a financial conflict as has intrigued the American business world in many years, and which will decide the future control of the company, became centered in this city.

Letter from Rockefeller.

At the same time that the employés received the Stewart request they and all of the other thousands of midwestern stockholders of Standard of Indiana found in their mail the letter from Mr. Rockefeller urging them to deposit their proxies with his committee for the removal of Stewart from the board of directors, and from the company.

The fact that Col. Stewart's proxy letters were received at the same time that the bid of Rockefeller came in was taken to indicate that they had been previously prepared, and that Col. Stewart had directed they be dispatched immediately after he received word of the Rockefeller maneuvers.

Of the 30,000 employés of the company, more than half have availed themselves of the privilege of purchasing stock, and these employés have bought more than 400,000 shares of the 9,000,000 outstanding.

Stewart Due Here Today.

Col. Stewart, who was in New York when Mr. Rockefeller's letter attacking his leadership in the Indiana corporation became public, declined to comment there. He left yesterday on the Twentieth Century, and is due to arrive at his office here this morning.

In his absence his plans for the battle with the Rockefellers—long regarded as the unchallenged leaders in the oil world—were discussed by Col. Stewart's associates.

The Chicagoan's biggest block of support, it is conceded, lies with the employés of the company. Consequently, he has set himself to deliver their support to him in toto, and in a recent tour of the company's plants, Col. Stewart reviewed the progress and great prosperity of the company, and urged them to support the present administration under his leadership.

Told Jobs Are in Danger.

Reports last night were that employés who refused to sign the proxies sent out by the Stewart committee were informed by their department managers that their jobs were in jeopardy if they persisted in that refusal. The Stewart proxies, according to the letters sent out, were to be sent to a committee composed of Col. Stewart himself, Edward G. Seubert, president of the company, and Felix T. Graham, the company's secretary.

This was taken to indicate that Mr. Seubert, who heretofore has maintained a neutrality in the Rockefeller-Stewart dispute, was now supporting Col. Stewart. Mr. Rockefeller's letter stated that he objected only to Stewart's presence on the board, and that he had full confidence in Mr. Seubert and the other members of the board.

Stewart's connection with the Continental Limited company deal, in which Harry F. Sinclair, Stewart, and other American oil men participated, and which was investigated by the Teapot Dome committee of the United States senate, was cited by Rockefeller as the reason for his lack of confidence in the Stewart leadership.

Will Review Prosperity.

In addition to the formation of the proxy committee, Col. Stewart is said to have planned a careful campaign for proxies to defeat the Rockefeller purposes. It is expected that within a few days the Standard Oil company will send out to the financial world, and to the stockholders, of course, a statement reviewing the great prosperity achieved by the company in the last year under Col. Stewart's direction.

Another move contemplated by the Stewart forces is the declaring of a substantial stock dividend by the board of directors, and this action, it is conceded, will be a strong factor in the gathering of proxies by the Stewart committee.

Col. Stewart, his friends say, is ready to wage the battle of his life, and to use all the resources at his command to retain his post. At the same time the great influence of the Rockefeller millions, an influence felt over the country, is being brought strongly to bear to accomplish Stewart's downfall.

Give Jurors' Statement.

Newspaper reports which intimated that Col. Stewart's acquittal of perjury by a District of Columbia jury had been brought about by a legal technicality yesterday prompted Stewart's Washington lawyers to make public a joint statement from the jurors who considered the perjury charges.

Frank J. Hogan and Jesse C. Adkins, Washington lawyers for Stewart, declared that after their client had been acquitted last Nov. 20, they had interviewed every member of the jury and secured the signature of each member to a statement which absolved Col. Stewart entirely of the perjury charge.

Justice Jennings Bailey had instructed the jury that if it was satisfied that a quorum of the senate committee before which Col. Stewart was alleged to have given the perjured testimony was not present during his entire testimony it should seek no farther, but find him not guilty.

Text of Statement.

The joint statement of the jurors, as made public in Washington yesterday, states:

"Our attention has been called to press reports in which it is stated that our verdict was based upon a technicality. This is not the fact. We considered the charges on their merits and acquitted the defendant thereof. It was our intention that our verdict should stand as a vindication of Col. Stewart. Our verdict was not based on the lack of a quorum in the senate committee. It was based on our belief, after hearing all the evidence, that Col. Stewart had not testified falsely as accused."

HELD AS RECEIVER OF STOLEN BONDS.

Nels Nelson, 49 years old, 2323 West Monroe street, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Peter H. Schwaba on a charge of receiving stolen property. Bonds valued at $13,000, stolen from the Auburndale State bank at Auburndale, Wis., were found in Nelson's possession, the police said.

Einstein Explains His New and 'Most Valuable' Theory

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—Prof. Albert Einstein today gave the New York Times the following statement explaining his new "book," consisting of five pages, upon which he has labored for the last ten years and which will be published next week.

"A few days ago I submitted to the Academy of Science a work that treats with a novel development of the theory of relativity," he said. "The purpose of this work is to unite the laws of the field of gravitation and electro-magnetism under a uniform viewpoint."

The length of this work, written at the rate of a half page a year, is considered prodigious when it is remembered that the original presentation of his theory of relativity filled but three pages. It is, naturally, awaited with extreme interest throughout the entire scientific world. The title is "A New Field of Theory."

Prof. Einstein himself considers it by far his most important contribution to mankind—scientifically more important than the original theory. Its five pages contain the quintessence of a new theory in which the great physicist tries to create a bridge between classic mechanics and modern electro-dynamics. This, as explained by members of the Prussian academy, is an attempt to bring the human conception of power, which has become "anaemic," into a mathematically understandable "tangible" form.

CONVICT YOUTH OF EMBEZZLING FROM FIANCEE

Took $2,500 and Fled, Jury Is Told.

William J. Gartside, a young real estate salesman, sat on one side of the counsel's table in Judge George Fred Rush's courtroom yesterday and on the other side sat his former fiancée, Miss Martha Schwarm, 3628 Parnell avenue. She was prosecuting him on a charge of embezzlement. Assistant State's Attorney Abe Johnson called the girl to the stand as the first witness.

"Two years ago," she told the jury, "Mr. Gartside and I were engaged. We looked upon matrimony seriously and plannod to buy a home before the wedding.

"He was in the real estate business so he was able to pick out a bargain, a house at 5528 Sawyer avenue. He told me he didn't have enough money at the time to make the purchase, but that it was too good a bargain to pass up.

Leaves Without Word.

"So I loaned him my savings, $2,500. The next day he didn't telephone me as he had been doing. Another day passed and I began to worry about him. I called at the place where he was living and was told that he had left without leaving any forwarding address."

Gartside took the witness stand and told his side of the story. Yes, he was engaged to Miss Schwarm. Yes, he had borrowed $2,500 and he had really intended the loan for the purchase of a home for both of them. But on the day she gave him the money, Gartside received a letter from his mother, he said, saying she was near death in St. Paul, Minn. He spent most of the money for doctors for his mother.

Jury Finds Him Guilty.

The jury listened to his story, but they didn't believe him. Prosecutor Johnson argued that an honorable man would have given his betrothed as much consideration as his mother. The assistant state's attorney emphasized Gartside's failure to notify Miss Schwarm of his departure for St. Paul.

The verdict was guilty. The charge carries a penalty of from one to ten years in the penitentiary.

AMBITIONS END CITY HALL IDYL OF FRIENDSHIP

Explain Why Barasa Lost $100 a Day Job.

This is a story about the troubles of four lawyers—Sam, Harry, Homer, and Barney. Once, it is said, they were political brothers, and, like Dumas' musketeers, were one for all, but, unhappily, not all for one.

Officially the four lawyers are known as Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson; Harry A. Biossat, formerly Mayor Thompson's personal attorney; Homer Galpin, chairman of the Republican county committee, and former Judge Bernard P. Barasa. The story of their adventures and parting was pieced together by political wiseacres at the city hall yesterday following Mr. Barasa's removel from his $100 a day job on Mr. Ettelson's pay roll.

The Victors and the Spoils.

Back in the first part of 1927, when the "America First" forces marched into the hall, each of the four lawyers was prominent in the procession. Each, vigorous against King George V., had helped in the campaign and each expected as a reward a good job. Naturally, the one lawyer's job most acceptable was that of corporation counsel.

Mr. Ettelson, veteran of the mayor's previous terms, drew the prize but in order to hurt nobody's feelings Mr. Thompson asked him to put Harry and Barney on his pay roll, Homer being fairly occupied at the time with party affairs, though since extremely busy in the Eagle river region far from the madding crowd. Mr. Biossat became a $75 a day expert and Mr. Barassa a $100 a day expert.

All went well for a time until somebody brought word to the corporation counsel that the other boys looked with ambitious eyes at his office. Soon afterward came the grand jury pay roll investigations. So Sam, the wiseacres say, decided to clean house.

First, some six months ago, Harry was bounced out of his $75 a day job. He vanished rapidly into obscurity after a brief career in the limelight of fame. At about the same time Homer retreated to the Wisconsin woods. And two days ago Barney announced that he was off the pay roll.

Why Barney Is Out.

The dismissal of Barasa, according to the corporation counsel, was necessary because of cuts in his pay roll appropriations. Others said it was because the ex-judge employed C. M. Doty, former assistant corporation counsel under Dever, at $50 a day to aid him in the North Shore case litigation. But the story of the gossips was that Barney went the way of Harry because he aspired to fill Sam's shoes.

A somewhat sulphurous session between Mr. Barasa, Mr. Ettelson, and Mayor Thompson ensued in the latter's office, it was learned, whereat the ex-judge explained his views on the corporation counsel's conduct and Ettelson did the same concerning Barasa. Both appealed to the mayor but Sam apparently was victorious and Barney made his exit.

And so the story of the four lawyers came to the last chapter. Whether there is to be a sequel, the boys in the lobbies said, will probably be shown in the next political campaign.

SLAYER'S LOST FINGER SAVES INNOCENT MAN

Had it not been for the way Lieut. William Lang and Sergt. Harold Tierney of the Summerdale station cleared up a murder mystery from a slender clew, the wrong man might have been punished while the actual murderer escaped.

On Jan. 4 Bernard J. Kurtz, 36 years old, a world war veteran, was found slain in a rooming house at 4845 Winthrop avenue. Beside the body was a handbag in which the police found two tickets for a bus trip from Rockford, Ill., to Pittsburgh, Pa.

Victim's Companion Confesses.

Two days later James Gahagan, 49 years old, walked into the Des Plaines street station and said he had been with Kurtz. They had been drunk, he said, and he believed he might have killed Kurtz.

All of which might have been considered to clear up the murder, but Lieut. Lang and Sergt. Tiernan were not satisfied. They went to the bus station. They quizzed everybody and found a red cap who remembered two men getting into a Checker taxi.

That caused Gahagan's hazy brain to remember the taxi driver had taken him and Kurtz to a North Clark street saloon. After a search he found the saloon, that of John Connors at 509. Connors remembered that the taxi driver who brought the two had lost the index finger of his right hand, and the search continued.

Real Slayer Surrenders.

A taxi driver for the same company was picked up on suspicion, but he was released when he showed he had not lost a finger. That driver was telling his starter about the lost finger clew, and the starter said:

"A finger off? Why, that's Joseph Michaelson, and he's down in the detective bureau right now as a burglary suspect."

The first driver called up Lieut. Lang and Sergt. Tierney. They went to the bureau and found the man with the finger off. An hour later Michaelson, who lives at 1950 South Avers avenue, had confessed he took Kurtz to the rooming house, where he tried to hold the veteran up, and that he shot him to death when he resisted.

TRAIL WOMAN WHO MUTILATED EVANSTON BIBLES

Evanston police last night were close on the trail of the woman zealot who mutilated a number of Bibles in the Evanston public library. The woman, Policewoman Georgiana Juul declared, had worked for an Evanston family in 1924.

The mutilated Bibles were discovered hidden behind book cases in the library by a cleaning maid, Mrs. Katie Wallace, who reported her find to Miss Florence Davidson, assistant librarian. From markings on the torn leaves, police assume that the woman committed the mutilations to substantiate certain passages in the twelfth chapter of the Book of Revelation. On one of the leaves the name of "Mary McCammon" was inscribed in pencil.

GRAND JURY ACTS IN DRIVE AGAINST CRIME REPEATERS

Indicts Group Under Old Habitual Statute.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Henry Gant, assault to murder: sentenced to 1 year in the bridewell; Walter Renkal, Philip Luskezewski, Rudolph Wojahn, robbery; sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Robert Gentzel.

John Fisher, Henry Mader, and Frank Wiedeman, robbery; sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge D. J. Normoyle.

Paul Rumishek, larceny; sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory. Leo Willock, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Richard E. Matthews, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge G. Fred Rush.

The first indictments to be brought under the old but seldom used habitual criminal act in a drive to incarcerate for life terms the crime repeaters were voted by the grand jury yesterday in three different cases. Assistant State's Attorney John Elliot Byrne, who has been placed in charge of the campaign, said that these indictments are only the beginning of a large number now in preparation.

Walter Novak, who last June robbed Joseph Kelleher, 7743 Bennett avenue, of $2 is the defendant in the first case. He had been indicted under the Crowe regime for plain robbery, but the files were dug up and a new indictment under the habitual act was ordered by State's Attorney Swanson.

Record Starts in 1922.

Novak's criminal record starts in 1922, when he was first indicted for assault to kill. He served minor sentences until in May, 1925, he was finally sentenced to the penitentiary for larceny, although charged with robbery. He was released on parole March 5, 1928.

Clifford Scott, Edward Kriel, Stanley Rogaski, William Benton, William Simmons and Joe Kalleck are the defendants in the second indictment. They are charged with having committed a number of freight car burglaries.

Charles Pesch, who served a two year term in Pontiac for larceny, is named in the other indictment voted. He is charged with the robbery of $32 form an attendant at a Standard Oil filling station. Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Spiro, who has charge of the grand jury, said the bonds for the habitual criminals will also be made higher than for the first offenders.

Cleaver's Pal Sentenced.

Thomas McGoorty, pal of Charles [Limpy] Cleaver, director of the Evergreen Park mail robbery, was refused a new trial yesterday by Judge Frank V. Shepherd at Wheaton, and was formally sentenced under the habitual criminal act in accordance with a verdict rendered by a jury early in the week. He was convicted of robbing a taxi driver.

Deputy Police Commissioner John Stege yesterday assembled his squad leaders at the detective bureau and instructed them in the use of the habitual criminal act. He told them to be sure and see that every repeater is indicted under the act.

NEW TANK, PERFECTED BY U. S., IS WORLD'S BEST, ARMY MAN SAYS

Capt. J. K. Christmas of the ordnance department of the United States army last night told the Chicago chapter of the Army Ordnance association that the government, during the last year, has developed a tank more efficient than any now used by the armies of any other nation. About fifty members of the association attended the meeting at the Palmer House.

The new tank, Capt. Christmas said, has recently been thoroughly demonstrated in tests at Fort Lewis, Wood, Md., and has been found excellent for the transportation of men, troops and supplies. Moving pictures of these maneuvers were shown.

The British army, Capt. Christmas declared, has spent more than $4,000,000 in the last few years on the mechanization of their forces. The French, he said, have also made great strides in this direction.

Maj. A. K. Hamilton, newly elected president of the association, presided, and the principal guests were Col. J. B. Stokes, chief of staff of the 5th corps area, and Capt. Walter H. Gerholm, chief executive ordnance officer.

RONGETTI GUILTY; GETS 1-14 YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Jury Convicts Doctor on Manslaughter Charge.

Once sentenced to the electric chair, and now facing 1 to 14 years in prison, Dr. Amante Rongetti, through Attorney William Scott Stewart, his counsel, last night was preparing to apply for his freedom on bail.

Freedom for Rongetti became a possibility when a jury in Judge Robert E. Gentzel's court yesterday found him guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Loretta Enders by an illegal operation. The jury returned the manslaughter verdict, providing 1 to 14 years, despite the demands of Prosecutors Harry Ditchburne and Walker Butler that the doctor's punishment again be fixed at death for murder. Another jury last February had fixed Rongetti's punishment at death, but the Illinois Supreme court granted him a new trial.

Calls Verdict "Virtual Acquittal."

Attorney Stewart called the verdict a virtual acquittal on the murder charge. He added that the doctor is now entitled to be released and application for bail, pending further action in the case, will be made. He pointed out that Rongetti, under the verdict, would be eligible for parole in eleven months, and that the authorities in this connection may take into consideration the fact that the physician already has been in the county jail for a year and three weeks.

"The verdict appears to me to be the result of a conscientious effort on the part of the jury to arrive at a just conclusion after hearing from both sides," Attorney Stewart said. "The jury acted under the direction of the judge, whose attitude and rulings manifested the same desire. In applying for a new trial I am following the wishes of my client, and our motion will be based on legal technicalities only."

Doctor Shows Relief.

Relief showed on the doctor's face as the verdict was read. He had come into court pale and anxious, as though almost expecting to be again ordered to the chair. He sat silent and grave, drumming on the table with the fingers of his right hand, as the jury foreman read the words, "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty," but he smiled suddenly when "of manslaughter" followed.

Mrs. Rongetti and the physician's 23 year old daughter sat in the inner circle of the courtroom, ten feet behind him. Both were dressed in black. Tears welled up in their eyes as the verdict was read, and Mrs. Rongetti clasped her gloved hands tightly together.

"I am not happy with the verdict," Rongetti said, half angrily, in response to a question. "Why should I be happy to escape the chair when I am not guilty of any wrong and ought to have been acquitted?"

Shakes Hands With Jurors.

"But I do not blame the jury," he added quickly, and walked over and shook hands with each man. He also turned and shook hands with Assistant State's Attorneys Ditchburne and Butler, who prosecuted him.

The jury in its six hours of deliberation at no time considered imposing the death penalty. It had retired at 10:16 o'clock Thursday evening and when it reported to Judge Gentzel at 1:15 a. m., that it was not near any agreement, the court sent the twelve men to bed and ordered them back at 9:30 a. m. to continue the discussion. It was 11:45 a. m. when the foreman knocked on the door, signifying an agreement on a verdict.

On the first ballot the jury stood 9 to 3 for conviction. A second ballot resulted in a vote of 10 to 2. They then agreed Rongetti was guilty as an agent in the death of Miss Enders and started to ballot on punishment. On the fourth ballot they agreed he would be found guilty of manslaughter.

Prosecutors Ditchburne and Butler expressed themselves as satisfied with the jury's decision.

SOLUTION SOUGHT FOR WATER FUND DEFICIT PROBLEM

Efforts to arrive at a solution of the water fund deficit dilemma confronting the council finance committee in making up the 1929 water fund budget were unavailing yesterday. Members of the committee met with City Controller George K. Schmidt and City Treasurer Charles S. Peterson to determine if there is a way to validate the $3,250,000 worth of water certificates in the controller's hands.

At the end of the private session Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the committee, announced that a way out of the difficulty might be found in one of two methods under discussion. Clark said that new certificates can be issued under a state law of 1927, which he believes is adaptable and requires no referendum or new legislation.

In 1914 there was a surplus in the water fund. Then the water certificates, or I. O. U.'s on the water revenue, were thought of as an easy way to finance improvements on a credit basis. At the end of 1928 Mr. Schmidt estimates the deficit at $12,462,677.

WOOD'S 1ST WIFE SEES JEALOUSY AS PLOT MOTIVE

Says Successor Was Former Chicagoan.

Mrs. Grace M. Wood of Detroit, accused of a conspiracy to assassinate her husband, Ralph A. Wood, is a former Chicagoan, it was learned yesterday from Wood's first wife, Mrs. Blanche Wood, now living with her two children at Grand Ledge, Mich. Mrs. Blanche Wood further intimated that jealousy of herself might have prompted such a plot.

Mrs. Grace Wood was formerly Mrs. Grace Trankle of Chicago, she explained, wife of a wealthy realestate man who owned considerable property in Gary. A few years ago her husband died, leaving her a comfortable fortune, including the Gary land, and Mrs. Trankle spent much time in Gary seeking to dispose of it.

Meets Wood at Gary.

Ralph A. Wood, at that time living with his family there, was made the agent for her properties, and an attraction between himself and his employer developed. His wife, Mrs. Blanche Wood, contemplated a suit for alienation of affections, which was never filed, she declared, because Mrs. Trankle induced her to sue for divorce in consideration of a cash settlement, which was effected out of court.

Following the divorce Wood and Mrs. Trankle were married and moved to Detroit, while the first wife took her children to Grand Ledge.

Of late months Wood, who had been successful in business in Detroit, had effected a reconciliation with his first wife, she stated yesterday, and they had discussed the matter of his securing a divorce from his present wife in order that they might remarry.

Sees Plot as Revenge.

Mrs. Wood, the first, is of the opinion that her successor had either learned of this and had planned her husband's assassination in retaliation, or that the plot was formed as a means of collecting his $125,000 insurance policy.

Mrs. Grace Wood is the mother of Mrs. J. Theodore Johnson, wife of a young Chicago artist, who has an apartment in the Italian Court building at 625 North Michigan avenue.

KIDNAPED, ROBBED OF $1,800.

Meyer Shier, a collector for the Yellow Front grocery stores, was kidnaped yesterday in his own automobile by two bandits who confronted him at 1228 South Kedzie avenue. He was thrown out of the car at 19th street and Turner avenue after having been robbed of $1,800.

SEIZE WOMAN'S NOVEL, BARRED IN ENGLAND, AT NEW YORK SHOPS

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Detectives seized today more than 800 copies of Radcliffe Hall's novel, "The Well of Loneliness," and served summonses on D. S. Friede of the Covici-Fried Publishing corporation for appearance in the West Side Magistrate's court on Jan. 22. The summons was issued on complaint of John S. Sumner, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice.

Radcliffe Hall's book, a study of a woman's fight for social adjustment despite abnormality, was first published in England. Miss Hall, socially prominent, was defended by prominent British writers, including Rudyard Kipling, H. G. Wells, George Bernard Shaw, and Arnold Bennett, and received favorable newspaper notices.

However, in response to a charge by the Sunday Express, that the book was a "challenge to every instinct of social sanity and moral decency which distinguishes Christian civilization from the corruptions of paganism," the home secretary requested the publisher to withdraw it, which was done.

LEGION FIGHTS FISHER AS NEW U. OF I. TRUSTEE

War Veterans Call Him a Pacifist.

Protests were made yesterday against the appointment of Walter T. Fisher as trustee of the University of Illinois on the ground that he is a pacifist and that his sponsor, State Representative Anna Wilmarth Ickes, is a pacifist. The question was raised as to whether Fisher's appointment is part of a program of opposition to military training at the university. In answer both Mr. Fisher and Mrs. Ickes denied they are or were pacifists.

David L. Shillinglaw, state commander of the American Legion, and Gen. Milton J. Foreman sent communications to Governor Elect Louis L. Emmerson asking that he, in his present position as secretary of state, withhold the certificate of appointment pending an investigation. The appointment of Mr. Fisher, who is a Chicago lawyer living in Winnetka and president of a labor bank, was made by Gov. Small last Wednesday to succeed Mrs. Ickes as a trustee. She resigned on that date to become a member of the legislature.

The Legion Protest.

"The American Legion, department of Illinois, would like to know what is behind the appointment by Gov. Small—at the instance of Mrs. Ickes, a well known pacifist—of Mr. Fisher as a member of the board of the University of Illinois," Commander Shillinglaw's letter read.

"Is he being named to perpetuate and carry on the well known program of Mrs. Ickes to destroy military training at the university? Every war veteran in Cook county and the state is waiting to see what action is taken in this unusual situation."

Commander Shillinglaw then called attention to resolutions passed May 10, 1928, by the "Dads' association," fathers of Illini students, in which they proclaimed the R. O. T. C. to be a source of inspiration and pride to patriotic people, and said pacifists were disloyal and insulting and were trying to plant discord among the faculty and students.

Brother's Record Recalled.

Gen. Foreman's telegram referred to a brother of Mr. Fisher—Arthur W. Fisher—who was a conscientious objector during the war and who became known later as a pacifist, and then said:

"Owing to the fact that Mr. Fisher is reported to be an extreme pacifist and in sympathy with the attitude of his brother, who was a conscientious objector, I urge that issuance of the certificate be withheld to determine whether or not this appointment is a part of the well known program of the pacifist group to discourage the R. O. T. C. work at the university."

Mr. Fisher, who is a son of Walter L. Fisher, who was secretary of the interior during President Taft's administration, said he was evidently being mistaken for his brother.

"I never was a pacifist and I have never taken a stand against military training," he stated, "and I didn't seek the appointment."

Mrs. Ickes' Statement.

"I certainly am not a pacifist," said Mrs. Ickes. "I sent my 18 year old son to France as a private during the war and my daughter went there as a Red Cross nurse and my husband as a Y. M. C. A. secretary. My two younger sons are now going to military academies, one to Culver and one to the Northwestern Military academy. One is at home now in his uniform with cartridge belt and he is a member of the American and State Rifle associations.

"While I was a trustee of the university there was never a vote on the question of military training and I never stated my views on the subject."

A telegram from C. S. Pillsbury, 10415 South Seeley avenue, president of the University of Illinois Alumni association, asked Mr. Emmerson not to fill the vacant trusteeship until the alumni shall have had time to make a recommendation. Its recommendations for trustees usually receive consideration by the nominating conventions of both parties, Mr. Pillsbury wired. His message contained neither commendation nor criticism of Mr. Fisher.

BOY, 14, WHO HELPED TO KILL 'WITCH' GUILTY; GETS LIFE SENTENCE

York, Pa., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Despite his extreme youth, John Curry, 14, today was found guilty of first degree murder with a recommendation for life imprisonment as an accomplice in the slaying, Nov. 27, of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, recluse, in the belief he was a "witch doctor."

The jury was out three hours and one minute, returning the same verdict that a previous jury had returned against John H. Blymyer, 32, witchcraft practitioner, who plotted the death of Rehmeyer.

While the jury was deliberating the degree of Curry's guilt, the third witchcraft slayer, Wilbert G. Hess, was placed on trial and the selection of a jury began.

Hess, who clung to the belief following his arrest that Rehmeyer, the recluse farmer, had cast a "spell" over the Hess family, blinked his eyes at stark reality, and appeared to forget the weird witchcraft which he had believed controlled his destiny last November. It was then, with Curry and John Blymyer, the latter already convicted with a recommendation of life imprisonment, that he set out to get a lock of Rehmyer's hair to "break the spell."

Summing up the state's case against Curry, the prosecutor declared that Rehmeyer had been murdered for his money and that there was every indication he was burned alive. District Attorney Hermann declared that Curry, who admitted pouring oil on Rehmyer after the farmer had been beaten insensible, knew his act would make certain the death of the victim.

Soviets Charge Poles with Hedging on Peace Pact

MOSCOW, Jan. 11.—(AP)—M. M. Litvinoff, soviet assistant commissar for foreign affairs, in a note to the Polish government tonight treated Poland's desire for reservations in an immediate ratification of the Kellogg anti-war pact as between the two countries as evasive. The note said that the will for peace ought to prevail over sheer quibbling.

Shoots Bootlegger Who Sold to His Daughter

Camden, Ark., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Alex Hardin, 25, operator of a roadhouse near Camden, was shot and critically wounded late today by F. E. Sullivan, whose young daughter was the principal witness against Hardin recently in a case where he was charged with furnishing liquor to school children. The shooting occurred in the rear of an automobile agency in the city.

VOTE HONESTY INTO COUNCIL, M. V. L. PLEADS

Reports on Aldermen of North and West Sides.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Ten problems facing Chicago's city council are set forth by the Municipal Voters' league in a report last night urging the voters to follow up the smashing of the Thompson-Crowe machine in April and November by concentrating on the aldermanic election of Feb. 26.

"Iniquities" of Thompsonism and the "wanton folly" of the city council, the league says, forced the voters to turn down the bond issues. The best way to redeem the city hall, the report asserts, is to start with the council and purge it of "obsequious machine followers" and the Uriah Heeps of politics. The Feb. 26 ward elections, it points out, give opportunity to "put more brains and honesty into the city government."

The report, which deals with the nine north side aldermen, is the league's final chapter in its findings on the fifty aldermen.

Problems for Council Listed.

The problems with which the next council will deal are enumerated by the league as follows:

Enforcement of rigid economy. No more "baby budgets," tax boosts, pay roll padding, or deficits.

Vigorous, competent handling of the transportation, telephone, and other public utility questions.

Solution of harbor, bridge, traffic, water, airport, and other pressing problems.

Settlement of the railway terminal question.

Enforcement of the civil service law.

Enforcement of building and sanitary ordinances and smoke prevention.

Restoration of public confidence in the ability of the city government to spend tax and bond moneys for the purposes intended.

Cleansing of the police force.

Securing a self-respecting measure of home rule in the control of public utilities.

Helping to shape the character of the World's Fair of 1933.

NORTH SIDE ALDERMEN

The detailed report of the M. V. L. on the nine north side aldermen is as follows:

FORTY-SECOND WARD.

DORSEY R. CROWE—Finishing fifth term. Has firmly opposed the waste and extravagance of the Thompson regime.

FORTY-THIRD WARD.

TITUS A. HAFFA—Has done nothing in council except to follow blindly the wishes of the Thompson administration.

FORTY-FOURTH WARD.

ALBERT E. LOESCHER—Finishing second term. Voted against ousting Ald. Albert and against Faherty subway appropriation, but voted for sale of Holden court to Marshall Field & Co. Not a leader but bears excellent reputation.

FORTY-FIFTH WARD.

WILLIAM H. FEIGENBUTZ—Finishing first term. Followed the administration consistently.

FORTY-SIXTH WARD.

OSCAR F. NELSON—Finishing third term. Formerly a Democrat, he entered the council as representative of the Chicago Federation of Labor and during this term has been the floor leader of the mayor. Was rewarded with Republican nomination for sanitary district trustee but was turned down by the citizenry.

FORTY-SEVENTH WARD.

JOHN J. HOELLEN—Finishing second term with record disappointing. Able and energetic, but has followed the Thompson administration in nearly all matters.

FORTY-EIGHTH WARD.

JOHN A. MASSEN—Finishing first term with excellent record. A most valuable alderman.

FORTY-NINTH WARD.

E. I. FRANKHAUSER—Finishing fourth term with excellent record. Man of high character and great industry. A most valuable alderman.

FIFTIETH WARD.

A. K. MOSE—Finishing first term. Voted to oust Ald. Albert, for sale of Holden court, and for Faherty appropriation.

WEST AND NORTHWEST

TWENTIETH WARD.

A. J. PRIGNANO—Finishing first term. Best alderman this ward has had in many years.

TWENTY-FIRST WARD.

DENNIS A. HORAN—Finishing ninth year. Man of great ability, but pays too much heed to political powers that be.

TWENTY-SECOND WARD.

JOSEPH CEPAK—Finishing fourth term. Colorless record.

TWENTY-THIRD WARD.

JOHN TOMAN—Finishing fifteenth year in council. Has gone along with Thompson administration.

TWENTY-FOURTH WARD.

JACOB M. ARVEY—Finishing third term. Man of considerable ability and energy.

TWENTY-FIFTH WARD.

TWENTY-SIXTH WARD.

FRANK A. SLOAN—Finishing first term. Great improvement over his predecessor, Joseph A. Mendel.

TWENTY-SEVENTH WARD.

HENRY C. VAN NORMAN—Finishing first term. Voted to sell Holden court and for Faherty appropriation. Record otherwise good.

TWENTY-EIGHTH WARD.

GEORGE M. MAYPOLE—Finishing sixth term. Man of ability, but has gone along with Thompson administration.

CHICAGOAN HEADS PLAN FOR MEMORIAL TO WILBUR WRIGHT

Capt. B. B. Lipsner, first superintendent of government aerial express lines, has been elected honorary chairman of the Wilbur Wright memorial which is being established at Millville, Ind., five miles from Newcastle, Ind., it was announced yesterday.

This honor has been conferred upon Capt. Lipsner, a Chicago man, because he is chiefly responsible for the memorial, although plans are being carried out by the Newcastle Chamber of Commerce.

Ten days ago Capt. Lipsner went to Millville, the birthplace of Wilbur Wright, to pay tribute to the memory of the elder of the two Wright brothers. He found in Newcastle that few knew Millville was the birthplace of the elder Wright, and on reaching Millville discovered that no one was interested enough to show him where Wilbur Wright had once lived.

He returned to Newcastle where he aroused sentiment which in ten days resulted in the purchase of the five acres of land which was originally the Wright farm, and which the Newcastle Chamber of Commerce proposes to convert into a shrine to aviation. Present plans include the erection of a monument in memory of Wilbur Wright and a memorial for each American aviator who has given his life for the advancement of aviation.

FARMERS BACK GAS TAX IF IT'S USED FOR ROADS

In the Illinois Agricultural association's 1929 legislative program it is announced that the state farm bureau members will support a gasoline tax providing the proceeds are used for the completion of the state bond issue system of hard roads and that distribution of funds in counties be made on the basis of motor license fees, the county board to determine which roads shall be improved.

The association will also seek to limit county highway tax rates. It will advocate a tax on net income of persons with moderate exemptions and moderately progressive rates will also be sought.

The association will hold its annual meeting at Danville Jan. 31.

Mr. Grady, who is 26 years old, was sued for divorce on Wednesday by Mrs. Ione Hines Grady, 19 years old, to whom he was married in November of 1927. She charges cruelty and asks for the custody of their child, Ione, 3 months old.

KEELER RIPS INTO SCHOOLS' PLAN TO GET NEW FUNDS

Clashes with Caldwell Over Proposed Bills.

Opening shots in what apparently will be a battle over legislation to lift the Chicago school board out of its financial dilemma were exchanged yesterday between President H. Wallace Caldwell and Harry S. Keeler, director of the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency.

Mr. Keeler, speaking to the education committee of the Woman's City club, described the "indirect taxation" bills being prepared by the board's attorneys for submission at Springfield as "merely a means of getting cash without making the goose squawk." Instead of new legislation, he said, the board, if necessary, should seek an increase in the educational tax rate at a referendum, allowed under existing laws. This would be possible, he said, if the board would win public confidence.

Calls Plan Futile.

"Mr. Keeler, and every one else, knows that the voters will not stand for a boost in property taxes," answered Mr. Caldwell in a statement later in the day. "A referendum now would be futile.

"What we have in mind is a way to provide enough money for the schools without putting the burden on the property owner. We don't think anybody wants to see the schools crippled. We, therefore, are getting ready a tentative set of bills to provide adequate revenues for our growing school needs from other sources."

James Todd and Thomas Sullivan, school attorneys, are drafting the bills. As explained by Mr. Caldwell they would provide three sources of revenue, as follows:

1. A tax on luxuries, such as cigarets, candy, and theaters, and on commodities such as coal.

2. More thorough collection of personal property taxes at higher rates.

3. Construction of school buildings by bond issue, releasing a part of present tax revenues for current expenses.

Before Board Soon.

The school board president explained that he has asked the attorneys to prepare bills covering these and "every other conceivable method of raising funds without increasing property taxes." They have completed 10 or 15, he said, all of which will be handed to the board and made public within a few weeks. Those recommended will be sent to the legislature during the present session.

One of the bills—that to build schools by bond issue—is similar to a bill advocated unsuccessfully by Mayor Thompson at Springfield two years ago. It was attacked by civic groups then and by Mr. Keeler yesterday as "a plan to obtain ready money by putting the schools perpetually in debt."

"I'm not prejudiced in favor of any particular plan," Mr. Caldwell added, "but I hope the legislature will adopt one of them. We must obtain relief of some kind."

Friction for 7 Months.

Friction between Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Keeler, it was learned, dates back further than their differences over legislation. It had its beginning seven months ago when the school board invited Silas Strawn, George Getz, Elmer E. Stevens and other members of the mayor's citizens' committee to help solve its financal problem. The committee, in turn, asked the bureau of public efficiency to make a survey and recommendations.

Mr. Keeler reported yesterday that he had found waste in the pay rolls for janitor-custodians, but that, due to limited help, he has been unable to go into other branches of the schools. Meanwhile the board has waited for his report.

"We have coöperated with Mr. Keeler and will continue to do so, but we can't wait any longer," said Mr. Caldwell. "The legislature is in session and we must act quickly. It strikes me that Mr. Keeler has been giving the mayor's committee the run around and he shouldn't criticize us until his own report is finished."

Make Efficiency Survey.

Instead of waiting for the bureau report the board has employed a firm of auditors, said to be Griffenhagen & Co., to make an efficiency survey which will be presented to the board Jan. 20, Mr. Caldwell announced. With this report as a basis, he said, the board will cut its 1929 budget in every possible place. The figures also will be used to sustain the board's contention at Springfield that it needs more revenue, he said.

Mr. Caldwell is going to Springfield to attend the inauguration of Governor Elect Emmerson Monday. While there, it was understood, he will probably seek an interview with the governor and lay the groundwork for action on the school board bills when they reach the legislature.

40 Brigands Hold Up Eight Autos; Rob All Passengers

JERUSALEM, Jan. 11.—[U.P.]—Organized raids by brigands in the Aleppo district, near the Turco-Syrian frontier, were climaxed today by an attack of forty robbers on eight automobiles. The robbers stripped all passengers of their belongings and severely wounded one who resisted.

ALDERMAN CLARK DENIES ETTELSON TAX STATEMENT

Says He Did Not Favor Present Rate.

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], sponsor of a movement to reduce the city tax rate, yesterday characterized as incorrect a statement that he, at one time, was in favor of continuing the present rate. The statement was included in a communication from Corporation Counsel Ettelson to the city council advising the latter that, unless the general assembly takes action this year, the rate will be automatically reduced to 92½ cents from the present $1.12½.

"This was explained to Chairman John S. Clark and the members of the committee on finance of the city council some time ago by Assistant Corporation Counsel Leon Hornstein," the Ettelson communication stated. "The chairman and members of the committee present at that meeting favored the continuation of the present tax rate."

Clark Denies Statement.

"That statement is absolutely incorrect," Ald Clark declared. "As a matter of fact, I have been working for some time on the proposal to decrease the tax rate." He indicated that he would have more to say when the tax bill, in which no rate is specified, comes before the finance committee for consideration.

To clarify the position of the corporation counsel in regard to the rate of taxation, Mr. Ettelson read portions of his letter to the council.

Is "Question of Policy."

"We forward herewith a copy of a bill in which may be inserted the new rate, if any, that you may desire," the letter stated. "The corporation counsel has not heretofore indicated, and does not now indicate, his views as to what the new rate, if any, should be. The amount of the rate is purely a question of policy for you to determine."

Previously, Mr. Ettelson's office had drawn a bill including the $1.12½ rate and eliminating the three year clause during which the rate would be effective. In effect, this would have made the present rate permanent. This bill, which had been sent to the council, was withdrawn and the other substituted before the council met on Thursday.

COUNTY BUDGET BEGUN; OFFICIALS REDUCE STAFFS

Coroner and Court Clerk Volunteer Economies.

As work on the 1929 county budget was started by the county commissioners yesterday, Coroner Herman N. Bundesen and Superior Court Clerk M. S. Szymczak were the first officials to follow the economy example set by the city, which cut is budget $4,500,000 from the 1928 figure.

Each of these newly elected officers agreed to cut seven names from the staff held by his predecessor. The county board was told of this action by Circuit Judge Otto Kerner, a member of the judges' help committee, which fixes the number of employés in each of the county's fee offices.

Gains Partly Offset.

Judge Kerner added, however, that the benefit from these voluntary reductions in patronage was partly lost by the necessity of giving the sheriff three more men and the Criminal court clerk five to meet the extra work caused by additional Criminal court judges. The number of employés in the other fee offices, the clerks of the Circuit, Probate and County courts, the recorder's office and the probation departments, will remain the same for 1929 as in 1928, Judge Kerner said.

Most of the county board session was devoted to hearing contradictory advice from experts on the estimated revenue for the ensuing year.

Michael O'Connor, clerk of the board, warned that the county is facing a $5,000,000 deficit this year. He estimated that only $16,909,000 will be realized in taxes and fees during the year, as compared with $18,305,000 in 1928, a loss of $2,396,000. Controller William Graham said the county would need $21,000,000 to carry on its work, without raising any salaries and without increasing maintenance expenditures in any of the departments.

Fee Revenue May Be More.

Judge Kerner, who, as a member of the help committee, has heard from heads of all of the fee offices, said there would probably be a small increase in fee revenues.

Chairman Charles Krutchkoff of the board of assessors said no one can forecast with certainty on what the reassessment will do to taxes. His guess, he added, is that there will be little change in total revenue, due to the revaluation of realty.

J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert, predicted that the county will have more money to spend this year as a result of the reassessment.

MERCHANT SLAIN DURING HOLDUP; HUNT 2 BANDITS

Two young robbers were being sought last night for the murder of a merchant and the wounding of a clerk during an attempted holdup of a tailor shop at 3036 Lincoln avenue earlier in the day.

Louis Berkowitz, 40 years old, 4754 Clarendon avenue, was the slain merchant. He was shot to death, and his clerk, Joseph Klinger, a tailor, was wounded in a battle with the two bandits who invaded Berkowitz's establishment at the Lincoln avenue number. Berkowitz died at the Illinois Masonic hospital.

Berkowitz was not in his shop when the two bandits entered. While Klinger had his back turned, both gunmen drew revolvers. They compelled Klinger to lie upon the floor and a moment later made Berkowitz do the same, when he entered.

Enraged when the bandits began hauling the merchandise in the shop toward a truck in the alley, Berkowitz and Klinger protested. Whirling about the robbers began to shoot. Berkowitz fell, mortally wounded. Klinger was shot through the arm.

HUNT 2 GUNMEN WHO GOT $66,000 IN TAXI HOLDUP

Police last night pressed the search for two robbers who stole a taxicab in the loop early yesterday and robbed the six occupants of jewelry, cash and furs valued at $66,000. The victims were: Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Pierce, 1235 Astor street; Mr. and Mrs. Luther S. Hammond, 237 East Delaware place; and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Murphy of Detroit, who were stopping at the Drake hotel. The six were returning from a loop night club when the robbers boarded the cab at Michigan avenue and Van Buren street. One gunman sat with the chauffeur, Roy Delefield, 7731 Kingston avenue, and forced him to drive south on the outer drive, while the other robber took the valuable from the passengers.

Court Dodges Baby Controversy

MRS. PETROCELLI PAYS; NOT GUILTY IN PROPERTY ROW

Mrs. Grace Keith Petrocelli, widow of Alexander E. Keith, pioneer in the development of the automatic telephone, was found not guilty of a charge of receiving stolen property yesterday by Chief Justice John J. Sullivan of the Criminal court. She paid $250 to Mrs. Magdaline Spangler Nix, 4720 Sheridan road, divorced wife of Dr. O. W. Spangler.

Mrs. Nix had charged that Mrs. Petrocelli, at whose home she formerly lived, was found to be in possession of some household articles which had been stolen from a storeroom while she was in Florida. The testimony showed that the women were at odds because of frequent quarrels while they lived together, and that on one occasion Mrs. Petrocelli bounced a vase off the divorcee's head.

The judge heard the testimony in the case several weeks ago, and at that time announced that he would enter a finding of not guilty providing Mrs. Petrocelli paid $250. She appeared in court yesterday and announced she had paid the money.

Tried for Murder, but Convicted of Manslaughter

James McCarthy, 65 years old, of West Chicago, was convicted of manslaughter yesterday by a jury in Wheaton which tried him for the murder of Mrs. Annabel Browne, 32 years old, whom he shot last September. The verdict carries with it a sentence of one to fourteen years in the penitentiary. McCarthy pleaded self-defense. The jury deliberated 18 hours.

3 YOUNG ROBBERS GIVEN YEAR TO LIFE IN PRISON

John Fisher, Henry Maeder, and Frank Wiedeman, the first prisoners to occupy cells in the new police headquarters building, were yesterday sentenced to from 1 year to life in the penitentiary for robbery. Fisher pleaded guilty, but his associates were convicted by a jury, and Judge D. J. Normoyle sentenced them immediately. The prisoners are all about 20 years old.

Sergt. Walter Storms, who arrested the youths as they were making sawed off shotguns from some weapons they had stolen 20 minutes before from a hardware store at 2508 Wentworth avenue, was complimented by the judge for his efficient police work. The sergeant made the arrests after he had obtained the license number of the automobile used by the robbers from a 14 year old boy.

Canadian May Scorn Seat in Lords for Life on Ranch

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Frederick J. Perceval, rancher, said today he was not sure he would change that occupation for a seat in the house of lords as the tenth earl of Egmont, his right through the death of a distant relative. "I am not going to drop everything here like a red hot horseshoe," he said. "No doubt I will have to go to the other side later, but I'm not in any particular hurry." Having lived in Alberta so long, it would be a decided wrench to leave it even for a seat in the house of lords. I would be quite content to spend the remainder of my life here."

BABY BORROWED TO TRICK COURT, HUSBAND SAYS

Wife, Suing for Divorce, Insists It's Hers.

A baby 7 weeks old was the center of controversy yesterday before Superior Judge William N. Gemmill.

The infant, Bobby, was carried into the court by Mrs. Ethel O'Toole, 21 years old, 735 South Crawford avenue. She testified that the child was born to her on Nov., 25 and that he was the son of her estranged husband, John R. O'Toole, 22 years old, an insurance salesman.

Both Seeking Divorce.

The O'Tooles are suing each other for divorce. She is charging cruelty and he is alleging infidelity. She was in court asking for a temporary alimony order for the support of herself and the baby. They separated last April.

"The baby is not mine and it is not my wife's," O'Toole charged. "She has brought the baby into court to get more almony from me. She doesn't have a child of her own."

"That's a lie," Mrs. O'Toole declared, and she produced Dr. Vincent Bowler as the physician who attended the birth. She had relatives also to substantiate her story.

But Mr. O'Toole was also well supplied with witnesses, members of his family, who told of seeing Mrs. O'Toole a few days before as well as a few days after the date given for the birth. They were convinced, they said, that she did not have a child.

Court Tells Suspicions.

"I am very suspicious about this baby," said Judge Gemmill, "who had heard the alimony motion several times since last fall. "I don't know what to say. It's all this doctor's fault."

"How's that?" demanded Dr. Bowler.

"One more word from you and you'll go to jail," the judge retorted. "I've been suspicious of you since you sent in a bill for this child thirty days before it was born.

"I'm going to award Mrs. O'Toole $10 a week temporary alimony and let the controversy over the baby be ironed out at the trial of the case."

Liner Aground at Panama Refloated; Passengers Safe

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLON, Panama, Jan. 11.—The Dollar liner President Adams, which ran aground on a coral reef two miles from the west breakwater entrance this morning, was refloated at 8:55 p. m. The canal wrecking tug Favorite and the tug Tavernilla did the work, which was considered a feat as heavy seas were running and the vessel was setting up on the reef for more than half its length. All the passengers and their luggage were landed this afternoon. The vessel apparently grounded when Toro Point lighthouse was mistaken for the breakwater entrance.

Dictator of Jugo-Slavia Scraps All Racial Parties

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 11.—While government leaders maintain the dictatorship set up by King Alexander is only a temporary regime, the program which it promises to fulfill before returning Jugo-Slavia to parliamentary government is as ambitious as that of Gen. Primo de Rivera when he assumed the dictatorship of Spain five years ago. The king is determined to make this kingdom of many nationalities and creeds a united nation.

The police today issued orders demanding all political organizations file within five days complete copies of their constitution, purpose, and membership, so the government will be able to check up on them and prevent agitations against the new regime. All racial or religious political organizations have been ordered dissolved.

Oppose Croatia's Demands.

A statement made to THE TRIBUNE by several members of the cabinet coincides with the declaration of Gen. Peter Zivokovic, the premier, who said: "As soon as our program is completed we are returning to the parliamentary government."

The statement said that, although the government intends to give equal rights to all minorities, all races and religions, it will not accept the principle of autonomous government which Croatia specifically demands. This provides for the setting up of the separate independent states under one monarch. "We will give every man, in every part of the country, rights in government, according to his capacity and regardless of race or religion, but our business is consolidating the country and assimilating all people into one nation," the statement said. "This we will do before relinquishing power."

Push Economic Development.

"We intend to put an end to agitation for the creation of separate states in Jugo-Slavia. We will not show any partisanship whatsoever to Serbs because they are Serbs. They must answer to the same requirements as all minorities.

"Besides creating internal peace, we intend to intensify the economic production of the country. We will also give the farmers aid and do what is possible to modernize agriculture throughout the country. We will encourage investments by foreign capital."

ROBERTSON URGES TWO DECK ROAD FOR WEST SIDE

A double deck boulevard through the west side is needed to facilitate traffic for suburbanites, loop workers, and motorists, Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the west park board, yesterday told members of the West Town Chamber of Commerce.

"Construction of such a boulevard will bring increases in property values, just as Wacker drive and the other drives of the Lincoln and south parks have boosted the value of real estate in those sections," Dr. Robertson declared.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 11.—An era of railway expansion, such as Canada has not experienced since completion of the main transcontinental systems, is foreshadowed by the application today by the Canadian Pacific railway for new lines in western Canada, involving the construction of 1,200 miles of new track into virgin country. Expenditure on these lines will not be less than fifty million dollars, and will mean employment of many thousands of men, extending over five years, the railways announce.

MOSES BALKS BORAH GAG ON TREATY DEBATE

Reed Says Pact Would Leave U. S. Helpless.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Proposals for a limitation of debate on the Kellogg war renunciation treaty failed in the senate today but the leaders were hopeful of final action by Monday.

Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], suggested a unanimous consent agreement by which no senator would be permitted to speak more than 30 minutes after 3 o'clock tomorrow. Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], objected because of the refusal of the treaty proponents to couple with it an agreement involving some form of interpretation, either through a resolution adopted by the senate or a report from the foreign relations committee.

The pacifist influences continued to control the situation and there seemed every indication that this element would force ratification of the treaty without any statement as to how this country interprets it.

Reed Fires on Treaty.

Senator James A. Reed [Dem., Mo.], trained his oratorical guns on the treaty during today's debate. Another speaker was Senator Smith W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.], who advocated recognition of the soviet government by the United States. He construed ratification of the Kellogg treaty as implying recognition of the soviet government, which was one of the signers.

Senator Reed contended that the effect of the peace pact would leave this country helpless.

"Great Britain is excepted from this pact," the Missourian said in commenting on the reservation of that country relating to its world-wide possessions and spheres of influence where it claims the right of self-defense. Referring to British fortresses at various points near the United States, he said "at whose heart are the cannons of Bermuda aimed?"

The British, he said, could destroy the Panama canal in five hours if the American fleet were divided between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Fears Ruin Through Pacifists.

"We may close our eyes and we may smile, but there will be no smile if we ever come to grips with a nation which has dominated the seas for 500 years," Senator Reed said. "When Great Britain says she reserves full liberty of action, mollycoddles say we should not restate the Monroe Doctrine. This country will never be destroyed by warriors. It will be destroyed by pacifists and misguided dreamers."

The speaker ridiculed the idea that the treaty can be made effective by public sentiment.

"They say we can enforce this treaty by the general opinion of mankind," he continued. "Why, more people are fooled by phrases than are ever convinced by logic. You can't get the people of the world even to worship the same God. Let's have a little common sense. They have it on the other side of the water. We are the only dreamers. We are the only nation to write songs about 'I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier.'

"It was 'snivelling, slobbering pacifists,' Senator Reed said, who were responsible for the sinking by this country of $500,000,000 of the finest fleet on earth.' Afterwards, he went on, Great Britain and France shook hands gleefully and went ahead with a building program.

Senator Reed attributed the "outlawry of war" plan to Samuel O. Levinson of Chicago.

CHICAGO BAR ASSN. VOTES INDORSEMENT OF KELLOGG TREATY

The Kellogg anti-war treaty was unanimously endorsed by 300 members of the Chicago Bar association after hearing a discussion on the matter last night by Salmon O. Levinson, Chicago attorney. They authorized their president, Sidney S. Gorham, to wire Senator William E. Borah of Idaho a plea that the senate ratify the pact without reservations.

Mr. Levinson, credited with being one of the authors of the outlawry idea, told his audience at a banquet given in his honor by the association that the pact was "purely American in origin and development. It springs from the constitutional convention of 1787. It embodies the spirit of settlement of international differences by agreement instead of by force."

Execute Slayer Who Asked for Jazz Band at Funeral

Columbus, O., Jan. 11.—(AP)—John Bradshaw, Negro murderer who asked that a 25 piece jazz band play "The St. Louis Blues" at his funeral, died tonight in the electric chair at Ohio state penitentiary. Before the death mask was adjusted Bradshaw said: "I bitterly regret the disgrace I have brought upon the Negro race, and I thank the warden and all who have cared for my wants during my stay in the penientiary." Bradshaw shot and killed Katie Young, Negro, after she had danced with another man.

$25,000,000 DRY BLUFF STAGED IN U. S. SENATE

Voted in Committee, It Means Nothing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Another congressional gesture toward effective Volstead enforcement was made in the senate today. The senate's appropriations committee, reporting the deficiency supply bill recently passed by the house, recommended an additional $25,000,000 to become immediately available for a showdown prohibition drive.

Appropriation of such a sum would produce a treasury deficit and the committee amendment, if adopted by the senate, probably will be killed in conference committee.

Nevertheless, dry bureau authorities have already planned on how the huge increase would finance a five-fold expansion of prohibition activities before the end of the fiscal year on June 30, and details of their program, it is expected, will be submitted to the senate appropriations committee when Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran returns to Washington.

Georgian Is Sponsor.

The addition of the $25,000,000 prohibition item to the house bill was made by the senate committee to satisfy one of its members, Senator William J. Harris [Dem., Ga.], an ardent dry, who yesterday offered an amendment proposing a $50,000,000 allotment in the deficiency bill for enforcement. The senator announced when the amendment was introduced that unless it was acted upon in the senate he would offer it as a rider on every appropriation bill coming up before congress adjourns.

Senator Harris declared this afternoon that less than one-half of the $13,500,000 appropriated for the prohibition bureau this year is being used for actual field enforcement and that overhead and administration expenses eat up the major portion. An additional $25,000,000, he asserted, would permit the bureau to multiply its field forces five times.

Suggests Quick Trial Method.

Anticipating the congestion which would result in federal courts all over the country if such a program was realized, the senator announced his intention to reintroduce a bill proposing that first offenders of the liquor laws may elect to demand immediate trial before federal commissioners, and thus escape long stays in jail while awaiting trial before a judge.

Senator W. C. Bruce [Dem., Md.] asserted that, while he wil vote for the $25,000,000 increase, the amount is "trivial in comparison with the amount needed to make a start toward enforcement of this law, or in comparison with the $300,000,000 which Dr. Doran says is necessary to make Volsteadism effective."

When the treasury department appropriation bill was before the senate, Senator Bruce's amendment to increase the dry bureau allowance from $13,500,000 to $270,000,000 was adopted. The amendment was subsequently killed in conference.

Bruce Gives Views.

"It's simply a question of how much the Anti-Saloon league asks," declared the Maryland senator. "Congress will grant anything the Anti-Saloon league wants, and it doesn't want this money.

"The league has been sensible enough to know that if they asked for enough to make a real start toward enforcement there would be a revulsion among its own members."

LOVERS DOOMED TO HANG TODAY GIVEN NEW STAY

Louisiana High Court Will Hear Another Plea.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 11.—(AP)—The Louisiana Supreme court granted Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher 15 more days to live. They were under sentence to die on the gallows at Franklin tomorrow for the murder of James J. Lebouef, the woman's husband, 18 months ago.

The state contended at the trial that a love affair between the woman and the physician was the motive.

Denies Plea for Sanity Quiz.

In a decision late today the court denied a plea for appointment of a lunacy commission to determine the present sanity of the condemned pair and also ruled that Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill had no right to grant a stay of execution last Friday night over the protest of four associate judges.

Defense attorneys were granted 15 days in which to file an appeal for a rehearing on the decision regarding the action of the chief justice, and members of the court said this would stay the executions.

Informed of the latest development in the case, Mrs. Lebouef and Dr. Dreher were jubilant in their cells in the Franklin jail. Mrs. Lebouef's children were with her and Mrs. Dreher and her children were with the doctor. They were making what they thought would be their last visit before the executions tomorrow. Sheriff Pecot had informed them they could not see Mrs. Lebouef and Dr. Dreher again.

Chief Justice Dissents.

Chief Justice O'Neill dissented from the opinion of the five associate justices today in holding he was without authority to grant the stay last Friday. He said he was empowered by the state constitution to stay the executions.

After the court acted the clerk was directed to read the majority and dissenting opinions to Sheriff Pecot at Franklin. Later the clerk notified Gov. Long of the action and informed him the court suggested he grant a reprieve of from three weeks to 30 days.

SEEK LAW TO REMEDY AUTO TOWING EVIL

Legislation designed to prevent unscrupulous garage owners from towing automobiles from the streets without the owners' consent will be asked of the state legislature at this session, it was decided yesterday at a conference of Police Commissioner Russell. A committee of three, Joseph H. Braun, general counsel of the Chicago Motor club; Joseph Rubens, assistant corporation counsel, and Lieut. John J. Farrell of the automobile detail, was selected to draw up a bill.

Responsibility for the towing of wrecked, stolen, and abandoned automobiles is to be placed in the hands of an authorized agency which will not charge the owners exorbitant prices, Mr. Braun said. Complaints have been received by the motor club from motorists who stated that their cars had been towed in though they had left them for only a few minutes. When they located their cars, the garage owner would demand storage charges though he had not been authorized to remove the car.

Until new legislation is obtained, Commissioner Russell will issue a general order to captains setting forth the conditions under which automobiles can be towed away, Mr. Braun said.

EMMERSON CUTS IT SHORT WHILE SMALL EXPANDS

5,000 Words in Message to Other's 60,000.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Louis L. Emmerson, governor elect, completed his inaugural message today, but despite a cross fire of reportorial inquiries would disclose only one material fact about it—that it consists of fifteen printed pages.

But that one statement was of considerable interest to the state house press gallery, which only today was staggered by the size of Gov. Len Small's ornately embellished farewell message containing a large number of recommendations to an assembly that is expected to lend attentive ear to the incoming rather than the outgoing executive.

The Small contribution to the state archives, and to such friends and supporters as received the 10,000 gold embossed, portrait bearing copies, consisted of 156 printed pages. A conservative estimate was that they contained more than 60,000 words, while the supposedly potential communication from the new governor probably will not comprise more than 5,000 words.

Emmerson Studies His Job.

Gov. Elect Emmerson, it is known, has spent much more time on the preparation of his first appeal to the legislature han he has on the consideration of appointments.

Therefore some surprise was expressed that he had kept it in such concise form. Nevertheless, it is believed he will cover pointedly all the important subjects that will come before this assembly, including taxation, utilities, roads, gas tax, reapportionment and agriculture. While the governor to be has not disclosed his ideas concerning a gasoline tax, members of his at present informal cabinet indicate displeasure over what seems to be an organized effort, originating with the Illinois Municipal league or some similar organization, to deluge the capital with demands for a three cents tax to be divided equally among the state, the county and the city—that is, one cent to each.

Worry About Roads.

Men who are believed to be advising Mr. Emmerson on this subject contend that the state must have at least 2 cents a gallon in order to complete within a reasonable time the roads listed in the 100 million dollar bond program, a total of 3,000 miles still being unbuilt.

The advisers contend that if the state is given only 1 cent a gallon the balance of the main highways already mapped out as essential will not be completed until 1946, and their complaint at present is that city councils and county boards of supervisors should permit the new administration to present its plans to the legislature without attempting in advance to bring political pressure on its members.

Drop Game Reserve Plan.

The Small administration's plan to purchase some 400 acres of farm land along the Vermilion river in Champaign county as a game preserve and experimental ground was dropped today when it was found impossible to hurry the deal to completion before the present governor leaves office next Monday noon.

Gus Radebaugh, director of conservation, who yesterday sought unsuccessfully to obtain warrants for $56,000 with which to pay for the land, called this morning at Attorney General Carlstrom's office and said the owner would be unable for four or five days to clear up a mortgage for $40,000 which covers this and adjoining land. Attorney General Carlstrom's advice was that an unavoidable rule required that the title be cleared and Mr. Radebaugh indicated the deal would be dropped.

Dance Hall Bombed After Being Set on Fire Twice

A bomb yesterday damaged a dance hall known as Cleopatra's gardens, just outside of Joliet. This was the third attempt in two months to wreck the place. One end of the large wooden structure was blown away in the explosion yesterday. Three weeks ago an attempt was made to destroy the place with rags soaked in kerosene, while some time previous the place was set on fire. Otto Bergeson, the proprietor, told police his place was marked for destruction because he had squealed on a speakeasy.

U. S. HAS NO HAND IN REPARATIONS —COOLIDGE FIAT

Repeats His Stand to Young at White House.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—President Coolidge made it clear again today that the United States government will not be represented in any way on the international commission appointed to revise the Dawes plan and settle the amount of reparations Germany will eventually have to pay.

According to information from the White House, the President is anxious that it be plainly understood the two American experts asked to serve on the commission will in no official way represent the United States. The President, it was said, would be better pleased if European nations could settle the reparations problem by themselves. So long as the aid of American experts has been asked, however, President Coolidge takes the view that it would not be becoming in the United States to forbid them to serve.

The Coolidge views were made known after Owen D. Young of New York, who has been selected as one of the American experts, called at the White House and saw the President. Mr. Young has not officially announced his acceptance of the invitation to serve on the commission, but it is regarded here as certain that he will accept.

During the day Mr. Young conferred with Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon and Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg. He did not see President Elect Hoover, but is expected to see S. Parker Gilbert, agent general of reparations. No statements were made by Mr. Young, but it was taken for granted that he had spent the day obtaining the views of Washington officials.

Mr. Young, Vice President Dawes, and Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles were the original members of the Dawes commission.

RESTFUL DAY FOR KING; DOCTORS AT BEDSIDE 3 HOURS

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—An unusually long consultation among the doctors attending King George took place this morning. It lasted three hours and was attended by Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewett, and Sir Hugh Rigby. But tonight the first two of this trio issued a bulletin in which they said:

"The king had a restful day. There is no change to report in his majesty's condition."

Sir Edward Elgar, master of the king's music, spoke at a public luncheon today and counseled his hearers to ignore adverse rumors relating to the king. He said: "We have the satisfaction of knowing that the king is slowly recovering and in a few months, unless there is an accident, we shall have him among us again."

WHISKER REBELS WIN WAR ON WEST IN AFGHANISTAN

King Amanullah Rescinds New World Reforms.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The whisker war in Afghanistan has been won by the rebellious whisker party, according to news received in London. Amir Amanullah Khan has published a decree rescinding all his western reforms, which provoked the uprising by fanatical Mohammedans.

These reforms included compulsory wearing of European dress, the shaving of whiskers, the abolition of the veil for women, permission for women to form clubs, prohibition of soldiers to become followers of the Pors, or holy men, and the introduction of conscription.

All these reforms now have been withdrawn. The Afghans may wear whiskers if they please; the women must be veiled and cannot meet in public, and the soldiers may follow their holy leaders. Amir Amanullah seems to be a bit before his time.

Afghan Prince Arrested.

ALLAHABAD, British India, Jan. 11.—(AP)—An Afghan prince, Sirdar Mohammed Sarwar Khan, son of the late Sirdar Mohammet Ayub Khan, has been lodged in the European jail here. The arrest was made by police under orders from the government of India, and it was believed that it was a precaution to prevent undue activities against the Afghan government from this side of the border. The prince is a brother of Omar Khan, who recently broke his parole here and for whose apprehension the government has offered a substantial reward.

More than 1,000 Afghan refugees are being watched by the India government.

REBELS REPULSED.

Trouble in Afghanistan, which had been brewing with more or less intensity ever since King Amanullah began his campaign to introduce western reforms much as President Mustapha Kemal did in Turkey, came to a head last month when fighting broke out around Kabul, the capital.

After many severe encounters, the rebellious tribesmen were repulsed from the city and retreated to the hills beyond, where skirmishing continued for many days.

The king's forces eventually were reported victorious and Kabul on Dec. 31 was stated to be quiet.

British Legation in Peril.

During the conflict the British legation, which is several miles outside Kabul on one of the main highways, was within the line of fire and some fear was felt for its safety. Many foreigners took refuge within its walls and eventually the greater part of the women and children, including an American woman, were carried to safety by British airplanes sent from the Indian border.

As late as Jan. 8 new fighting was reported around Kabul. Meanwhile, disaffection among the Shinwaris, the first of the tribesmen to rebel, was more or less satisfactorily patched up by the governor of Jalalabad, leaving the revolt of the tribesmen near Kabul still to be settled.

DEPUTY CLERK IS JAILED FOR COURT FORGERY

A. Andrew Torrence, 24 year old colored deputy clerk in the office of Municipal Clerk James A. Kearns, and a graduate student at Northwestern university law school, was yesterday sentenced to six months in jail for contempt by Judge Francis Borrelli.

Torrence, who lives at 2800 Indiana avenue, was found to have forged an order for the release from the Bridewell of Mrs. Myra Cunningham Le Rue, 24 years old, colored, 4238 South Michigan avenue. Judge Borrelli had sentenced her there to work out a fine of $200 for disorderly conduct. After serving two days, she was freed through the forged pauper's petition.

Yesterday Torrence admitted forging the names of Mrs. Cunningham and Municipal Judge John F. Haas to the order for which he obtained $45 from the woman's husband. Judge Borrelli freed George O. Johnson, also employed in Clerk Kearns' office. Johnson admitted notarizing the order, but said he did not know it was forged. The woman was taken back to the house of correction to complete her sentence.

BIG BANKRUPTCY INQUIRY BEGUN IN NEW YORK CITY

U. S. Will Sift Crooked Receiverships.

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—A sweeping inquiry into the entire federal bankruptcy situation here, which will result in a grand jury investigation at the unanimous request of six federal judges for the southern district of New York, was under way today as a result of developments in the last twenty-four hours.

The indictment of Merrill E. Gates for embezzlement of funds in cases of which he was bankruptcy attorney, was one of the outstanding events of the day. Gates was aroused from bed at his apartment late last night and arrested. He refused to talk.

The investigation was precipitated by the disappearance of David Steinhardt, attorney, receiver or referee in some 150 bankruptcy cases. He is accused of being $50,000 short in his accounts. He was indicted yesterday for embezzlement.

The inquiry became so portentious with scandalous revelations today that United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle opened negotiations to obtain the assistance of the City Bar association.

The federal attorney divulged that he had written Charles Evans Hughes, former president of the American Bar association and former secretary of state, asking if Mr. Hughes did not think the situation warranted the cooperation of the local bar association's committee on bankruptcy.

THE REVISION OF THE DAWES SETTLEMENT.

The selection of the German, allied, and American representatives for the international commission for the revision of the Dawes settlement is proceeding. In all probability the commission will shortly be at work.

The plan in general is this: The total of German reparations is to be fixed once for all. The sum will probably be somewhere between $6,000,000,000 and $10,000,000,000. German utilities, industries, and other values are to be mortgaged for the amount of the debt and bonds issued against the mortgages. The bonds are to be bought by banks and bankers the world over, and eventually sold to the investing public. Preliminary estimates suggest that American investors are to take some 40 per cent of the total, but there is reason to believe that our share may be even higher.

The proceeds will be distributed among the allies in proportion to their claims against Germany for reparations. Americans are being told that in this way, and in this way only, can our treasury be certain of obtaining payment of the debts which the allies owe us. Our citizens are to lend money to Germany, Germany is to pay the money to the allies, and the allies are eventually to pay the United States treasury. In time American investors will be repaid by the German government, or perhaps by the German corporations whose bonds they hold, and when that has taken place the war will finally have been liquidated.

We are in entire sympathy with the proposal to fix the reparations debt once for all and to make it possible for Germany to discharge it. We are inclined to believe that, as much of the world's capital is to be found in this country, our reserves must be called upon to make any scheme work. In Europe the American contribution is taken as axiomatic and essential.

The American representatives will be unofficial, but in reality they will speak for our treasury, and therefore for our taxpayers as well as for our bankers and investors. Our delegates will be derelict in their duty if they fail to insist upon the maximum protection for all the interests they represent.

The allied debt settlements made at Washington in recent years do not require final payment to the United States for sixty years. Unless these settlements are modified we in this country may be left holding not one bag, but two. If for some reason the Germans cannot pay, our investors and bankers will suffer; and if the allied governments default, our taxpayers will suffer. The American people ought not be asked to assume this double risk of default as a reward for pulling Europe out of its pit.

American participation in the reparations settlement should be conditioned, among other matters, on the understanding that all the money realized by the sale of German bonds in the United States is to be paid into the treasury of the United States on account of the allied debts. Then, if the worst comes to pass and Germany defaults, we shall lose our money only once. The American taxpayers will have been relieved of the necessity of providing interest and sinking fund on a part of the Liberty and Victory bonds which represent our advances to the allies during the war.

Our unofficial spokesmen must expect, when they urge this common sense provision, to be met with scorn and anger. They must be sufficiently tough minded to stick to their point, though the allied delegates appear to be grievously insulted at the mere suspicion that their governments might default.

In this connection it is well to remember that implicit in each of the debt settlements made by the allies with this country is a huge default, smallest proportionately in the settlement with Britain and largest in the settlement with Italy. Ordinary prudence now commands the utmost caution.

THE PEACE THAT ISN'T.

When Senator Borah, arguing for the Kellogg treaty, was asked if it would not have prevented the war with Spain he did not reply as a good war outlawer that it would have, and a good thing. He said it would not have interfered at all. That war could have been had just as any other. The United States had been attacked. The Maine had been sunk. American sailors had been killed. Spain was responsible, and the United States, even under the Kellogg treaty, could have gone to war with a bright face and a clear conscience.

Whenever it is suggested to a supporter of the peace treaty in the senate that it would prevent a war the proof is forthcoming from the treaty side of the argument that it would do no such thing. It would not have prevented any war the country ever had, and Mr. Borah is willing to pledge his word that it will not prevent any the country ever wants to have.

The more earnest pacifists will not concede this, but they must suspect it. They seek the greater assurance of taking all weapons away from the United States. In the senate debate, however, it is urged in support of the war outlawry that it will not interfere at all with any military enterprise the nation may feel called upon to undertake.

Mr. Borah's explanation of how the treaty would have permitted war with Spain had an unexpected consequence. It irritated the Spanish. Spain and the United States had been getting along nicely until the senator dug up the causes of the Spanish war again and assumed what Spain had always denied—that the Spanish government was responsible for the destruction of the battleship. The Spanish were indignant to have that atrocity laid again on their doorstep.

It is most unfortunate and almost inexplicable that as we seek peace we make enemies.

EXAMINING VOLSTEAD.

The judiciary committee of the senate has been trying to work out a scheme for an inquiry into prohibition which would not be packed from the start. The committee may recommend that President Hoover appoint nine disinterested citizens to study the wisdom of national prohibition as a policy and to investigate the methods used in enforcing it.

In principle this may seem to be a sensible way of treating the noble experiment. It is consistent with Mr. Hoover's idea that although noble it is an experiment, a thought that perishes in the Volstead mind. It requires a robust optimism to foresee anything resulting from an investigation. This is not the day of the moderate on the question of liquor control in the United States. It is so little his day that it might be doubted if nine disinterested citizens could be found.

Extreme prohibitionists have exasperated their opponents and made extremists of them. It's a dog fight and rationality seems to be out of the question. A policy which concerns the social and economic life of the nation, the principles of free government, the place of the individual under his government, and the doctrines of fundamental laws engages the passions and not the mind.

Just the same, it may be regarded as a slight turn toward reason that the senate should even concede that there is something questionable in what is going on under Volstead which has been held as the final law of public morality.

POVERTY BY CHOICE.

Viscount Ennismore, son of the earl of Listowel, has resolved to give away his fortune, keeping for himself only enough to permit him to live with the utmost frugality. Many people will say he is crazy.

The evidence is insufficient to draw that conclusion. If he is crazy, so were St. Francis and a distinguished company of others who made the choice between wealth and poverty and chose poverty. They felt that riches cut them off from human brotherhood and therefore from the Kingdom.

Psychologists recognize that few, if any, individuals are all masculine or all feminine. Most of us are a composite of masculine and feminine, with a strong leaning in one direction or the other. Likewise, we are a composite of the solitary and the gregarious. Few of us would deliberately choose the life of a hermit, cut off from all contact with other men; and most of us yearn from time to time for human companionship.

The normal man strikes a balance. He is neither as self-centered as a cat nor as dependent upon companionship as a dog or a bee. Biologically speaking, there is nothing inhuman about either selfishness or altruism. When one tendency or the other is overdeveloped the product is an unusual man, but it by no means follows that the man is insane.

TO PORTO RICO BY AIR.

Passengers have been landed at Cuba, mail is on its way to Porto Rico, and pouches are coming to us from San Juan on regular air schedule. The Pan-American Airways, Inc., has initiated passenger and mail service between the United States and the West Indies. The venture is undertaken with confidence, for already routes are being mapped southward to the countries of Central America and there is talk of bringing South America into the system.

The solidarity of the western hemisphere is promoted in this advancement of communication. Perhaps it was arranged as a consequence of Mr. Hoover's trip to Latin America with its suggestion of greater trade opportunities among the Americas; perhaps it was a result of the recognition by private enterprise without the stimulation of government that the resources of a continent are yet to be exploited for the advantage of each nation of it. Whatever prompted the organization of this service, it is interesting that aviation, the most modern of our industries, should be among the first to establish itself in the new commercial era on the American continent. Great pan-American railroad and highway systems will certainly follow, but the airplane has come first.

Editorial of the Day

THE SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

[New York World.]

That the number of commercial insolvencies during the last year should have been the highest in the country's history may seem peculiar in view of the general verdict of business leaders that 1928 was a year of prosperity. There were more failures last year than even in 1921 and 1922, when the country was in the grip of a severe business depression. This development, however, is not altogether inconsistent with a general condition of economic well-being. The number of failures is not so significant as the amount of liabilities involved, and in this latter respect the showing for the last year is not bad. The total liabilities reported by R. G. Dun & Co. were 6 per cent less than in 1927, although the number of failures was 3 per cent greater.

From these data it is reasonable to conclude that forces are at work which are driving the smaller concerns out of business. We really need no figures to convince us that this is true. There are visible evidences on every side that the small independent business man today is being beset with increasing difficulties. In the field of merchandising he must meet the aggressive tactics of the chain store, and in the field of production he faces the power of the big industrial combination. Keen competition, excess productive capacity, and the economies of quantity production and systematized distribution are powerful forces making for business concentration. The heavy mortality among small business concerns is in part a byproduct of this development.

This process of elimination involves, to be sure, heavy losses. There were over 23,000 business defaults last year, with liabilities of nearly half a billion. This means also a narrowing of the field of opportunity for the individual business man and some check on personal initiative. But, after all, there seems to be little that can be done about it. We can pass laws to prevent the combination from using its giant strength to crush its rivals, but no legislation can check the trend to a large scale organization which is economically superior to the old order.

Pardon Me, Mister Bandit, but Have You Been Eating Onions?

The bandits who robbed the Gold Coast party in their taxi while they were riding pleasantly through the loop should be severely censured. It is useless to object to being bandited while auteing on our downtown streets, so we have nothing to say about that. But it seems that the big fat bandit who sat back with the victims sat on the lap of one of the ladies in the party. This is going entirely too far. We won't say a word about the rudeness of bandits in poking guns in our faces, but when they sit on our laps it is going entirely too far. Some day something is going to be done about this.

R. H. L.: You are the most tantalizing, maddening, provoking person this side of the imps of Satan. You know "lagniappe" isn't in any human dictionary. You know you're the only one who knows what it means, if it means anything. And day after day there it sits at the bottom of the column, lagniappy, lagniappy, lagniappy, driving us cuckoo. I'll bet it doesn't mean anything. I'll bet you made it up. I'll bet if I had you I'd wring your neck. Lagniappy, yourself. WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

THE SPANISH LADY.

We Thought at First the Last Syllable Was a Bit Personal.

Now, then, regarding that word "lagniappe" which we use in the colyum every day. There is a great deal of excitement over "lagniappe" and we are accused of having borrowed it from French, Greek, Choctaw, or Persian sources. Right now, we are only free to say that Shelby lugged the darned thing in here and that she pronounces it "lan-yap," and we don't see why she doesn't spell it that way. Shelby says that way down where she was born the little children say "lan-yap" before they are able to crawl. Which doesn't explain, but it makes it more intricate.

Lagniappe.

IN AN EXCLUSIVE interview given the Line's reporter late last night, Philo Vance, the great amateur detective, said: "The report that I am to solve the sot-disant Washington mystery of what Mr. Hoovah says, thinks or will do, is dashed curious, y' know, and quite sans fondement. I hear the Washington correspondents are developin' dementia praecox thinkin' up synonyms for 'it is believed that Mr. Hoover,' etc., but while the mystery is most baffin' and vastly intriguin', don't y' know, I have not yet decided to take a hand in it."

MR. WILLIAM RUSSELL, the w. k. police commissioner, says in this week's bulletin: "Guard your pay roll more closely and look out for suspicious characters loitering near you." We get you, Bill, but even if you put it in your shoe or sneak it under a rug it doesn't seem to do any good. Wives are mighty smart these days.

WHAT has become of the fifteen beautiful cruisers that sailed so proudly from the White House bound for the capitol? They may have been lured by wreckers onto the deadly quicksands off Pacific Shoals. Or they may have collided with the Kellogg Peace Treaty and gone down with all hands on board. Or were they only dream ships from the start?

LOST—Fifteen beautiful first class naval cruisers. Were last seen crossing the bar into the senate chamber at Washington.

DIETING FOR APPENDICITIS.

DRS. CARNETT AND BOIES are of the opinion that most cases of so-called chronic appendicitis can be cured by proper dieting. They think operation on such cases is rarely necessary. Most of the symptoms which are said to be those of chronic appendicitis are really symptoms of neurosis due to underweight, worry, displacement of organs, muscle strain, bad posture, or spastic constipation, or several of these combined. Instead of being operated on, they advise such subjects to correct their basic disorders and in that way cause the symptoms of chronic appendicitis to disappear.

Those with underweight, combined with spastic constipation, are cured by changing their diet. They should avoid bran and all other rough foods, including raw fruits and bulky vegetables. Their diet should consist largely of milk and foods made from milk, cereals, rice, potatoes, macaroni, gelatin, and small amounts of chicken, lean meats, fish and eggs. In order to overcome constipation they can take agar and psyllium seeds. Sometimes they allow small doses of a saline laxative.

Those with much falling of the organs are put to bed for a few weeks, or they are persuaded to lie down for half an hour before and after each meal. Sometimes they apply hot fomentations to the abdomen while lying down. Next comes the wearing of a specially adjusted ptosis belt.

Those with bad posture as the basis for their trouble must carry out exercises for the correction of their defects. Body bending exercises are especially good. In almost every case the muscles of the abdomen need to be strengthened. Exercise in the open air and sunshine is especially valuable. If there are any foci of infection in the teeth or tonsils these must be corrected.

LACK OF HUMIDITY PERIL.

J. A. D. writes:

1. How much has lack of humidity in the living room to do with health?

2. Also, what is the best way to determine how much moisture there is in the room?

REPLY:

1. It predisposes to colds, sore throats and cough. It causes discomfort of more than one kind.

2. There are devices for the purpose on the market. Among these are the hygrometer and the duotherm.

CAUSES OF NOSE TROUBLE!

A. writes:

1. What is the cause of a polyp in the nose?

2. Is it possible to prevent their recurrence after being removed?

3. Is there some other method of treating a polyp besides removal?

REPLY:

1. Chronic discharge due to chronic infection. For instance, an old infection of a sinus, which has discharged pus into the nose, is liable to cause polyps.

2. Yes, by curing the underlying infection and stopping the discharge.

3. There is no very satisfactory method. Drying up the discharge might cause the polyp to disappear.

ONE TREATMENT FOR FLU.

E. M. B. writes: Keeping the nostrils greased with vaseline is a sure preventive of the flu and all respiratory infections. This method kept my five school children well during the first part of the flu epidemic, which swept through the city several years ago. During the second part of the epidemic I neglected this precaution, and every one of the children had a severe attack of flu.

REFUSES PAYMENT OF LOAN.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Eleven months ago I borrowed $1,000 for a period of two years from a man in the loan business, giving as security a mortgage on my home.

He had me sign his note for $1,640 to be paid him in monthly installments.

After paying him $360 he refused to take the whole balance of $1,000, but contends that I owe him $1,340 balance. Have used his money eleven months instead of twenty-four.

My questions are as follows:

1. Is such a rate of interest legal in Illinois?

2. Can I force him to take his money?

3. Where can I obtain information about the regulations of interest rates on loans in Illinois?

1. The interest rate allowed by statute in case of unreasonable and vexatious delay is 5 per cent per annum. The maximum that can be stipulated for by contract is 7 per cent per annum in ordinary cases. Pawn brokers can charge 3 per cent per month. Corporations organized under the small loans act can charge 3½ per cent per month. 2. No, but if you make a legal tender and he refuses it, then he would not be entitled to subsequent interest. 3. One source of information is the revised statutes, which you can examine at a public library.

DEPENDS ON MARRIAGE DATES.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—A woman who is of foreign birth married an American citizen but divorced him. She is now married to a foreigner who is not an American citizen. She declares she is an American citizen because she was once married to an American. Is she? E. L.

Before Sept. 22, 1922, a married woman assumed the citizenship status of her husband, and if the woman referred to was married to an American citizen before Sept. 22, 1922, she became a citizen through such marriage. The subsequent divorce did not deprive her of citizenship gained through marriage to an American.

If her marriage occurred after Sept. 22, 1922, she never became a citizen through her marriage to an American.

1. Tax exemption or a pension, not all states giving either one, but all states giving one or the other.

2. To whom shall I address a communication?

3. I contracted for some real estate and a year ago received a deed to part of it. Have never recorded same and since I have been married. Is it possible to have this deed changed to my wife without having it recorded and a new deed made? W. M. P.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 12, 1919.

LONDON.—Several hundred Spartacans have been killed in the capture and recapture of the Silesian railroad station by government troops, according to late advices from Berlin. Street fighting at night was of the most violent character. Many bodies are lying in the streets. Eighty were killed and many wounded in the fighting in the newspaper quarter. Unter den Linden is in the hands of Ebert's government troops. A dispatch says that Karl Liebknecht was shot in the head and instantly killed.

WESTBURY, N. Y.—Jacques Lebandy, known as the "emperor of Sahara," was shot and killed by his wife as he entered her home, here. Mme. Lebandy, who is 33 years old and popular in the fashionable Long Island colony, fainted after the shooting. According to the sheriff, the eccentric millionaire and his wife had been separated for several months. It is said he kicked in the door of Mme. Lebandy's lodge and the killing followed.

CHICAGO. — Every patriotic and civic interest in Chicago jumped into line for the welcome home to the famous Blackhawks tomorrow. The soldiers who are coming number 1,400 men and 70 officers, comprising the 333d field artillery and the 161st brigade headquarters organization. The reception program covers the entire day.

BOSTON.—Leading Boston women are indignant over the paying of $75,000 for a sable coat by Mrs. W. E. Corey, wife of the "steel king." They denounce it as extravagant and in particularly bad taste at this time when the mothers of war devastated Europe are crying for food and clothes.

FARMERS IN THE MILK DISPUTE.

Lake Geneva, Wis., Jan. 10.—I have been asked by many of our neighbors and friends to send you a line of thanks and appreciation for the article printed on the front page of your paper in favor of the farmer during this milk controversy. Yesterday at various meetings hundreds of hands went up in praise of THE TRIBUNE. They say it was the first time in history that we have received words of help on the front page of a Chicago paper.

That article seemed to have come at an opportune time, as it stopped all decisions at our meeting at Woodstock until further attempts had been made for arbitration.

Our circumstances are grave, to say the least. We have been feeding Chicago babies at a loss every since the compulsory tuberculosis test was put over. Hundreds of farmers in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois have been sold out under the sheriff's hammer during the last two years.

Our farmers need more courage in order to help in our incompleate organizations and I can't think of anything that has ever brought optimistic cheers out of their systems as was done by that wonderful article in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

A large majority of the farmers do not want to strike and we've been working with the dealers for two years trying to get somewhere without any violence. We have failed in all such attempts and we must do something and do it soon.

As president of the Genoa City local at Genoa City, Wis., I've been instructed to send in the thanks and appreciation of the entire local. LUCIUS HIBBARD.

SUGGESTS CONSOLIDATED DELIVERY.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—In the controversy between the milk producers and milk distributors, the Chicago milk marketing committee suggests as a remedy an increase in the retail price of milk from 14 to 15 cents a quart. The consumers of Chicago are paying more than eastern cities notwithstanding the eastern farmer is paid more for his milk than the western farmer.

The trouble lies in the wasteful methods practiced by the various distributors of Chicago. There is no competition between them, at least price competition; so why do they continue that extremely wasteful extravagant practice of wagon after wagon of the various companies coming into the same block to deliver the one and the same thing 365 days of the year?

Let the distributors practice economy in delivery and the farmer could be paid what he is asking, and the consumer could receive a reduction in price rather than that proposed increase of one cent.

THE HOUSE OF GLASS.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—The relic house, located at Clark and Center streets, built of melted glass from ruins of the Chicago fire, and an old landmark, is about to be torn down. Cannot something be done to preserve it? Moved across the street to Lincoln park it might be useful as a tool house. H. HILL.

EXPLOITING STAGE BABIES.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Mr. H. W. Smith who complains of our good laws preventing the exploitation of children in public performances, is misinformed on more than one point.

That these children are subject to undesirable nervous and physical strain, to artificial stimulation and to unnatural late night work, that not 15 per cent of them go on after the appeal of babyhood has passed, are facts that we believe can be proved. That they are more often than not taught songs, dances and gestures that should never enter into the consciousness of little children is beyond dispute.

What Mr. Smith and thousands of other Chicagoans see from comfortable seats out front does not tell a quarter of the story. The children are trained to appear to enjoy themselves. Nothing else goes. The wholesale use of children on the stage in defiance of law is throwing far too many children into a life for which they may prove wholly unfitted a year or two later.

F. ZEBA TOWNSEND,
Director Child Labor Department, Juvenile Protective Association.

IDEAL LIFE FOR CHILDREN.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Mr. Smith's letter regarding children dancing on the stage hits the nail on the head. Either these charges of cruelty come from jealous women or misinformed ones. Isn't it sensible to suppose that a dancing daughter is better cared for than a child allowed to run hither and yon while mother plays bridge till dinner time?

Have any of you kickers ever visited back stage? It is a party every day for the baby performer, and certainly there isn't any comparison between the child who has traveled and appeared in the stage and the one who is allowed to run wild on the streets with nothing but play on its idle mind.

Perhaps our daughters will have to be dishwashers yet if the women's clubs have their way. M. W.

RECALLS CHILD ACTS.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—At a north side movie house last year two small child actors put on what was close to the old time "hoochie-kooch."

A small colored boy was made to stand with his back to the footlights with his pants down so the crowd could see the original black bottom. This went over with a wow opening week at one of Chicago's burlesque houses. The boy was about five years old.

For the above and many other reasons, I do not favor paid child acting.

CALIFORNIA CLIMATE.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—H. K. W. says the flu started in California because sick people go there from Chicago. If they do, they are certainly foolish. I lived in California and saw more sick people there, native born, than I ever saw anywhere else. Some of them told me the doctor advised them to get to a milder climate, but they did not have the money—a common complaint in California.

It is certainly an unhealthful climate as it never rains in the summertime and the germs blow around for people to breathe and the drinking water is enough to give a person almost anything. Give me good old healthful Chicago. G. L. S.

Soup Bone Has Golden Resources

Wise Cooks Don't Waste Any of Its Fat.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Thrifty manuipulations of food demand both science and art, plus moral and often financial intention. In other words, such manipulations may be marvelously and gratifyingly intelligent—exercising intelligence is really a supreme joy! These manipulations also represent gratifying sanitary and hygienic practices. We may even say that the world is richer for them—in some scale or other. The ability to make them is certainly an asset, and what thrift may rescue has a beauty all its own. Sounds preachy does it not? It is preachy, but the rest of the sermon will mostly be illustration and not dogmatic utterances.

Let us for a minute consider the conserving of once wasted food products on a large scale. Jokingly it has been said that the great packing houses utilize all but the squeal of the pig. They know where there is a market even for chitterlings (do you remember the chitterling stew of "Old Curiosity Shop"?) Both medicine and the packers now profit from visceral extracts made from animal parts that were once counted as waste; and, long before this, bristles and hoofs and horns were profitably utilised. If in the retail selling of meats there was anything like the same economies we should not see the offensive truck loads of scraps from butchers' bone boxes that we do. And if the cook would but call for some of beauty all its own. Sounds preachy, sented for sale in some of the few public markets of the country, there would be another forging of an economic link.

Soup Bone Manipulation.

The soup bone is often degraded in more ways than some of us realize, and its golden resources wasted, particularly the fat in it and of it. Suppose you get a butcher to saw off afresh for you, from a leg of beef, a two pound piece well above the shin, trying to get at least one end of unweathered and sweet bone. Note that instantly after he will start to trim off the coarse, dirty skin because it is his business to and most people want him to.

They do not have good facilities at home, in most cases. Few women have the fine sharp knife, and without it they have to spend more energy to do that trimming than they wish to give. But it is a fastidious thing to do, even if it is no economy, and it may also be that. And then it is an excellent thing to learn meat trimming at home. If this happened to be my theme this time I could outline the many gains to cookery as well as to dietaries and pocketbooks that come from learning this art.

Making Stout Liquids.

Having just now given grave attention to getting calories and energy in order to withstand some things and to do others, via spoon meats, I fancy I can speak more feelingly of how to pile food into a liquid or keep it in it, if nature has been a partner in the work. A good deal of surgical dentistry is now going on to the advantage of the world, and most vehemently we would say that the subjects of it certainly need to be well fed, with food that will stick to their ribs, although the handicap in getting it is maximum. This preaching would not be undertaken if I did not think cooks were too little alive to their business under this and similar circumstances.

It is their business to provide the most sustaining pabulum possible to promote both present and future upkeep of those in any way ill. A fat soup—not a fat appearing soup—is a great agent in such good work, far better than the too common egg makeshift.

Protecting the Soup Fat.

For the majority of meat soups we gently cook the bone and meat for a long time—up to twelve hours—cool it quickly, because it if stays long at two different temperatures it becomes unsafe, and then when it is cold take off the thick cake of fat that rises to the top of it as it cools. Unless we are to make a bouillon or consommé it is a pity to do this. That fat—which constitutes almost its whole energy worth—is of far more use in the soup than it is as a cake of unrefined fat, coarse of texture and not palatable as it stands, and something that will not keep well without refining. It was used in a number of rather dull and unpalatable ways in old-fashioned large family cooking. It naturally enough wasted, in a small family about forty-nine times in fifty.

You may say, who wants eyes of fat in their soup unless they are starving victims of war and have learned to know the hunger staying worth of a top of fat on their soup? I answer, nobody, and nobody needs to have it, though it may be safely and agreeably in the soup. Though lost to sight, it will be dear to the memory of the good cook and dietitian.

A Vegetable Soup.

Let us say that we have our soup stock, fat and all, cooked to the point where it will be fine for a vegetable soup. We are about to take one quart of it and cook some finely and perhaps some fancifully cut vegetables in it. Let us hope we have a bit of turnip, an onion shredded, one carrot cut small, one potato, a green sweet pepper and one tomato. A bit of celery adds to the composite aroma. Even this amount of vegetables may seem too much, or make the soup too thick. Here is a point where the taste must be consulted.

Now, before these vegetables are cooked, but are in the liquid hot over the fire, we must commence subduing or hiding the fat. After they are cooked we could not stir in a tablespoon or two of wet up flour without making them mushy, but while they are still raw we can, and usually before we add the tomato, which somewhat subdues or also takes up the fat, as does potato. The long cooked flour cooks clear, and most people would not realize that this bit had improved the soup so greatly.

It is used in Philadelphia pepper pot which, when served, is often thought to be just plain vegetable soup. In making a vegetable soup just now I used whole wheat flour of an unusually fine milling — not the sort I like best for bread, and fadges —for the slight thickening, and approved.

As the flour and vegetables cook we will need to skim the soup a little, or the great chefs would say, depurate it. The flour and fat form a thin spume and late a sort of skin which we must remove to make the soup most attractive, but the waste is slight.

Odor Isn't Unpleasant.

The plain soup bone—one quart of water to meat and bone, and extra if needed, to cover—when cooking need not smell up the house unless it cooks too fast and hard. And whatever odor there is in the kitchen need not be in the slightest degree unpleasant, nor need what we skim off the top of the liquid around the meat when it has come to a boiling temperature—but no real boiling—be a dirty gray, as I have seen it, but rather of a pinkish shade. It is clotted blood mainly, bleached by water. When it is a gray dirt the bone and meat were not trimmed and cleansed in the best way. Washing a fat thing or putting it in water does not clean it always. Buy a clean piece, trim off dirt or scrape while using no water at all.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Wild Rice.

There is a good deal of picture to wild rice—Chippewa Indians planting and special harvesting and curing it by parching; pioneers of Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota, in which latter state there is a town of Wild Rice on a river settlement of the same name, are in the pageant. Bercovici, in writing of a French settlement in North Dakota, has spoken of wild rice as "good food for wild duck and Indians and an excellent food for anybody."

Wild rice is an expensive food today. It is the correct accompaniment of expensive game, but we can use it without any meat at all, made savory with vegetables for a nice center dish for a meal. It is also excellent with a bacon seasoning, and at any time it is perfectly avid of a nice fat seasoning, butter being the commonest.

If you have some excellent recipe for cooking or "boiling" common white rice you can probably use it with good results in cooking wild rice, or at any rate my own special or favored recipe for cooking any rice —which I adapt or vary in many ways —serves well for wild rice.

Many people prefer to soak wild rice for hours, and then cook it but a short time. I have tried many variations of this idea from time to time as correspondents have written in to me in their way of cooking this rice. If I remember rightly I liked the following, really a sort of Italian way of cooking rice, as well as any, but I thought I would use less water for the soaking. But the directions I got were to soak it for three or four hours, in about three times its bulk of water, then to pour off all the water not absorbed by the rice, after which cook it over a slow fire in butter for ten or fifteen minutes, adding sweet pepper and onion cut fine to make it savory and alluring.

Always the picking over and washing of the rice in several waters is necessary, for there are straws and unhulled kernels which should be removed as well as rice dust. Plain cooked wild rice with plain cooked mushrooms—in butter—over it is another way of presenting this viand.

Amateurs Face Galaxy of Foods, Prices

Nowadays It Pays to Know Cuts, Quality.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

"Stop, count ten, then shop," is the rule amateur shoppers must turn to nowadays with such a varied assortment of food offered them at the grocery store and meat markets. Dietitians have preached the value of variety in the diet for so many years that consumers demand a varied assortment of all kinds of foods.

The food producers, processors and distributors have made great progress in meeting that demand, and as a result counters are piled high and shelves and refrigerators are filled with hundreds of kinds of foods. All of these agencies are in general doing a commendable piece of work in giving to the consumers a high quality of food. Food standards have been raised many pegs during recent years. But there are many grades of foods, offered at different prices.

New Clothes for Old Foods.

All of this has added to the burdens of the shopper who is constantly being met with new foods offered at the market place. If it is not a new food it is an old one dressed up in new clothes, constantly challenging cooks' habits of having more or less the same menu day after day. Even meat cuts come dressed in new and attractive styles. For example, lamb's legs are attractively trimmed to resemble a duck, and the ribs are fixed up like royal crowns.

City housewives are handicapped in learning the various cuts of meats and the different kinds and grades of vegetables and fruits. Farmers' wives have the advantage over city people. On the farm they grow their own vegetables and fruits, and slaughter and cut up their own meat animals. In this way they learn at first hand not only the different kinds and varieties of vegetables and fruits, but they become familiar with the different cuts of the carcass and know where tender steaks and roasts come from.

Survey Reveals Ignorance.

A lack of the city consumers' knowledge of meat grades and quality of the different cuts is indicated in a report of a federal government survey made among 4,466 housewives who bought meat for more than 20,000 people in sixteen different cities. This survey showed that fifty per cent of these housewives of American white families thought their butchers handled either the "best or a very good quality of meat." But only nine per cent of the cattle slaughtered were probably of these qualities, which shows that these shoppers were not familiar with meat cuts.

Evidently at least half these women did not follow the rule of stopping to count ten before they shopped. The survey showed that half of them said they were not influenced by price, sixteen and a half per cent answered that they were only partially influenced by the price a butcher asks for meat. About one-fourth said that they were influenced by price. Thus less than forty-nine per cent of these housewives replied that they were influenced to various extents by the prices asked for meat.

Discover Document Showing Columbus Was Born in Spain

MADRID, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A document found yesterday in the archives of Pontevedra parish mentioned that place as having been the birthplace of Christopher Columbus. The document tends to bear out the contention that the discoverer of America was a Spaniard and not a native of Genoa, Italy. It contained a description of the burial of Columbus and said that the duke of Veragua, descendant of the mariner, had sold in the 18th century the lands on which stood the building where Columbus was born.

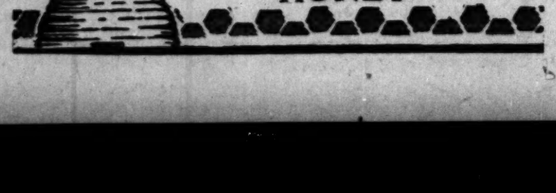
FROM FLOWER-TO BEE-TO YOU



Linens Are Made Lovelier by Handwork

Styles Are Simpler than in Grandmother's Day.

BY SALLY LUNN.

In this busy era women don't ensconce themselves in rocking chairs of an afternoon to embroider, or to embellish unsuspecting china with violently colored examples of a floriculture unknown to man or nature, as did our mothers, aunts, grandmothers, and elder sisters in the first years of this century. Rocking chairs and hand painted china are out of date, but there remains among womankind the vast respect that there has always been for that that is hand made.

Isn't hand sewn linen the most costly to purchase, and don't we always look with respect at something that some one has made "every stitch herself?" Maybe styles in handiwork are simpler now than they were when crash centerpieces with hand painted stencil designs, or florid patterns "worked" in shaded floss or coronation braid were considered necessary adjuncts to any hope chest, but the new things can be made in far less time and we can't help but feel they are in better taste.

Pastel Shades Are Lovely.

Handkerchief linen or a slightly heavier grade can be transformed into delectable tablecloths, napkins, doilies, or bridge sets. The pastel shades in such stuff are ravishingly enticing, and are comparatively inexpensive so that you can afford more than one set in different colors complementary to your china and glassware.

An edging of that lovely cream colored lace with little animals or flower figures in it makes a set even more lovely and approximates the smartest thing in linen being shown in the stores. Luncheon napkins should be from 13 inches to 18 inches square, and dinner napkins 24 inches square are de rigeur, although for formal sets they should be more expansive.

Plate doilies are about 12 inches by 15, and a practical runner for the center of a fairly large table is about a yard and a quarter long by 15 inches wide or thereabouts.

Fascinating things can be done with applique work. I have seen attractive sets of sheer linen with rolled hems and small conventional fruit or flower figures appliqued with white linen, in the four corners of the cloth and one figure in the corner of each napkin. Appliquing one color of linen over another is not so successful, because the underneath color shows through a little. Cross stitching is still popular, although more delicate designs and not such heavy thread are used.

If You Like to Crochet.

The woman who is handy with a crochet hook can easily make an unusual set, one of which I was impressed with recently. It was made of natural colored theatrical gauze perfectly plain except for the crocheted picoted edging of bright red. This launders nicely and is practical.

So-called cocktail napkins to be served with appetizers are about six inches square, or may be in an oblong shape. The brighter colors are effective for such. Every day sets of crash or linen, edged on appliqued with gingham or a contrasting color of linen, make the usual meal more of a pleasure, are simple to make and easy to launder. Without any artistic eye at all you can cut out or trace some simple conventional motif and buttonhole it on the main piece of your fabric in a jiffy.

Gives $1,750,000 for Law Library at U. of Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Regents of the University of Michigan today accepted $1,750,000 offered by W. W. Cook of New York, whose gifts already exceeded $3,000,000. University authorities expressed the belief that funds would be granted by the state legislature for the necessary land.

Councilmen Are Told Transit Home Rule Plan Won't Work

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

For years the aldermen have been calling for home rule over local transportation. That has been their plea since the state assumed control and supervision of public utilities fifteen years ago.

Several months back the transit companies agreed to withdraw their opposition to city regulation of transit matters through a local commission.

"Prepare your bill and we will plead for it with you," said Patrick J. Lucey, attorney for the elevated system.

"Decide what you want and we will be for it," added Weymouth Kirkland, attorney for the west and north side surface lines.

"We will lend whatever aid we can to obtaining what you may desire in the way of home rule," said Leonard A. Busby, president of the south side street car lines.

Home Rule Bill Isn't Ready.

The time arrived yesterday for a discussion of the city's home rule bill and the city wasn't ready. The lawyers for the aldermen, Assistant Corporation Counsel John G. Drennan and Frederick Bangs, presented a bill creating a local transportation district for all of Cook county. Under this plan all the transportation facilities within the city would be placed under a commission to be appointed by the mayor with the consent of the city council. A vote of the electorate in each county town and village outside Chicago would be necessary to place it within the jurisdiction of the transit commission.

It was pointed out to the aldermen that while Chicago would be under the transit commission, Oak Park might refuse to be, but that Maywood might consent. Under such a contingency, a street car in Chicago would be under local control, when it ran into Oak Park it would be under state control and when it arrived in Maywood it would be back under Chicago control. The state commission might order infrequent car service in Oak Park while the local commission might insist on a schedule of frequent cars in Maywood.

Find Plan Won't Work.

It was apparent yesterday morning to the council subcommittee on traction headed by Ald. E. I. Frankhauser that such a law would not work out. The same view was taken at a conference of city, company and citizens' lawyers yesterday afternoon in the office of Sidney S. Gorham, counsel for the citizens' transit advisory committee appointed by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Both meetings also heard the companies' lawyers question the constitutionality of the appointment of a transit commission by the mayor of Chicago.

"Your bill provides that all securities issued must be approved by the commission," said Attorney Lucey. "Suppose that the bond buyers insist on the O. K. also of the state commission, which they did do when there was some question between the Illinois utilities commission and the interstate commerce commission with reference to the issuance of railroad securities. Then you must have a test case in the courts."

City Defends Plan's Legality.

The city's lawyers claim it is constitutional for the mayor to appoint the commission. There they stood when the day was over.

The companies suggested that the proposed transit district should embrace all the metropolitan area of Chicago, including Cook, Will, Du Page, Kane and Lake counties. The aldermen said that because of the difficulties apparent the district should be limited to Chicago alone. No plan was decided on at either conference.

The lawyers will meet again on Monday morning and the aldermen on Tuesday morning.

"This national recognition of Dr. Bundesen is richly deserved," said Dr. Hall, "and will give him still further opportunity of developing his great program for child care and nurture. It also gives the Child Conservation league a worthy successor to Dr. Coulter."

Other officers chosen at the annual meeting of the league at the Hotel La Salle last night were A. D. Dorsett, Prof. William A. McKeever, Dr. Norman E. Richardson, Dr. Lena K. Saddler, and Dr. Winifred Sackville Stoner.

MANAGUA HEARS SANDINO PLANS TO SURRENDER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 11.—A persistent but unconfirmed report here says Gen. Augustin Sandino, famed bandit who has led the revolutionary movement in the north provinces of this republic for the last eighteen months, has taken initial steps for surrender of himself and followers to the American marines under the conditions of amnesty given others who have surrendered during the last few months.

Due to the complete occupation of all settlements in northern Nicaragua, Gen. Sandino has been penned in and practically put out of action for more than six months. Most of his followers have deserted him and supplies are difficult to obtain.

Headquarters of Gen. Logan Feland, commanding the Second brigade of American Marines, refused to comment on the report.

GERMANS MOURN AS CABINET PLANS NEW TAX ON BEER

Seek to Cover Deficit of $125,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—The beer drinkers of Germany are moaning tonight following the announcement of the financial minister's new budget proposal to the cabinet which includes a substantial increase in the duty on beer. The Bavarians in particular will not submit weakly. A fiery petition sent around tonight by the Bavarian People's party urges all patriotic Bavarians to resist to the utmost the new indignity against the national beverage.

Deficit of $125,000,000.

The budget estimates foresee a deficit of $125,000,000, of which the beer tax increase is scheduled to make up $25,000,000. A similar amount is expected from the increased duty on spirits.

To raise $50,000,000 more, the cabinet will levy a substantial increase on the income tax rate and also increase the duty on inheritable property, which will be extended to property left by a husband to a wife or vice versa.

Cut Payments to States.

The remaining $25,000,000 is to be cut off from federal payments to various states.

Finance Minister Carl Severing's proposals are almost certain to be approved by the cabinet, but they will meet determined opposition, not only from the beer-loving Bavarians, but also from the bulk of Conservative and Liberal deputies, who resent the new taxes on income and the death duties. They propose to substitute an increased business turnover tax, but the Socialists refuse this, saying it would lead to a general rise in the cost of living.

Libby's Timely Suggestions

Mary Hale Martin

Every Saturday in this paper we offer recipes tested by Mary Hale Martin, Cooking Correspondent.

Chili Rice, made with Libby's Chili Con Carne; served with Libby's Sweet Sliced Dill Pickles

Spicy Mexican dishes for January menus

Steaks, chops and roasts are appetizing enough, but they do get monotonous. Spicy main dishes like these will give a new and zestful note to your cold weather meals. Mexican specialties with a lively zip, an exotic piquancy.

These dishes are old stand-bys with me when I begin planning my winter menus. So quickly prepared! And they have all the color and warmth of a Spanish fiesta. Surprise your family and guests with them. The men folks particularly like these unusual combinations. Even husbands not much given to commenting on the food will volunteer that "they surely hit the spot!"

To make these dishes as striking as possible, to set them tingling with fine flavor, there are some special foods you ought to use in following the recipes printed below. The first is Libby's Chili Con Carne. Made of plump chili beans, tender morsels of beef, bite-y Spanish peppers, and fine spices. Libby's Mexican Tamales of rich, sunny flavor. Libby's Catchup and Chili Sauce, made of blended spices, sugar, and juicy, red-ripe tomatoes that go from field to kettle the very day they are picked.

Serve these tempting, in-season Mexican dishes now! Clip the recipes below.

Chili Rice

Libby's Sweet Sliced Dill Pickles

¼ cup Libby's Tomato Catchup
1 cup water
½ cup Libby's Sweet Relish

Spaghetti, Picante

3 cups boiled spaghetti
1 cup Libby's Chili Sauce
½ cup water
1 No. ¼ can Libby's Meat-wich Spread
½ cup grated cheese

Mix spaghetti, Chili Sauce, water and Meat-wich. Pour into baking dish and cover with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven (375°F) for 30 minutes. Serve at once. (Serves six)

On making sandwiches

Some hints to help you in making appetizing sandwiches:

Bread that is twenty-four hours old cuts best.

Spread bread, then pile slices and cut off crusts.

Where fancy shapes are to be used, bread should be spread with sandwich mixture before being cut.

Frosted sandwich loaves should be well chilled before serving.

Sandwiches keep fresh for hours if you wrap them in damp cloths and put them in a cool place. Mary Hale Martin, Cooking Correspondent, Libby, McNeill & Libby, Dept. TC-19, Welfare Bldg., Chicago.

British Await Life Story by Lady Warwick

For She Knows Many Sides of England.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—It is very good news indeed that Lady Warwick is writing her reminiscences, for Lady Warwick should really have something to tell. Her life has been spent, as the lives of few men and women are spent, among both the highest and the lowest in England.

LADY WARWICK. [Kadel & Herbert.]

She has included among her friends some of the most famous of Victorian, Edwardian, and Georgian figures, from King Edward VII. himself to the present leaders of the British Labor party.

Long known as "the socialist countess," she has spoken upon many labor platforms, and it is within recent memory that a scheme was devised for the establishment of Lady Warwick's house, Easton Lodge, as either a university or a country headquarters for the labor party. But the author of the forthcoming memoirs is not solely a "socialist countess," for she has always been in "high society," a commanding and distinguished personality.

Her intellectual interests have been wide; her own life story romantic, and her contacts with others genuine contacts, and not the make believe to which so many writers of reminiscences are reduced. When she writes of a person it will be from knowledge, and not from hearsay; and as Lady Warwick is an author she will have no need of assistance from others in the presentation of her work.

Should she need any assistance, it will be immediately forthcoming, for the Hon. Maynard Greville, her younger son, is an experienced journalist, who has spent a number of years, first on the staff of the Daily Express, and then on that of the Morning Post. Lady Warwick's youngest child, Lady Mercy Dean, is the wife of Mr. Basil Dean, who, as I think I have mentioned, is "producing" the first speaking films of Mr. John Galsworthy's work.

Mr. Galsworthy, by the way, has been the subject of a number of very enthusiastic essays in the English literary press as the year 1928 draws to its close—fitting accompaniment to the completion of "The Forsyte Saga," second installment. It appears that Mr. Galsworthy has written a short story—not yet published—which fills a small gap in the story of Soames Forsyte. Now, having lately read all the Forsyte stories through, with great admiration, I wish Mr. Galsworthy would look back half a century or so, and show us some of the early life of Old Jolyon. Perhaps he already is engaged upon the task?

Mr. Lytton Strachey's "Elizabeth and Essex," coming late in the season, has completely ousted all other books from the market. The general opinion seems to be that Mr. Strachey's method does not quite enable him to do justice to such celebrated men as Francis Bacon, whom he depicts as a mean person, with none of the attributes of greatness.

This may or may not be a just criticism of a delicate psychological talent; but at least it would be open to Mr. Strachey to reply that it was not his business to perpetuate the legendary virtues of those into whose lives he has been looking with such satirical closeness.

After all, Mr. Strachey's attitude of mind is wholly opposed to the heroic and the legendary in biography, and if we have not objected to the destruction of some Victorian reputations, we should not (it seems to me) object to a similar destructiveness as applied to those who are farther away from us than the Victorians.

Novel Depicts Farm's Grip on Human Beings

H. W. Freeman Scores with His First Book.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Joseph and His Brethren," by H. W. Freeman. (Holt.)

H. W. FREEMAN.

For those of us whose business it is to watch the seedlings push their way through the literary loam, "Joseph and His Brethren" is an event. It has been said often and in various ways that all of the books in the world were written long before mankind has any record of them.

There are, I believe they say, seven plots in the world, and those seven were all exhausted before their number was thought of. It remains that all books are seedlings from some other, if only from one of the seven plots. One of the most amusing books ever done by a literary scholar was Frances Newman's "The Short Story's Mutations," not on account of the short stories which it contained, but because of the underlying idea, the family trees of modern short stories which she traced with skill, and resulting amusement.

One of the most fertile of the great trees of literature is that of the farm and its influence on those who come in contact with it. The greatest of the modern books on that theme is undoubtedly Hamsun's "The Growth of the Soil." America has contributed a whole orchard full of offshoots, Rolvaag (most recently), Glenway Wescott, Herbert Quick (in the Vandermark series), Willa Cather in "My Antonio" (which is an offshoot only in the sense that its roots are in pioneer soil), and—less artistically but more spectacularly—Martha Ostenso, to name only a few.

Sheila Kaye-Smith in England has done a rather more intellectualized picture of farm life there. It has remained for a new writer in his first book to see the English farm in the same pioneer spirit that inflamed Knut Hamsun and that has thrilled (to the point of having to write about it) many American writers. H. W. Freeman in "Joseph and His Brethren" has done (for a first attempt at novel writing) an amazing piece of work.

All of that is entirely from the point of view of the technician. He has succeeded in making a terrible reality of a farm and its power over the humans who come in contact with it.

Let me hasten to explain the difference between the power of the pioneer farm and, for instance, Hardy's downs. They are both stern nature demanding the pound of flesh from humans, but in one, in the farm, the human does somehow make the thing which kills him or which he eventually triumphs over, and in the other, the downs, say, nature is implacable and the whole essence of man's relation to the force is the relation of man to his fate. He knows before the struggle begins who is to be victor. The downs always conquer in Hardy.

The battle between man and a pioneer farm often goes to man. The attitude of the characters in the two types of book is entirely different. In one, in the sharp battle with fate, there is a mysticism, a fateful sadness that overlies the whole book. In the other, no matter how deep the tragedy, there always is the possibility of man's conquest, and the reader always feels that it wasn't fate but man's own inadequacy (sometimes physical, sometimes spiritual) that was to blame.

Knut Hamsun's "The Growth of the Soil" was the masterpiece of all of the farm novels and combined the force of fate and an almost humanly belligerent cruelty of nature. The others all have been satisfied to be chronicles of a fair fight with nature.

I enter into this lengthy discussion because I fear that "Joseph and His Brethren" will be mistaken for the Hardy type of book rather than the pioneer farm type, and that in either case its obvious goodness will so darkly overshadow its less obvious badness that it will immediately be accepted as a great book.

It is by no means a truly great book. It is by all means a remarkable one, because, chiefly, it is a sturdy, deep-rooted seedling. That first book should show the deep insight into such completely simple souls as the characters in the book are, that the author should so entirely have refrained from splattering his canvas with high colors or dramatic events, and that the actual writing should so honestly keep the tone of the narrative make it a book which would merit acclaim at any time. It is an excellent piece of work. But its limitation is just that. It is a piece of work and not a flaming burst of genius. But, as far as that goes, how often does genius flame in any age?

There are parts of "Joseph and His Brethren" which are frankly dull. But so there are in most books. And there are parts which the author just isn't up to—the quiet humor of the escape of the brothers and their subsequent return to the farm is an amusing (and grand) idea that the author just grazingly misses. That is the trouble with the book, it so slightly misses greatness. It is the sort of book that those of us who have to read books get a thrill out of because it assures us that the literary orchard is not fallow, that the seedlings actually are sturdily pushing up, but it is also the sort of book that readers will feel that they have read time and time again.

FOR HUGO MASTERPIECE

This is one of Eric Pape's illustrations for a new edition of Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Notre Dame de Paris," which most American readers think of as "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." There is an introduction by Clayton Hamilton in which he says that "it was by the composition of 'Notre Dame de Paris' in 1830 that Victor Hugo determined the future course of that literary form which was to become the modern novel."

LITERARY CALENDAR

Jan. 14, 1850 was the birthday of Louis Marie Julien Viaud. When he was seventeen years old he was admitted to the French training ship, Borda, and for much of the rest of his life traveled and lived in far places of the world. His shipmates nicknamed him Loti, and when he began writing novels, he attached the name of Pierre to his nickname. It is as Pierre Loti that he is known to readers all over the world, for his books have been translated into many languages. It is difficult to say which are the best known, some say "Raranu" which is a tale of Polynesia, and is often mentioned in "White Shadows of the South Seas" (for modern readers of popular volumes). Others think "Les Desenchantés" still others "Madame Chrysantheme" (from which the opera was made). To me the loveliest of all is "Le Pecheur D'Islande" which we all know as "The Iceland Fisherman."

Jan. 15, 1622 was the day upon which another Frenchman was born whose real name practically no one ever remembers but whose pseudonym is known wherever the drama ever has been heard of. Molière was the name he took as an actor and Molière was the name he kept as a dramatist, although it was Jean Baptiste Poquelin that he was christened. He became the greatest French writer of comedies. His plays have been translated into all of the civilized languages and have been produced in them, also, for his greatness lies in the universality of his work. His end was a dramatic one. While he was acting for the first time in "Le Malade Imaginaire" (The Imaginary Illness) he was seized by a fit of coughing, ruptured a blood vessel and died a few hours later.

Poems to Suit Varied Tastes in These Books

Most of Them Work of American Poets.

"Outcrop," by Abbie Huston Evans [Harper and Brothers].

"Star-Dust and Stone," by Glenn Ward Dresbach [The Southwest Press].

"Selected Poems," by Michael Strange [Brentano's].

"Cawdor," by Robinson Jeffers [Horace Liveright].

"Collected Poems," by Margaret Widdemer [Harcourt, Brace].

"Sonnets," by Edwin Arlington Robinson [Macmillan].

"The Best Poems of 1928," selected by Thomas Moult [Harcourt, Brace].

"Listen to the Mocking Bird," by Stoddard King [Doubleday-Doran].

Widely varied in style, but all exhibiting merit, are these slender books of verse by American poets. The first three are lyrics and are ranked according to this reader's idea of their worth.

"Outcrop," by Abbie Huston Evans, is a most beautiful collection of songs about nature, with a preface by Edna St. Vincent Millay. The poet writes with a delicacy and sensitiveness of feeling that set her apart as a rare and precious spirit, not unlike Emily Dickinson in her art of capturing a fleeting moment of eternity in a single phrase.

Glenn Ward Dresbach writes with less genius than the author of "Outcrop," but "Star-Dust and Stone" shows a skilled hand and a fine imagination. These verses are largely about the west. The sonnets are the least appealing of the group.

Michael Strange makes a stab at the style of Whitman in "Selected Poems," but she falls far short. Her free verse knows neither punctuation, beginning, nor end. It simply is. You take it or leave it. When the poet throws aside her pose, however, and writes naturally she is charming and full of originality. The stanzas about her children are delightful and haunting in their sweetness.

Of far greater magnitude and deeper purpose than any of the books mentioned is the new volume by Robinson Jeffers, called "Cawdor." The name poem is a long, rugged, tragic narrative with the California the poet knows so well as a background.

The figures are in verse what Rockwell Kent's drawings are in art—sharply outlined, massive, primitive men and women standing against a bleak sky with the winds of adversity winding their garments like shrouds about their bodies.

If there were the feeling of truth about "Cawdor," it would be a masterpiece, but it is too unnecessarily ghastly and tragic—its canvas is too cluttered. It does not leave one with the feeling of inevitability that a great tragedy should.

The shorter poems following the main one are very fine, especially the one on "George Sterling's Death," "To a Young Artist," and "Hurt Hawks." Robinson Jeffers is a great artist.

Three interesting collections are "Collected Poems" of Margaret Widdemer; "Sonnets—1889-1927," by Edwin Arlington Robinson, and "The Best Poems of 1928," selected by Thomas Moult. Margaret Widdemer has a quality that makes her widely beloved—an understanding of the commonplace and a generous sympathy.

Mr. Robinson's sonnets are like all his other works: well done, carefully wrought, and probably technically perfect, but somewhat academic for the average reader. This poet's muse is a cold Grecian goddess, always placidly seated on a marble throne, wearing her laurel leaves with impeccable elegance.

Mr. Moult has made a representative collection of the poems of the year in a beautiful little volume, uniquely decorated by John Austen. Among the chosen contributors are John Hall Wheelock, Vachel Lindsay, Edith Sitwell, Dorothy Parker, Alfred Noyes, and Joseph Auslander. And here is a treasure, a poem by Rupert Brooke mislaid [can you imagine such a thing?] among the papers of one "E. M." and only brought to light this year. It is called "Fafaia," and is very lovely.

Last of all, and perhaps grinning at being in such august company, comes "Listen to the Mocking Bird," by Stoddard King. E. D. W.

Viola Paradise

Viola Paradise has written a new book, "Wits' End," which is that rare thing, a novel about perfectly normal people. This portrait of her was made by C. Le Roy Baldridge, whose illustrations in "Turn to the East" (of which his wife, Caroline Singer wrote the text) made the book one of the most beautiful ever published in America. It came out two years ago.

3 LINCOLN EXPERTS RENEW ATTACK ON NEW 'LINCOLN LETTERS'

A second special number of the Bulletin, published by the Lincoln Centennial association, is devoted to the further discussion of the authenticity of the Lincoln-Ann Rutledge letters which have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly. According to Worthington C. Ford, editor of the Massachusetts Historical society, Paul M. Angle and Oliver R. Barrett, three unquestioned Lincoln experts, there is no longer doubt that the letters are forgeries. They state their reasons.

Those three experts also mention that Carl Sandburg, who said at first the letters seemed authentic, published a statement declaring he was no longer convinced that they were not a hoax.

A letter from William E. Barton, another Lincoln enthusiast, to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE declares: "I have no hesitation in saying that, in my judgment, the letters which I have seen in photograph are a fraud and, if so, the remainder of the correspondence cannot be presumed to be genuine. . . . It is too early to say who is the forger, but the fraud ought to be ruthlessly exposed."

"The Intruder" Stays After Death Takes Ibanez Away

"The Intruder," by Vicente Blasco Ibanez. [Dutton.]

In Ibanez' posthumous novel, "The Intruder," he compares the subtle influence of the Jesuits to Maeterlinck's mysterious intruder—death, which comes invisibly yet makes all feel his hidden presence. Gradually the power of a wealthy Bilboan mine owner, iron founder and shipping magnate is undermined—and that is the thread upon which are strung bright colored episodes of a day long gone.

Artist Tells His Secrets in Book; They Are Interesting

"The Romance of an Art Career," by Joseph Cummings Chase. (Sears.)

Joseph Cummings Chase is one of the most successful of America's artists and when he speaks about the career of an artist he speaks with authority. In this book, which he calls "a series of confidences," he tells many practical secrets of the business of being an artist as well as stories about the many famous people who have sat to him.

"Abraham Lincoln," by George Haven Putnam (Oxford).

Maj. Putnam served as a young man in the federal army and through his father, who was one of those who invited Lincoln to stand for the presidency, he was in close touch with affairs in Washington and New York in the trying days of Lincoln's presidency.

SHOTS OF FIRING SQUAD MAY SPLIT CHINA AND JAPAN

Two High Officials in Mukden Executed.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEKING, Jan. 11.—The strained Chinese-Japanese relations reached a crisis today when Gen. Yang Yu-ting, former chief of staff under the late Marshal Chang Tso-lin and director of the Manchurian arsenal, and Chang Yin-huan, director of communications, were executed by a firing squad at Mukden for disloyalty to the National government. Several other Manchurian officials were arrested. Many others fled into the Japanese railway zone, making for Dairen.

It was alleged that Gen. Yang opposed the raising of the Nationalist flag in Manchuria, and was also charged with being a tool of Japan by Gen. Chang Hsueh-liang, son and successor of Marshal Chang. Gen. Yang has long been suspected of complicity in the assassination of Marshal Chang.

Charge Plot Against Chang.

TOKIO, Jan. 11.—Discovery of a plot to overthrow Chang Hsueh-liang, present governor of Manchuria, was given in Mukden dispatches today as the cause of the execution of Yang Yu-ting, who was formerly chief of staff to Chang Tso-lin, father of the present governor and late dictator at Peking.

The reports also stated that Yang Yu-ting had misappropriated $10,000,000 from the arsenal funds at Mukden, that he had opposed the hoisting of the Chinese nationalist flag in Manchuria, and that he had placed Chang Hsueh-liang in an awkward plight regarding negotiations with Japan in connection with administration of the South Manchurian railway.

Seeks to Assure Japan.

Chang has informed the Japanese consul general and the military authorities in control of the railway zone that the evidence of the plot was irrefutable. He assured them the incident in no wise would imperil relations with Japan. The young governor has assured the widow of Yang Yu-ting also that she will be afforded full protection.

BUILDER TELLS ABOUT STRIKE IN ANTI-TRUST CASE

The first direct testimony implicating officials of the Painters District council No. 14 in the calling of strikes when their demands were not met, was introduced yesterday before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Arthur W. Wallace, secretary-treasurer of the council, and eleven members of his board of business agents are on trial on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

Jack A. Scanlon, 2323 Pioneer road, Evanston, an official of the Carlson Construction company of Evanston, testified that in August, 1927, when his company was constructing two buildings in Evanston, he was visited by George Cummings, one of the defendants, who asked who had the contracts for the kitchen cabinets to be installed in the buildings. Scanlon told Cummings, he testified, that the McDougall company of Frankfort, Ind., had the contracts and that the cabinets were to be sent finished or unfinished, according to the understanding with the union.

Later, Scanlon said, a glazers' strike held up his work and he called Cummings to ask why. He was told the strike had been ordered because of the contract with the Indiana concern. On repeating his promise that he had an agreement with the union, Scanlon was told that the strike would be called off. This was done, he added, after about a week's delay. The trial will continue on Monday.

Tim Murphy, for Years a Star, Dies in Retirement

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Tim Murphy, who retired from the stage two years ago on the death of his wife, died today. He was 67 years old. The late Charles H. Hoyt wrote "A Texas Steer" for Murphy in 1889, and the comedy served the comedian many seasons. He afterward starred in other plays, although none was as popular as the Hoyt piece had been. He was born in Rutledge, Vt., and was on the variety stage before Hoyt took him up.

Shot by Flats Manager When Party Gets Noisy

Frank Gaughan, 23 years old, of the Marshall hotel, 1208 Clybourn avenue, was shot and seriously wounded early this morning by Joseph Hutchins, manager of the Ogden Parkway apartments, 334 Menomonee street. Hutchins told the police he shot Gaughan when the latter, who was attending a party in the rooms of his friend, Bernard Raske, with two women, became too noisy and threatened to shoot Hutchins when he objected.

France Profits $9,912,000 in Year on Licensed Gambling

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 11.—Licensed public gambling netted the French government, for the year ended Oct. 31, $9,912,000, or 60 per cent of the total profits of $16,520,000. Gambling in France now is carried on in 164 casinos, and others are springing to life, chiefly owing to the influx of wealthy foreigners. In addition to the straight 60 per cent earnings, the state took close to $500,000 for entry tickets to casinos.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Successful Flight

Little Symphony Orchestra Wins Elmer's Praise

"Romeo and Juliet" Also Gets High Rating.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

George Dasch's Little Symphony orchestra, WLS, 8 to 9 last evening, gave radio listeners a treat with Beethoven's Symphony No. 1, complete, and many other numbers worth hearing. This Beethoven symphony does not tax the hearer; it is light entertainment, yet one senses in it the qualities which later made Beethoven the greatest symphonic writer of the ages.

With the performance of the last two acts of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," by W-G-N staff talent, 9 to 10, the curtain was drawn on this colorful opera. To hear this radio performance was to live over again some great moments within the pages of Shakespeare's drama. Last evening, Mark Love's great Friar Laurence "potion" aria, and Helen Bickerton's difficult Juliet farewell soliloquy were great. And can any one who is familiar with the final Romeo and Juliet tomb scene [Helen Bickerton, soprano, and Frank Barden, tenor] hear this great duet without being deeply moved?

At the same 9 to 10 hour Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" was given from New York, locally through WMAQ. This vocally spectacular opera has its share of interest. However, in my opinion, the sextet number is out of date and should no longer be given except in instrumental form. It wouldn't be missed if not given in any form.

Once again Pat Barnes, W-G-N, 10:30 to 11, put over some out of the ordinary entertainment. This stunt was a weather forecast, given in a vein of quaintness, witticism and absurdity.

RADICAL MEXICO STUDENTS STORM CUBAN EMBASSY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 11.—The assassination last night of Julio Antonio Mella, Cuban student, was followed today by a storm of protest among Socialists and radicals, of which there are many here.

Mella, in a dying statement at the Police court, said he had been followed by agents of the Cuban government, sent expressly by President Machado to assassinate him because of his revolutionary activities and attacks on the Cuban president. The radicals openly accuse President Machado of the assassination.

A mob of Socialist and radical students today entered the Cuban legation, where they made incendiary speeches and threatened the Cuban representatives. They were driven out of the building by mounted police, but are preparing for a gigantic protest parade tonight.

POINCARE WINS PARLIAMENT AID ON REPARATIONS

PARIS, Jan. 11.—For three hours and a half Premier Raymond Poincare, speaking in a dry, level voice, explained to the attentive chamber of deputies what he plans to do and why he should be supported long enough to get it done. He won a vote of confidence, 317 to 253.

"We could get along with the Dawes plan as it is," he explained, "for Germany is paying and our prosperity would continue to mount. But the experts of 1923 specified a general adjustment might become necessary. However, if the new experts do not give us what we consider justice, we are free to stick to the Dawes plan as it is. If, on the contrary, the commission evolves a formula that suits the creditors as well as meets Germany's need, then our debts, which never for a moment we considered paying all alone, will be guaranteed by our debtors."

Cheering such as is rarely heard, even in the untranquil French chamber, greeted Premier Poincare as he marched stiffly down from the tribune and took a seat.

GEO. GLESSNER, OF OLD CHICAGO FAMILY, IS DEAD

John George Macbeth Glessner, a member of one of Chicago's oldest families, died suddenly yesterday morning in a hospital at Concord, N. H., of pneumonia, which he contracted following an operation for appendicitis. He was 57 years old, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Glessner of 1800 Prairie avenue.

He was born in Chicago on Oct. 2, 1871, just a few days before the great fire. He grew up in Chicago, and entered the business world here. About twelve years ago Mr. Glessner left Chicago with his family, and since that time they have occupied the Glessner estate, between Bethlehem and Littleton, N. H. Mr. Glessner was an officer of the electric light company of Bethlehem.

Surviving him are his parents, one sister, Mrs. Frances Glessner Lee of Chicago, his wife and four children, John J. Glessner II., Mrs. Robert Edge of New York, Mrs. Rene Mathey of Paris, and Miss Emily Glessner.

Funeral services will be held in Littleton, probably on Monday. Mrs. Lee left for New Hampshire last night.

14 Workmen, Arrested as Aliens, May Be Deported

Immigration inspectors yesterday arrested fourteen men employed at the Crane company works, Kedzie avenue and 38th street, and held them for examination and possible deportation. It was said the workmen could not produce citizenship papers. Nothing had been done toward determining their status last night, immigration officials said.

Dangerous Foot Infection Sweeping the Country

Health Authorities Issue Warning

Government reports and doctors estimate TEN MILLION people in United States are suffering from a highly infectious malady caused by a FUNGUS PARASITE that burrows into the soft skin between the toes and spreads to other parts of the foot. It is sometimes called ringworm, trench foot, athlete's foot, summer-scald, bath-itch, etc.

The symptoms are itching, blistering, scaling, cracks, soft corns, excessive perspiration and inflammation. This infection is contracted principally in shower baths, swimming pools, bathing beaches, locker rooms, in the home, or any place where one may walk bare footed.

Dangerous infections frequently enter the system through these cracks and abrasions.

If you are a victim of this infection, regardless of how slight or long standing, get a tube of NON SCENTS from your druggist. Massage your feet thoroughly once each day with this cooling, antiseptic, greaseless cream. See how it stops the itching instantly, banishes the infection and inflammation, heals the cracks and blisters, and gives you more foot comfort than you ever thought possible.

Physicians and Chiropodists use NON SCENTS for treating this infection. Dr. C. B. E., Chicago, says: "NON SCENTS is the finest product I have ever used, personally or in my practice; the results are marvelous."

If your druggist cannot supply you, send $1.00 for a large tube to NON SCENTS, INC., Wrigley Bldg., Chicago. If NON SCENTS does not give entire satisfaction, your money will be refunded.

PROSECUTOR, ILL, FACING $50,000 SUIT, ENDS LIFE

Laid to Worry, Flu and Overwork.

Elkhorn, Wis., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—District Attorney Charles M. Williams shot and killed himself in his home at Whitewater today, on the eve of the hearing of a $50,000 damage suit against him.

The action was brought by Ronald Lafave of Delavan, whom Williams had arrested some time ago in connection with a murder case but who was afterward discharged. The case which gave rise to the suit was the murder of a girl whose body was found in a culvert on Williams Bay road last August.

Worry and overwork were assigned by relatives as the causes of Williams' suicide. He had been suffering from flu for two weeks but insisted upon going about his duties. He had been under a nervous strain for the past year, owing to the culvert murder and the killing of Motorcycle Officer Lundstrom last June. The district attorney had taken personal charge of both cases and worked on them day and night.

The dead official was 63 years old. He graduated from Wisconsin university in 1894 and practiced law in Walworth county over thirty years. He started his third term as district attorney Jan. 7. Surviving are his widow and two sons. One, Raymond, aged 32, is employed by Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago. The younger, Courtney, aged 28, is superintendent of schools at Hartland, Wis. Burial will be at Whitewater.

GREENE FALLS UNCONSCIOUS ON SENATE FLOOR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Senator Greene of Vermont was stricken with an attack of dizziness in the senate today but was revived quickly after he had been carried from the floor to a cloak room adjoining the chamber.

He fell ill while sitting at his desk next to Senator Curtis of Kansas. He slumped almost to the floor and lay unconscious for a brief period.

After he had been carried to the cloak room, Senator Copeland of New York, a physician, was called and restoratives quickly revived the senator. Later, a practicing physician was summoned and Mr. Greene's condition was pronounced not serious.

Mrs. Greene was summoned but her husband had recovered and was talking with colleagues by the time she arrived.

Some years ago Senator Greene, while walking down Pennsylvania avenue, was shot in the head in an exchange of shots between bootleggers and prohibition agents. This accident caused him to lose partial use of his right side, but he had otherwise been in good health.

FLU CONFERENCE PLANS NATION-WIDE STUDY; ASKS APPROPRIATIONS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—The two day conference on influenza, called by the public health service, adjourned today after approving a program for fighting the disease. The initial step will be taken next week with the start by the health service of a nationwide study of the disease.

Another part of the combative program calls for a move by those attending the session to enlist nationwide support for larger appropriations by congress for general health defenses.

Delegates to the conferences included physicians, scientists, and state and city public health officers. They listed among accomplishments of the meeting the formulation of detailed instructions to individuals and communities on what to do to prevent contracting influenza; what to do to prevent secondary infection in case the disease were contracted; and a program of coöperation on epidemiological investigation with facilities now available.

One of the delegates, Dr. Frank G. Atwood of New Haven, Conn., who said he was a "practical teetotaler," implored the conference in vain to go on record in favor of more extensive use of medicinal liquor in treating influenza.

After the conference adjourned Dr. W. H. Frost of Washington, Dr. M. V. Veldee of Cincinnati, and Dr. A. M. Stimson of Washington, all veteran public health epidemic specialists, conferred over putting into effect the plan to canvass representative sections of the country to gain first hand information on just what the manifestations of the present epidemic have been.

MADISON MOTHER SEEKS TO TRAIL ELOPING COUPLE

Police at Gary were appealed to yesterday by Mrs. W. E. Tenney of Madison, Wis., to locate and detain her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Tenney, 18 years old, a member of one of Madison's oldest families, and William Slightam, 21 years old, with whom she eloped to Crown Point, Ind. Later in the day Mrs. Tenney told reporters at Madison that the couple had been married and had returned to Madison. Both are thought to be students at the University of Wisconsin.

Gary police learned that the couple had come to Crown Point and obtained a marriage license, also that they had afterwards arrived in Gary and had called at the rectory of James E. Foster, Episcopalian minister.

After a family council with Mr. and Mrs. William Slightam, parents of the groom, Mrs. Tenney announced that he marriage had been performed but hat she had not yet found out where and that later a formal announcement would be forthcoming. The father of the groom is a railway engineer and the bride's father is a well known Madison accountant.

THE BUFFER

By ALICE HEGAN RICE

SYNOPSIS.

Hickory Hill has been the homestead of the Freers for generations. Cynthia Freer, chained to it by family obligations and a promise to her mother never to leave her, strains at her bonds and longs to be free of the place and all it entails.

Dolly Freer, Cynthia's mother, meets the new assistant rector of St. Timothy's church in town and invites him to Hickory Hill to meet her family. Aunt Lizzie Freer, Dolly's sister-in-law, has been an invalid for twenty-five years, but she runs the family and its finances from her bed.

A DELIGHTFUL PLAN.

Cynthia was scornful of the idea that Claire's father had any influence over his daughter.

"You don't suppose Uncle Julius'd have the nerve to scold her for taking too many highballs? It would be like Uncle Herbert ragging Barney for betting on the races when he plays the stock market all the time himself."

"Isn't it a shame," wailed Mrs. Freer, "just when I thought everything was going so smoothly for this to happen? I think it is perfectly dreadful in Claire to encourage Barney in doing these wild things. She's three years older than he is and a mother."

"Having children doesn't make a mother," declared Cynthia hotly. "Claire might go on having twins through eternity and never sprout a maternal instinct. She's perfectly indifferent to Pip and Bobby except to play with them as if they were puppies. Poor little tikes!"

"I think she's a wicked girl," said Mrs. Freer, now in tears. "And after all we have done for her and the children."

"She's no worse than Barney," Cynthia reminded her firmly.

"They are two of a kind. If it will ease your mind I'll tackle Uncle Julius, and he will pass the buck to Uncle Herbert, and he will pass it to Aunt Dora, and she will come and tell Aunt Lizzie that dear little Claire isn't looking well, and that they have decided to take her up to Placid for the rest of the summer."

"And what about the twins?"

"They will have to stay here. They are just beginning to gain, and, besides, Aunt Dora would never consent to having them up there."

"I can't take the responsibility of them," said Mrs. Freer helplessly. "I never knew what to do with my own babies when they were sick, and I should be scared to death if anything happened to the twins. If they stay you will have to give up your visit to Kate Wesson."

"All right," Cynthia agreed listlessly. "I've given it up for three summers now, so I've acquired the habit. Besides, some one's got to be here to put the fear of God into Barney! The only one who can control him is the one who holds the purse strings. If the worst comes to the worst I am going to tell Aunt Lizzie the truth about him."

"Now, Cynthia," begged her mother, "you know we can never do that.

"I can't take the responsibility of them," said Mrs. Freer helplessly.

She adores the ground Barney walks on, and, besides, I don't think it would be loyal to him."

"But don't you see that as long as she thinks he is perfect she will go on paying his debts, and we will never get him straightened out? What Barney needs is to be up against it good and hard. That's the only thing that is ever going to cramp his style."

"Please, Cynthia, don't be so hard on him! You forget what a delicate little boy he was. That's the reason we spoiled him so. Pneumonia five times before he was twelve! And Dr. Rawlins warned me that his lungs would never be strong. I never start to scold him that I don't think 'Poor boy! We may not have him with us this time next year!'"

As usual, Cynthia's resolve to handle the delinquent went down before this appeal. The habit of protecting Barney against the consequences of his misdeeds had been instilled into her at a tender age. She could remember the rare instances in his boyhood when he had been put to bed for punishment, and how she had always been made to feel so sorry for him that she had sat by the bed and read to him until his hours of imprisonment were over.

Now, instead of telling Aunt Lizzie, she decided to cope with the situation as best she could single handed.

At Hickory Hill the days dragged along with monotonous regularity. After Claire's departure for Lake Placid, Ethel had been sent to North Carolina to get her away from Bob Dillon and Frederick had gone camping with the Boy Scouts. Barney, being deprived of his chief amusement, spent little time at the farm, preferring to seek diversions afar.

Cynthia and her mother, left, as usual, to hold the fort, agreed to a division of labor, the former gladly agreeing to take entire charge of the twins if the latter would look after Miss Lizzie.

Pip and Bobby had blossomed out amazingly in the country air, and in spite of the fact that it was their second summer were growing plump and rosy and exceedingly troublesome. The French nurse had been replaced by black Mammy, who had nursed all the Freer children. Mammy was too fat now to do much active service, but she was invaluable as a disciplinarian and dietitian.

Much as Cynthia adored the twins, she began to show the effects of their strenuous demands. The long, hard summer following other long, hard seasons was proving more than usually difficult. She was getting thin and worn, and, as Miss Lizzie was fond of telling her, "edgy."

The only oases in the desert of her monotony were the visits of Mr. Benson, and she looked forward to them with more eagerness than she cared to acknowledge. He always came bearing gifts, flowers, and fruit for others, books for her, the latest novel, a volume of verse, an interesting magazine article, all of which they discussed later.

She had never met any one so kind and considerate and so restful. She liked his big, handsome person, his rich, full voice, his genial comradeship. There were times, to be sure, when his unfailing serenity tempted her to tease him. He was so intrenched in his own virtues, so unruffled by the petty annoyances of life, that she could not resist the temptation of casting an occasional pebble into the pool of his placidity.

As to the status of his affair with her mother she was as much in doubt as ever. If he were not in earnest the sooner Dolly realized it the better, for, despite her repeated avowals that she would never marry again, she was obviously allowing herself to become rather deeply involved.

Fortunately Miss Lizzie was still ignorant of what was taking place, and, the rest of the family being out of town, Cynthia had been the sole witness to the unfolding drama. In the last few weeks, however, she had become dimly aware that she was becoming complicated in the plot. Mr. Benson frequently led her into conversational depths where her mother could not follow and took the liveliest interest in discussing with her books and subjects of which her mother was quite ignorant. It was so unlike him to be lacking in tact that she decided he must be currying favor with her for Dolly's sake rather than her own. In any case, he was helping her through a dull, torrid summer, and she was too grateful to be distrustful.

One Saturday afternoon toward the end of August found her in the kitchen, whistling gayly as she packed a small basket with a picnic lunch. Wrapped in wax paper was a pile of savory sandwiches, flanked on one side by two thermos bottles and on the other by two oranges, two bananas, and a stack of fat sugary doughnuts.

A rainstorm the day before had cleared the air, and a fresh wind was stirring the tired, drooping leaves. It was a heavenly respite from the intense heat and life had suddenly assumed a new and cheerful aspect.

Curtis Benson was to have taken supper at the farm, but at noon Miss Lizzie, always a victim to any change in the weather, developed a heavy cold, and Cynthia had been told by her mother to telephone Mr. Benson and break the engagement. But the engagement had not been broken.

"Do you both have to nurse Miss Freer?" Mr. Benson had asked wistfully over the telephone.

"N—no," said Cynthia. "I have begged mother to let me do it, but you see Aunt Lizzie isn't speaking to me today, which makes it awkward."

"Well, since you are in disgrace, why can't you play with me?" he begged. "You promised to row me over to the island some time. Why not do this afternoon?"

Cynthia's heart leaped at the prospect. She loved to prowl around the island, where she and Barney had played as children. It would be such fun to show Mr. Benson the Pirate's Den and the dam which they had spent half a summer in building. The day was perfect for a picnic.

"Hadn't we better wait until some day when mother can go?" she asked, adding almost in the same breath, "only I am afraid we could never get her into a rowboat!"

"Funny little mouse, isn't she?" Mr. Benson's voice softened perceptibly. "Never mind. We will plan something special for her next week. Today it is the island. I shall be out on the five train."

Mrs. Freer was delighted with the plan. "It will be a lovely chance for you to really know each other," she said. "He's always liked you and said charming things about you, but I've never felt you really appreciated him. If you will only be your own sweet self and not scratchy and provoking I know you'll like him."

"But I do already," insisted Cynthia. "I think he's almost too good to be true."

Society Defies Cold to Play Being Venetians

Twelfth Night Ball Is Gay Spectacle.

Society played gaily at being 18th century Venetians last night at the Twelfth Night ball purported to be given by M. Jacques Casanova at the Ridotto. The Ridotto was the high-up ballroom of the Stevens hotel disguised in gaudy draperies of red, green, rose, purple, yellow, and orange, with the tall arched windows curtained in panels of midnight blue velvet and applique with silver oilcloth in a conventional canal design of lamps, rockets, and bridges. Vivid lights shrouded in batiked silk illuminated the scene which didn't begin to be peopled with the costumed crowd of 500 fashionables until after midnight. The musicians were attired in bright brocaded tunics and black tri-cornered hats.

Among the first of the Twelve Knights who were responsible for this glorified subscription dance was John W. Root in the flowing red robes of a cardinal.

Miss Ines de Soriano's costume was one of the most spectacular there. She wore a billowy, full skirted frock, with an orange bodice, and skirt of rainbow ruffles, a tricorn draped in gold lace, a white wig, and long black suede gloves.

Mrs. Ogden T. McClurg impersonated Venice, the "pearl of the Adriatic," in a black sequin gown dripping with pearls and a black ostrich plume cap fastened to her head with a pearl band. Mrs. James Ward Thorne was a nun in pale blue crêpe with a white wimple and long blue veil. Mrs. Howard Elting, in silver brocade, Mrs. Ralph James in black and silver, and Mrs. Orville Babcock in green moire were all ladies of the 18th century in wide skirted gowns, white wigs, and black lace face veils.

Mrs. Homer Dixon and Mrs. Paul Walker wore Juliet costumes, the former in blue and silver, the latter in pink and silver, with pearl Juliet caps. Mrs. I. Newton Perry's costume consisted of black satin trousers and gold brocaded jucket. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson were resplendent, he in full regimentals and she in a lemon yellow satin domino.

She wore also a tarlatan ruff and a silver cloth skull cap.

George W. Northrop was a street musician in white satin, and Mrs. Malcolm McAdoo a winning gypsy in scarlet and yellow. Mrs. Richard Henry Little was an Ethiopian page in full trousers and a huge turban, and Mr. Little in flaming scarlet musician's togs carried and played what was reported by him to be a flageolet.

Mrs. David W. Peck was a black satin harlequin, and Mrs. Arthur Dixon III. and Mrs. David Pope were in white satin panniered frocks with white wigs. Mrs. Henry Hooper Jr. wore black Spanish lace.

Many of the guests who arrived late previously had attended several of the large dinner dances given before the ball. Miss Harriett McLaughlin gave a dinner at the Casino, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wilder and the John F. Jelkes Jrs. had their party at the Saddle and Cycle.

Others attending included the David Adlers, the Donald M. Ryersons, the Warren Ripples, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Henry, Mr. and Mrs. W. Scott Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Alister H. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas, Harold F. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell Blair.

Still others were Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dewey Jr., Prince and Princess Michael Cantacuzene, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Stackpole, Thomas Furness, Mrs. Rayford Alley of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III., Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Forgan, Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Adams.

The Inquiring Reporter

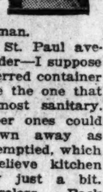
Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. J. L. Watson, Box 44, Matteson, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

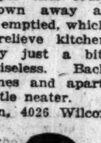
Would you rather have milk delivered in waxed paper containers, as they are proposing to do in New York, or in glass bottles as used at present?

The Answers.

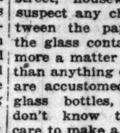


Mrs. M. A. Lane, 1639 Keystone avenue, housewife — We might try the paper containers for a change. At least it would save the trouble of washing the empty glass bottles, and it would avoid the necessity of returning the "empties" to the milkman.

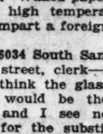
Harry Hansen, 4881 St. Paul avenue, builder—I suppose the preferred container would be the one that is the most sanitary. The paper ones could be thrown away as soon as emptied, which would relieve kitchen drudgery just a bit. They would be noiseless. Back porches of many homes and apartments would look a little neater.



Mrs. Frances Martin, 4026 Wilcox street, housewife — I suspect any choice between the paper and the glass containers is more a matter of habit than anything else. We are accustomed to the glass bottles, and I don't know that we care to make a change. Waxed paper might be affected by high temperatures in summer and impart a foreign flavor to the milk.



Edward M. Carney, 6034 South Sangamon street, clerk—I should think the glass bottles would be the better, and I see no reason for the substitution of paper containers. If the paper is waterproofed with wax or any other substance, the chances are the milk would absorb something of its flavor.



Miss Teresa Pachter, 2158 Barry avenue, real estate—I never have seen the paper containers, but I believe the glass ones we have are satisfactory. There may be advantages in the paper containers for the dairy companies. Anyhow, they might give the paper ones a trial.

Booth to Fight Salvation Army Ouster Scheme

Gets Council's Demand and Retains Lawyer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Gen. Bramwell Booth today was informed by a delegation of seven of the decision of the high council of the Salvation Army to demand his resignation. He postponed his answer until Monday, when it is expected he will begin a stiff fight to retain control of the great religious organization founded by his father.

The delegation motored to his house in Southwold, Norfolk. The general, who had been taken downstairs for the meeting, was carried back to bed again on account of his great weakness. He then received the delegates in his bedroom, where one after another shook hands, prayed for a blessing and read a sentence of the deposition, which cannot become effective under the army constitution without the general's consent.

Gen. Booth has retained Attorney Jowitt, an eminent lawyer, to represent him, and it is expected the attorney will appear before the high council Monday.

Another development today was the call by Commander Evangeline Booth, sister of the general and chief of the American section of the army, who visited her brother's home for the first time since her arrival in England. She is said to be the favorite of the high council for the succession.

An Associated Press dispatch from Wooster, O., printed in THE TRIBUNE of Jan. 10, referred to a case being tried before "Judge G. A. Fearn." It should have been Judge G. A. Starn.

An item in THE TRIBUNE yesterday regarding a collision between a street car and a bus stated that the bus turned over. The bus was not overturned.

An item concerning the custody of June Meissner, 4 year old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Meissner, stated that June was being cared for by Mrs. Frank Gardner, 1500 East 65th street. This was an error. Mrs. Anne Gardner, 1501 East 65th street, was caring for June at that time.

Mayor of Tel-Aviv Tells Chicagoans He Has Hard Job

It is easy to govern a city like Chicago, but Tel-Aviv, Palestine, is different.

Tel-Aviv's mayor, as unknown to Chicago as Chicago was to him until he was welcomed at the La Salle street station yesterday morning by Mayor Thompson's committee of aldermen, and whizzed in official style with motorcycle police escort to the Bismarck hotel, came to that conclusion late in the afternoon after the official city luncheon and visit to the mayor.

Tel-Aviv is a remarkable city—and so is Chicago, for that matter. But Chicago is years old, while Tel-Aviv only yesterday was a strip of desert forsaken and forgotten by all the world. And now—the visiting mayor's eyes gleamed proudly—it is the first modern, 100 per cent Jewish city of the world, a city of 40,000.

"Chicago's problems are those of administration," declared David Bloch. Dismayed by halting English he switched to his native Hebrew tongue. "But in my city my problems are both that of administration and the actual building of the city economically, intellectually, culturally.

"For Tel-Aviv, a bare desert twenty years ago, is now the great laboratory for human future of the whole world. Replacing a feudal system as primitive as was that of the American Indian, the Jewish labor movement in Palestine is rehabilitating the country agriculturally and economically. A foundation of modern standardized life is being established as in America and Europe."

The labor situation in Palestine, Mayor Bloch stated, is much improved over the crisis of two years ago. "Then there were 3,500 unemployed, now there are less than 1,000. The gates of the country are open for a stream of immigration, and a new life on a high plane is about to be established," he said.

Mayor Bloch, who is in America in the interests of a campaign to gain funds for the purchase of modern machinery for agriculture, has been one of the foremost leaders of the Zionist movement.

"When I entered Tel-Aviv twelve years ago there were but 60 houses and a population of 1,500 persons," he said. "Now the city has a population of 40,000, and has 3,500 dwellings valued at $30,000,000. We have no mortgages for the simple reason there are no mortgage banks. One of our problems now is how to get such banks which would put our city on a sound financial and economic basis."

Mayor Bloch was entertained at a luncheon at the Covenant club by Ald. Leonard J. Grossman, Eli Frankenthal, E. J. Frankhauser, O. F. Nelson and Albert J. Horan. He then was taken to the city hall where he was officially welcomed to the city by Mayor Thompson. Tomorrow night a banquet will be held in the visitor's honor by the Chicago Committee for Palestine Workers at Golde's restaurant, 1127 South Halsted street, followed by a massmeeting at Temple Judea. Special functions will be given all week by various Jewish organizations of Chicago in honor of Mayor Bloch.

Claire Dux Sings Mozart Again with Symphony

The Civic Concert Group Gets Opera Melange.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

When Claire Dux and Frederick Stock lay musical plans together, the result is likely to be more than commonly engaging. She was the soloist and he the conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert yesterday.

She introduced a Mozart aria which was new to these programs, he revived Mahler's Fourth Symphony from its five years' silence, so that she might sing the soprano solo of the last act. She brought in a pair of Mahler songs, likewise new to the symphony records, and also Els' Lullaby from Schreker's opera, "Der Schatzgraeber," which was almost new, and he preceded the list with that uncommonly agreeable suite, Mozart's "Les Petits Riens."

It was an uncommonly agreeable program. If it had not been for the last number of the afternoon it would have been just about a perfect program of its kind. That was Elgar's "In the South," a composition bearing the longest and most detailed program notes—not by Mr. Borowski—and deserving them the least of any work of the season.

But Mme. Dux is a Mozart singer beyond compare, even though this aria, "Wehe mir! Ist's Wahrheit oder träum ich?" hardly will classify among the most inspired of his works. And the Mahler symphony never was more enjoyable than Mme. Dux and Mr. Stock made it yesterday. One thinks of it as being slightly square-toed in manner, as though Mahler, if he had been a bit more adroit and witty, would have liked to write "Der Rosenkavalier," but its interpreters were completely dexterous in avoiding its angles and emphasizing its nice tunes. Anyway, Mahler wrote some charming songs, as Mme. Dux proceeded to demonstrate as soon as the intermission was over.

She was an exquisite artist in all her appearances, not only exquisite but greatly popular, and there never was an artist meriting popularity more than she.

The gala performance of opera at the Auditorium last night had a twofold mission. One was to be host to the delegates of some 130 civic music associations of the south and middle west, now in conference in the city. The other was to display to these guests, likewise to a great many Chicagoans, some specimen pages from three of the representative and best performed operas of the present season.

Wherefore Coe Glade, whose flaming Carmen a few weeks ago put her in the position, with those who know their "Carmen," of being the most promising exponent of the part in two decades, demonstrated that it was no flash in the pan by doing the second act over again. Cesare Formichi was again the Escamillo of splendid song, and Antonio Cortis scored a high mark by taking the part of Don José.

Edith Mason, the ideal Marguerite, sang the garden scene of "Faust" with Charles Hackett, who excels as Faust, and Virgilio Lazzari, who was new as Mephistopheles and has the finest voice of any of them. Finally, Cyrena Van Gordon, Charles Marshall, and Mr. Formichi appeared in the last scene of "Samson and Delilah," a performance of gorgeous vocalism. Giorgio Polacco, a great expert of opera, was the conductor, proving that three different manners of opera may be three fine performances.

Yankees Show More Interest in the British Industry Expositions

A marked increase in the attendance of Chicago merchandise buyers at the annual British Industries Fair at London and Birmingham, England, was forecast yesterday by W. H. Gallienne, British vice consul in Chicago, on the basis of advices from England concerning the expansion of exhibit space and the number of reservations.

The exposition has been held each year since the war, for the special benefit of overseas trade. This year already has attracted more than six times as many acceptances from overseas firms as in 1928, Mr. Gallienne stated. He added that sixty Chicago buyers were present at the fair last year, and that there was every indication the number would be considerably augmented. The dates of the current fair are from Feb. 18 to March 1.

Floor space for the present exposition, the vice consul stated, already has reached 300,000 square feet, while the total extent of exhibits last year was but 257,000. Every phase of British manufacturing is represented, the lighter trades exhibiting at White City, London, and the heavier at Castle Bromwich, Birmingham.

Only manufacturers of articles are allowed to exhibit, each trade being segregated to facilitate the work of the buyers.

U. S. Music Chances Lauded by Marion Claire of Opera

Popular belief that only foreign artists can achieve success on the American concert or operatic stage was contradicted yesterday by Marion Claire, Chicago Civic Opera star, speaking before the National Civic Music associations on the second day of their three day conference at the Palmer house.

"In the past, American singers lacked the proper training," Miss Claire said. "But the country has progressed so that now any American with the necessary qualifications, education, and willingness to work, can succeed as well as a foreigner." Miss Claire was born in Lake Bluff, although she spent three years studying and singing in Vienna and Berlin before returning last September to sing before Chicago audiences.

"To have a truly American opera, it must be sung in English," she said. "In Europe the opera belongs to the people."

A European artist's opinion of the culture of the United States was expressed by Miss Grace Hoist, Norwegian soprano, formerly with the Civic Opera company of Chicago, who said: "American audiences are equal to those of any European country in their appreciation of all that is good in music."

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. John Sherman Hoyt of New York have announced the engagement of their elder daughter, Miss Helen Phelps Hoyt, to Dr. Byron Stookey of that city. He is the son of Mrs. Lyman Stookey of Belleville, Ill., and Los Angeles, and the late Dr. Stookey. Miss Hoyt is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Hoyt and of Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes and the late Mr. Stokes.

Indians' Ragtime Dance Upsets Opera in Brazil

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAO PAULO, Jan. 11.—The Italian Opera company played an opera by the famed Brazilian author, Carlos Gomez, called "Il Guarany," in the Municipal theater last night.

All went well until the act in the camp of the Aymore Indians, when dancing began, and, to the complete surprise of the audience, the Aymores performed a wild black bottom.

Some of the audience began shouting. One woman, thinking the Indians crazy, ran out. It was disclosed that the person responsible was Sady Cabral, who is the opera company's director and admires eccentric dances. The Diario De Sao Paulo editorializes, "Let us respect Gomez's memory."

Hails Hindenburg as Big Aid to Peace of the World

President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany, after whom the famous "Hindenburg line" was named in the world war, was hailed yesterday as the defender of youth in the world movement to prevent war. The newer picture was given before members of the Executives club at the Hotel Sherman. The speaker was Dr. Ludwig Mueller, German college professor and now a guest professor at Northwestern university.

"This wonderful old man," Dr. Mueller said of Hindenburg, "who is at the head of the young republic has resigned himself to the new state of things and has no ideas of revenge. He is the best guarantor of European peace, not only for the time of his presidency but for the future generation."

Palm Beach Younger Set Cages Beauty Test Judges

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Under a set of rules and regulations especially drafted for the occasion, the winter society colony here experienced something new today, a bathing beauty contest so exclusive that even the judges were locked in "chicken coops."

The contest was held behind the high walls and guarded gates of the ocean boulevard estate of Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Bobyne of Beverly Farms, Mass., and the entrants were from the leaders of the younger set in the colony.

If the judges selected a "Miss Four Hundred" they kept their selection secret from the general public.

Some of those taking part in the the program were: Mrs. Paul Bonner, representing "Miss Switzerland"; Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche, "Miss Arkansas"; Mrs. Howard Major, "Miss Massachusetts"; Mrs. John Emerson (Anita Loos), as "Miss California"; Mrs. Blaine Webb, "Miss Montana"; Mrs. Frederick Proctor, "Miss England"; Mrs. John Charles Thomas, "Miss Kelsey City"; Mrs. E. Leonard Beard, "Miss New York"; Mrs. Lester Pyron, "Miss Alaska," and Mrs. Harvey Schaffer, "Miss Pennsylvania."

Wife of Composer of "Love of 3 Kings" to Be Guest Here

BY THALIA

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers are to give a buffet supper party from 5 to 7 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at their apartment at 1100 Lake Shore drive for Mme. Italo Montemezzi. Mme. Montemezzi, who is the wife of the composer of "The Love of Three Kings," an opera scheduled to be sung tomorrow afternoon, is to arrive today, and will attend the opera with Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers.

Mary Garden, who sings the star rôle, also is to be one of the special guests at the supper party, to which several of the other opera stars also have been invited.

The many friends that Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gallienne have made in Chicago in the last few years during Mr. Gallienne's term of office as British vice consul are lamenting the imminent departure of these charming young Britishers.

Premonitory information about the Junior league's presentation of "Treasure Island," opening at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Harris theater for a season of Saturday morning performances, prepares us to expect all manner of ferocity. Piratical costumes, fierce makeups of the mustachio and long tangled hair variety, tremendous boots and fiendish swords have been acquired by the cast which has been schooled in the art of being bold and bad on the stage, the better to put over the spirit of the adventure play. Some of the leading parts are to be taken by Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, Mrs. John P. Howland, Mrs. Norman MacLeish, and Mrs. George Haskell.

A large throng of fashionables will assemble this afternoon at St. Chrysostom's to witness the wedding of Miss Ruth Keeley, daughter of James Keeley of 223 East Delaware place to Luther S. Hammond Jr. The ceremony will be performed at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. E. Reginald Williams, dean of the diocese of Milwaukee, and Dr. H. P. Almon Abbott, rector of St. Chrysostom's, and will be followed by a reception at the Casino. The bride's sisters, Mrs. Graham Aldis and Mrs. Cabot Brown of San Francisco, will be matrons of honor, and her niece, Mary Cornelia Aldis, will be flower girl. The bridesmaids include Mrs. John J. Boyd and Mrs. Theodore Romaine of New York City, Mrs. Otis L. Hubbard, Mrs. Ralph I. Farwell, Mrs. Hugh R. Wilson, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Miss Elinor Farwell, and Mrs. Henry N. Rowley.

Walter G. Preston of Omaha, Neb., will act as Mr. Hammond's best man and the ushers will be James F. Burns Jr. of Denver, Colo.; Bayard Schieffelein, Huntington D. Sheldon, Alfred H. Hunt Jr., and Elgood M. Lufkin, all of New York City; Alfred M. Wilson of Boston, Mass.; Dr. Cabot Brown of San Francisco, John Stuart Coonley Jr., Graham Aldis, and William G. Noble of Chicago, and John H. and Lyman B. McBride of Highland Park. Besides the members of the wedding party, the out-of-town guests here for the ceremony include Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Murphy, who are visiting the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther S. Hammond, of 237 East Walton place.

Mr. Hammond and his bride will postpone the business of hunting for an apartment until they return from their honeymoon at Nassau in the Bahamas.

Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. W. Scott Linn, and Cyrena Van Gordon are to pour at the tea to open an exhibit of ten Chicago artists in the Marshall Field picture galleries this afternoon. One of the interesting items in the exhibition, which is modern in character, is the portrait that Tennessee Mitchell Anderson has done of Mrs. Waller Borden.

Mrs. Samuel P. S. Newton of the Seneca hotel is giving a tea in her apartment tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Frank R. Wheeler, who is leaving soon to reside in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Chicago board of the Northwestern University settlement will meet at the residence of Mrs. James R. Cardwell of 1540 Lake Shore drive next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. James Offield, president of the board, will preside at the business meeting. After that the members will ply their needles for the boys of the settlement. During the tea hour Miss Harriet Vittum is to tell about the distribution of the 128 Christmas boxes.

Edgar A. Bancroft Memorial Planned in Tokio Hospital

Episcopalians in the United States have set a goal of $2,656,500 to be raised toward a $5,000,000 international medical center at St. Luke's hospital, Tokio, Japan, it was announced yesterday. The campaign, authorized by the national council of that church, will start on Feb. 3 and continue a week.

A committee now being organized under Dr. Frank Billings will provide a fund for a memorial to Edgar A. Bancroft, late ambassador to Japan, and a Chicagoan. The proposed memorial would be a surgical suite in the hospital to cost $25,000.

Nearly $500,000 already has been contributed toward the church's share of the medical center fund, it was stated. Episcopal women plan to raise $1,000,000 of the fund under the chairmanship of Mrs. Henry P. Davison of New York.

When He Heard a Friend "Sass" His Mother He Stopped

Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

Some time ago a letter came to me from a young mother who was unhappy and discouraged. Her little son had suddenly learned to be impudent to his mother. She talked to him about it and tried various devices, but nothing did any good. He kept right on, and his mother began to wonder if he was going to grow up that way.

Then, a few days ago, came this second letter:

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: It might interest you to know how my problem was solved. I was quite discouraged because nothing I said seemed to make any impression on my boy. Then one day he brought one of his 2 year old playmates into the house with him, and when I spoke to her she was quite sassy.

"Quick as a wink my boy whirled on her and said, 'Don't you talk that way to my mother! Don't you know she doesn't like it?' Since that day I have had very little trouble with disrespectfulness.

"Sometimes it seems to take the actions of another child to make them realize how it looks and sounds when they do the same things. And O, what a relief it is to know that the things one has been repeating over and over again have really made an impression on their little minds! I firmly believe that if they have been taught right while young they will meet the emergencies of life in the right way. But —they have got to be told."

You never can tell what is going to turn the tide with children. You may talk and explain and show you are hurt and then start all over again without apparently making any impression. And then, all of a sudden, some little thing will happen and it seems as though just as suddenly all your work bears fruit. But it isn't as sudden as it looks. Your efforts haven't been wasted—the leaven has been working all the time. Still, I don't know of anything more salutary to a child than hearing some other child say the very same thing he has been reproved for saying.

We have to work on faith so much with children. And we have to allow somewhat, too, for the fact that, like the heavenly bodies, they pass through phases.

Special Lingerie for Evening Gowns

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—We have always had an ecru-ed interest in lingerie, but this year it is even more so. Ecru lace, especially in the Alencon variety, is omnipresent in lingerie modes of the hour and sets off every conceivable color.

In the above model we show the effectiveness of ecru lace in combination with black satin—the two allied to form just the sort of combination we need to wear under our black evening gown. The arrangement of the rounded joining panels of material is exceedingly attractive and it achieves, of course, that molded effect over the hips which is today such a necessary feature of all our foundations.

The evening gown demands its own specially cut lingerie. For it the ordinary brassiere will not serve any more satisfactorily than will the everyday slip. Both of these have to be cut with due regard to the low decolletage of the gown. And both must have shoulder straps in perfect accordance with the upper strata.

As a matter of fact, the clothes many fashionable women wear under their evening toilettes are far from oppressive. A brassiere, a girdle, and a pair of step-ins—these mock the redundancy of our old time underpinning of muslin. In many cases the slip is in one with the gown, but there are, of course, separate evening slips.

These are usually of the princess cut and have the deep V or U in the back.

Sure Fire Beauty Formula Is Free—Get Plenty of Sleep

by Alice Hegan Rice

Tell the average woman that you heard about a formula that would refresh her skin in one application—a formula dug from the archives of some great beauty laboratory—and you would never know a moment's peace until you found out for her where it might be obtained.

Tell her that sleep is the greatest little skin rejuvenator and preservative and she'll yawn at you. That's the worst about these homely truths. We get so used to hearing them that we forget to practice them. If sleep, for instance, were some rare ointment, difficult to obtain, we'd be dashing around earning money to get a few grams of it. But being what it is—something you can have for closing your eyes and tucking yourself away at a reasonable hour—it has lost its selling appeal in the beauty market.

If you are one of those persons who sit around until all hours, remarking surprisedly about 1 o'clock every night that you had no idea it was so late—try one of those sleeping treatments once. Then try 'em twice, and three times, and see if your face isn't ironed out of a number of shadows and lines.

Invariably the woman who finds going to bed a terrible effort is the one in the family who needs most to go early. The first step toward making sleep a beautifying process is to adopt regular hours and stick to them as many nights of the week as you can. It is just as foolish to wait until you are worn out to go to bed as it is to wait till you are starving before you eat.

The woman who has an eye on the future of her looks starts to her room while she is still able to take a lively interest in the toilet performance that should precede the final leap between the blankets.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This smart version of a youthful style is designed for the woman with an average full figure, and uses two materials or colors with excellent effect. The surplice bodice and the low placed circular skirt, attached to a hip yoke with a dip-in-the-front, accents a slender line. Any of the smart materials shown in the shops will make up attractively.

The pattern, 2634, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2 yards of 40 inch plain material with 1¾ yards of 40 inch figured and 6¾ yards of binding.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscript returned.

Leaving Out the Consonants.

At a small eastern college the girls in my dormitory took huge delight in speaking without consonants. The effect was startling and completely unintelligible to any one who wasn't in the know.

One day my chum and I went into a confectionery store to get some potato chips. Without thinking, I demanded, "A ie o o oao 4," much to the clerk's amazement.

However, to my horror, my chum, with disarming composure, chirped up: "She says she wants a dime's worth of potato chips. She's got a cleft palate"—a remark which didn't alleviate my embarrassment in the least! R. J. P.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A. N.: HIGH-HEELED SHOES for business purposes are not in good taste, nor are they good for the feet. The high heel should be worn for dress. The lower heel is more sensible and appropriate for wear during the day, and especially for one on her feet as much as you are.

F. R.: SIX HOURS SLEEP EACH night is not sufficient. You need eight hours of sleep, and in a well ventilated room. Loss of sleep is responsible for the deep lines under your eyes.

U. P.: FOR SCALY EYELIDS, take a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda to one glass of warm water. Apply with small pieces of absorbent cotton. It will dissolve the scales.

Wise the Person Who Waits For and Knows the Right Moment

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Blessed are they in reward who know the right moment for everything: The right moment to touch the boss for a raise; the right moment to tell hubby the bank balance is overdrawn; the right moment to ask him if he'll go over to Smith's for a game of bridge; the right moment to ask him if he still loves one; the right moment to talk, and the right moment to remain silent.

What a world of happiness hinges upon that right moment!

You could call a husband down for some offense. At the right moment you might use the identical words you would use at a wrong moment, but what a difference in the reaction on both him and yourself.

But how to tell it, if you're not born with an intuitive sense?

We haven't, unfortunately, a clock to tick off the news that the right moment will be around in a jiffy, nor to warn us that a wrong one approaches. For purposes of guidance there are two zero hours when silence is the better part of wisdom, if you have something up your sleeve to interest husbands in—the pre-breakfast hour and the pre-dinner hour.

Every wife is familiar, either through experience or by the word of a friendly counselor, with the injunction against springing any money spending suggestions in the early morning or at that twilight hour immediately preceding the full dinner plate. Nor is the wisdom of silence suggested for bad news about money only; any irritating information is taboo. And requests for favors were always better postponed until good humor is fortified with an appetizing meal.

There are right moments for dispensing favors, as well as for asking them. A right moment for kissing, a right moment for praise, and a right moment for sacrifice. But no outsider can tell a wife or husband when that precise moment is due. That is something two people closely knit in domestic companionship should make it their business to determine.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Jim, 5, had been over to see his sister's week old baby. Upon his return he was asked what he thought of the baby.

"Humph," came the disgusted retort, "he must be a sissy. They say he's a boy and then he lets them dress him in skirts 'stead of pants!"

W. G.

Jean had been playing with her little playmate one day, when suddenly they quarreled and Betty started home.

M'LARNIN WHIPS GLICK; FANS HONOR RICKARD

ARMOUR SHOOTS 3 UNDER PAR TO TOP COAST GOLF

Three Tied for 2d Place.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 11.—(AP)—The hazards of Old Man Par, scattered over the long course of the Riviera Country club, rebuffed the bids of all but one of the great field which engaged today in the opening round of the $10,000 Los Angeles open.

The veteran Tommy Armour of Washington, D. C., who in 1927 held the national open championship, alone of the 130 professionals and amateurs, was able to drub the old gentleman, clubbing him from his entrenchments with a brilliant 68, three strokes under a perfect score.

This card gave Armour a three stroke lead over the field. That distance behind were Horton Smith, youthful Joplin, Mo., sensation, George Von Elm, Detroit amateur, and MacDonald Smith, the defending titleist from the Lakeville Country club, Great Neck, Long Island.

The par-four second hole, 445 yards in length and requiring precision and skill in stroking, proved a stumbling block for "Mac" Smith. The Scot used six strokes before his shot was holed.

Leading scores were:

Tommy Armour, Washington, D. C.	33	35	68
MacDonald Smith, Great Neck, L.I.	36	35	71
Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo.	34	37	71

Their total for the 36 holes of play was 141, Sarazen taking 74 in the morning, and a 67 to set a new course record in the afternoon. Hampton's card showed a 71 in the morning and a 70 on the second 18.

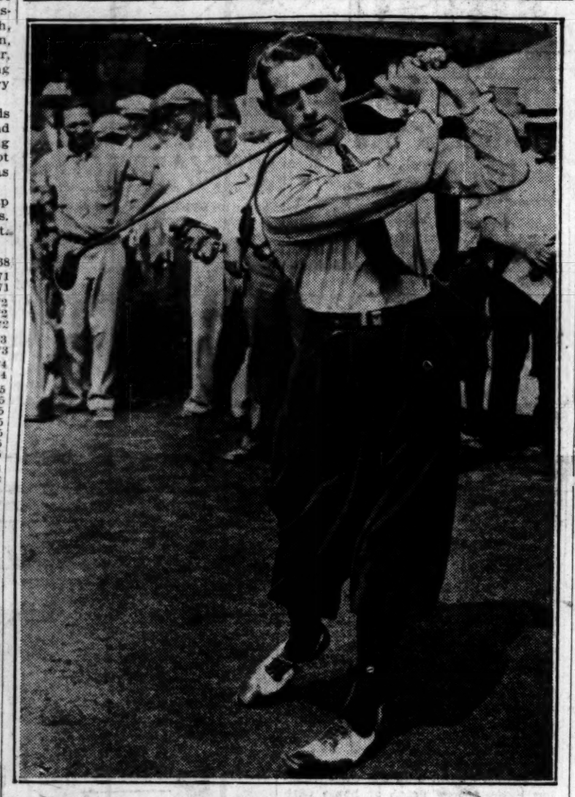
SHOOTS FOR BIG STAKE



Tommy Armour leads $10,000 Los Angeles golf tournament with score of 68, three strokes under par. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

Griffith Points Out Evils of A. A. U. Control of Athletics

Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commissioner, will point out in an address at the annual convention of the National Amateur Athletic federation in Washington, D. C., today reasons why colleges are not in sympathy with the A. A. U. system of athletic government.

Unequal representation is one of the alleged evils of A. A. U. administration, which Mr. Griffith plans to stress in his talk. In support of his argument he lists the names of several clubs belonging to the A. A. U. in the Chicago district which do little or nothing to promote athletic activity in their communites. Each club, Mr. Griffith states, has the same voice in A. A. U. affairs as a college conspicuous for its promotions of sport.

Lists "Voting" Organizations.

In the Central association, Mr. Griffith points out, are found listed such organizations as:

[1] Capper and Capper Collegians. Capper & Capper is a men's furnishing store in Chicago that a few years ago maintained a basketball team which was openly charged as being composed largely of professionals.

[2] Chicago lodge of Elks, No. 4. So far as can be learned this lodge No. 4 has not for a number of years promoted any inter-club athletics.

[4] McKinley Park Athletic club. McKinley park is one of the city's parks and playgrounds.

[5] National Home Athletic association, Soldier's home, Milwaukee, Wis. So far as can be learned this club has never promoted any athletics excepting a few years ago it sponsored a baseball team.

[6] Twenty-fourth Ward Democratic organization, Chicago.

[7] West Allis Owls club, Milwaukee. Last year this club ran one or two boxing shows.

[8] South Milwaukee Athletic club. A small group of boxing promoters, with no athletic facilities. Is probably nonexistent now.

The Case of the Big Ten.

"If the ten colleges which compose the Western conference, popularly known as the "Big Ten," were to join the Central Association of the A. A. U. they would have no more voice in matters of government than clubs such as those listed above," Mr. Griffith will say. "Likewise, the Notre Dame club of Chicago, which has never been conspicuous in promoting athletics, would be permitted to cast the same number of votes as the University of Notre Dame, whose athletics are famous throughout the country."

Eleanor Holm Sets New Mark in Medley Swim

She broke her own former record by 3 3-5 seconds, established last year at Buffalo.

MAROONS WILL BATTLE BADGER CAGERS TONIGHT

Purple Team to Invade Purdue Gym.

Games Tonight

Wisconsin at Chicago.
Michigan at Iowa.
Illinois at Ohio.
Indiana at Minnesota.
Northwestern at Purdue.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Though the Western conference basketball season has hardly got under way and only nine of the sixty games on the schedule have been played, seven of the ten teams have felt the sting of defeat. Tonight, a week after the season opened, at least one of the three undefeated teams will fall, and perhaps two of them.

Those nine games have given definite proof of the suspicion before the season opened that this year's basketball race would be a scramble with any team in the conference capable of upsetting any other. Michigan's two victories over teams as strong as Wisconsin and Northwestern, the Purple's defeats, and Indiana's loss to Illinois were the most startling reversal of form, but it only goes to show "there are no upsets in basketball."

Iowa Plays Michigan.

All of the ten teams battle conference opponents tonight, with the triple starred game at Iowa City, where the undefeated Michigan and Iowa quintets clash. The game should be a thriller, for both teams are big and powerful. To Michigan it is a particular test, for if the Wolverines can get by the Hawkeyes they will establish themselves as favorites for the championship. The Wolverines do not play Purdue, Indiana, or Chicago this year, and their three strongest opponents are Wisconsin, Northwestern, whom they have already defeated, and Iowa.

Michigan's combination of four huskies and one speedy little chap for quick breaks was great against Northwestern and Wisconsin, both of which were favored to beat the Wolverines. Truskowski, Orwig, Chapman, and McCoy are the big fellows, while Danny Rose is a Dead Eye Dick midget. Iowa probably will be stronger against Michigan than it was in defeating Ohio State, as the regular guards, who have been ill, are likely to get back in the game, but the Hawkeyes have so much powerful reserve material that they'll probably substitute frequently.

Purdue, the only other team with a clean slate, plays Northwestern at Lafayette. This was expected to be one of the Boilermakers' toughest games, but with Northwestern in a slump, Murphy dropping the ball into the basket with care, and Capt. Cummins about ready to resume his regular job at forward, it would seem Purdue has the best chance of any to remain undefeated after tonight.

Maroons and Badgers.

The game at Bartlett gym, Chicago against Wisconsin, promises to be a close game of ragged basketball, for neither team is especially skilled in a smooth working attack. Chicago depends on fight and the shooting ability of Capt. Gist and Kaplan, while Wisconsin has a big, rugged, but unpolished team that found Michigan too much for them.

The Illini, who upset Indiana, travel to Columbus to match shots with Ohio State, which upset Northwestern, so that's another one of those take your choice games, though Illinois seems to have the edge. Indiana will try to retrieve a showing decidedly unimpressive for a team of veterans who tied Purdue for the championship last year at Minnesota. They should win this one, as the Gophers were comparatively easy for Wisconsin.

Senior Golfers to Hold Annual Dinner Tonight

The Illinois Seniors' Golf association, that group of lads from 50 years of age upward into the 80's, which gets together twice each summer for a golf tournament, will hold its annual dinner at the Chicago Athletic association at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Back in the early '80s Leroy Payne of the Palmer House livery established a horses' home at Chebanse, 65 miles south of Chicago. He purchased 1,200 acres of land two miles northwest of the village and there built an elaborate system of stables and paddocks. These stables were furnished with water from a central system.

Chicago's street car system then was operated by horse power and for years carloads of crippled, battered horses were shipped weekly to the home to be cared for and enjoy a period of rest and recuperation. Primarily a business enterprise paying good dividends, the humane element involved added greatly to Mr. Payne's prestige as a liveryman.

Many driving horses owned by Chicago's élite also were shipped to the home for the winter. These horses were exercised on a quarter-mile track under cover during bad weather. A show spot was a box stall whose walls were set with plate glass mirrors and whose doors and windows were draped with silk curtains.

During the last years of its existence the home was the abiding place of the famous Joe Patchen and Jack Curry. In the end, fire destroyed most of the buildings. The home's most interesting products today are merely corn and oats.

B. E. B.

In the good old days, another kid and I would get up at 3 o'clock on cold Sunday mornings, walk from Erie and May streets to the Times and Tribune buildings to get our Sunday morning papers, which were not folded, but came in straight sheets. I got the Times and my kid partner THE TRIBUNE. Then we went into the Washington street tunnel out of the wind to fold them. If we were lucky enough to sell out with a profit of 40 or 50 cents each we called it a good day.

N. M. Nelson.

In the Lighthouse.

All silent is my ocean home
And only great waves rim it,
And reach to where the horizon
Forms pathless waters' limit.

From out this lonely, quiet lighthouse
The searchlight rays are streaming,
Tracing the desolate black night,
With liquid silver streaming.

I seem to hear the shipwrecked' cries
Whose lives last seconds only;
And I am thankful for refuge
Though in a lighthouse lonely.

Way Back Whens.

Way Back Whens have been appearing in The Wake for about ten years. It always is interesting to note those most frequently repeated. One of the more common is that of when the circus came to town, a man rose ahead of the parade and called "Hold your horses, the elephants are coming." This incident appears to have remained all the years in the memory of many Helpers.

MIAMI FIGHT IS UP TO SHARKEY; CAREY AT HELM

Will Discuss Terms Today in Boston.

New York, Jan. 11.—(AP)—After appearing to be headed for the rocks, negotiations to carry on the last fight Tex Rickard scheduled, seemed safe and headed for the port of Miami Beach tonight.

With William F. Carey, vice president and former right hand man of the late promoter, at the helm for the first time, the main deck of the Garden teemed with activity designed to land Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling in the ring in the southern resort on Feb. 27.

One half of the match is safe, Carey announced, after long distance telephone conversation with "Pa" Stribling, father-manager of the Georgia youngster. Tonight Carey headed for Boston to talk definite terms with Sharkey and the latter's manager, Johnny Buckley. Upon the outcome of this confab depends the fate of the match.

Sharkey May Balk.

With no legal contract left by Rickard as a basis for negotiations, Carey undertook to straighten out the tangle over formal terms and financial agreements. So far as Stribling is concerned, any agreement the Garden officials make is satisfactory, Carey said, emphasizing that the Georgian desired first of all to go through with the match, even at some sacrifice. Sharkey, who was understood to have been guaranteed $100,000 by Rickard, may be more difficult to swing into line.

Jack Dempsey probably will handle the actual reins of promotion, if Carey succeeds in completing the business arrangements. The former champion today had a long talk with the man who now seems to have taken over complete command of the Garden destinies. At the end of the conference, Carey, impressed by Dempsey's business sagacity, declared the latter would be a good man to put in charge at Miami Beach.

BLOCK WOULD BACK BOUT.

New York, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Paul Block, sportsman and newspaper owner, has offered to finance the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami Beach if the Madison Square Garden corporation decides not to go through with it. Block made the offer today in a telegram to James I. Bush, vice president of the Madison Square Garden corporation. The telegram follows:

"I have just read a report in the newspapers that the Madison Square Garden corporation may not wish to go through with the Sharkey-Stribling bout arranged by the late Tex Rickard to take place in Miami next month. If this information is correct, I shall be very glad to be permitted to finance the bout with the understanding that all profits resulting from it are to go to charity. I would also expect each contestant to give 25 per cent of his purse to charity. I would desire a committee of prominent men to be appointed to disperse the moneys to such charities as may be selected. Will you please let me hear from you. [Signed] PAUL BLOCK."

ILLINOIS RING, MAT SHOWS NET STATE $375,000

Since the boxing law went into effect on June 6, 1926, the state of Illinois has received $375,009.08 from boxing and wrestling shows staged in the state, according to the report issued yesterday by Paul Prehn, chairman of the commission. The public has spent more than five million dollars for tickets and nearly 5,000 boxers have attracted more than a million spectators through the turnstiles.

Rickard Wills Estate to Kin and Family

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—The will of the late George L. Tex Rickard, filed for probate in Surrogate's court today, leaves a major share of the promoter's estate to his widow and his daughter, Maxine Texas Rickard. No indication is given in the seven page document as to the value of the estate. Previous estimates, however, placed it around one million dollars.

His mother, his mother-in-law by a previous marriage, sisters, nieces, and nephews all share in the promoter's holdings. The will was dated March 13, 1928, and was drawn by Chadbourne, Stanchfield & Levy, lawyers, and was filed for probate by the New York Trust company as sole executor.

Fifty thousand dollars in cash, his real estate holdings in Florida, and all his personal effects go to his widow in lieu of dower under the provisions of the second paragraph of the will. His personal effects listed include automobiles, household goods, furniture, books, pictures, silverware, and his $50,000 yacht purchased recently from Walter P. Chrysler.

Remembers Mother-in-Law.

His holdings in the South American Land and Cattle company of Paraguay are to be divided into shares and distributed equally among three sisters, three nieces, and four nephews.

He next provides for his mother, Mrs. Lou J. Adams of Seattle, Wash., to whom he bequeathes such sums as will yield $6,000 a year, payable in quarterly installments. Upon the death of Mrs. Adams the principal and corpus of the fund is to go to his daughter.

The last provision of the document provides for the establishment of a trust fund for his daughter, Maxine Texas Rickard. All the rest, residue, and remainder of the promoter's estate, real, personal, and mixed, shall form a part of this fund.

Gets Half at Thirty-five.

The will further stipulates one-quarter of the principal sum shall be paid over to his daughter when she reaches the age of 25 years. An additional quarter will be paid when she reaches 35 years of age. The remaining 50 per cent of the fund will remain in trust until her death, after which the trustees are instructed to pay the principal to her survivors, share and share alike.

GARDEN STILLED AS OLD FRIEND EULOGIZES TEX

20,000 Give Dempsey Big Reception.

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Jimmy McLarnin may no longer be a legitimate lightweight, but he's still a dangerous fighter and a terrific puncher and he can still turn a few flipflops after going through ten rounds of torrid, strength sapping fighting.

The coast Irishman demonstrated this tonight in Madison Square Garden, where he hammered out a decision over the rugged Joe Glick, Williamburg's contender for the lightweight title, in a battle which was savagely and bitterly fought from first bell to last and which sent close to 20,000 fight fans home arguing among themselves as to the merits of the verdict in McLarnin's favor. The receipts were $63,574.

McLarnin Wins Six Rounds.

McLarnin, fighting at his true weight, above the 135 pound notch, carried off six of the ten rounds in as impressive an exhibition of solid, destructive hitting as a local ring has furnished in some time. A less hardy fighter than Glick would have crumpled under the terrific rights and lefts and the smashing left hooks which McLarnin drove home to the body and face, head and jaw. That he did not succumb is a testimonial to the courage of the Brooklyn lad.

Glick carried the first session and gave a good account of himself in the fourth, seventh, and ninth rounds, but the remaining six sessions went to McLarnin. Particularly in the second session was the coast lad effective, for in this round he almost upset Glick with a barrage of rights to the jaw which had the Brooklyn lad in distress.

At the final bell the crowd greeted the verdict in McLarnin's favor with a mixed reception. Jeers went up from the Glick adherents and cheers from the admirers of McLarnin. But there could be no fault found with the decision, for while Glick boxed at times in a manner to make his rival appear awkward, McLarnin's savage fighting overcame his foe's combination of fighting and boxing.

Honor Rickard's Memory.

Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle's Negro lightweight, knocked out Eddie Guida, Harlem youngster, in the ninth round of the scheduled ten round semi-final.

An impressive tribute was paid the memory of Promoter Tex Rickard when the crowd sat mute while Joe Humphreys, Garden announcer, delivered a eulogy on the late leader of pugilism.

Just before the semi-final bout of the first fight show in the Garden since Rickard's death Jack Dempsey entered the ring and was introduced by Announcer Joe Humphries. After ten minutes of the wildest cheering Humphries raised his hands and the Garden stilled as Joe delivered his eulogy.

MILLER WHIPS GROGAN

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 11.—(AP)—After being on the verge of a knockout in the second round of his 10 round bout with Tony Grogan of Omaha, here tonight, Ray Miller, Chicago lightweight, staged an amazing comeback to stop Grogan in the fourth.

The end came after 45 seconds of fighting in the fourth round, and Miller's favorite weapon, a left hook to the jaw, brought about the finish. Grogan went down in a neutral corner and struggled vainly to rise. He was clawing the ropes as Referee Elmer McClelland neared the end of his count, but collapsed limply to the canvas as "ten" sounded.

Miller's victory was not easily earned, for he took a terrific beating in the second round.

VON PORAT BEATS LEVINSKY.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Thirty-eight year old Battling Levinsky of Philadelphia was technically knocked out by Otto Von Porat of Chicago in the fifth round of a ten round bout here tonight. The former light heavyweight champion was floored twice in the last round for counts of nine, and when the Battler went down for the third time Referee Ira Crosbaw awarded the Chicagoan the bout. Levinsky's portion of the purse was withheld by Crosbaw for "stalling."

Kallio Beats Parelli in Wrestling Match

Gus Kallio, recognized by the Illinois athletic commission as the middleweight champion of the world, defeated Joe Parelli, Italian, last night at the Ashland Boulevard Auditorium. Kallio threw Parelli once and was awarded the decision by Referee Charles Lavine at the end of two hours.

In the preliminaries, Yaqui Joe, Mexican Indian, threw Joe Silvio of Boston in 16:23; Lou Talaber and Hugh Nichols grappled for 30 minutes to a draw, and Karl Pojello threw Pat Corrigan in 17 minutes.

CUYLER A. C. TO SEND 11 SKATERS TO TRIB DERBIES

Mohawk Club Nominates 55 Racers.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

The Cuyler A. C. of Berwyn, an organization composed mostly of students and alumni of the Morton High school, will be represented by eleven skaters in THE TRIBUNE'S thirteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies at Garfield park on Jan. 26 and 27. The team entry was made by Edward Bedvava, captain of the team.

The club will be represented in two races, the men's senior and intermediate. Joseph Biciste and George Slifka will be relied upon for places in the men's senior race, and Edward Bedvava and John Goles in the intermediate. Capt. Bedvava reports that his team is practicing every day.

Nominates 36 Skaters.

Paul Staff, official surveyor of the Western Skating association and director of athletics at the Horan playground, has nominated thirty-three skaters for the six races. Paul, a brother of Art Staff, who won the first TRIBUNE Silver Skates Derbies and who is looked upon as one of the leading professionals in the country, claims his skaters will be hard to beat in a number of races, and he looks for some of his experts to score in their respective events.

The Mohawk A. C. will be represented by fifty-five skaters, according to the entry turned in by Coach James Ryan. All will race in the senior men's derby. The skaters are training every day at west side parks, and Capt. Ryan claims they are rounding into excellent condition.

Tune Up Today.

Fifteen skaters will represent the Lafayette A. C. The complete team entry was made by Lester Mandell, captain of the club's ice racing team. The Sparta A. C., an organization composed of attendants at Corpernicus playground, will have ten skaters in the various races. Lee R. Umbles, director of Corpernicus playground, is coaching the team.

All skaters entered in THE TRIBUNE Derbies will have excellent chances for workouts today and tomorrow, when the annual playground championships will be held at Lincoln park this afternoon and the Opal A. A. derby at Douglas park tomorrow afternoon.

PLAYGROUND ICE SKATING TITLES AT STAKE TODAY

Separate Meets for Boys and Girls.

Finals in the playground skating championships will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The boys will compete on the north pond of Lincoln park and the girls at the Lake Shore playground. Preliminaries in the various districts during the week reduced the field to the best skaters in Chicago's 64 playgrounds.

The races will be in charge of playground directors. More than 3,000 boys and girls took part in the preliminaries. Many of the winners of today's races will be contestants in THE TRIBUNE'S silver skates races at Garfield park Jan. 26 and 27.

More than 600 skaters, ranging from "teenie weenie" boys and girls scarcely able to pull on a skate to old timers who have been racing for years, will clash in the seventh annual west parks championships at Garfield park today at 2 p. m. Winners in the various events will accumulate points toward the winning of an official west park sweater, under a new award system of the west park commissioners.

LAYTON DEFEATS AUGIE IN CUE MATCH, 400-399

Augie Kieckhefer playing Johnny Layton, the world's three cushion billiard champion for a side bet of $500 lost to the latter by one point in their 400 point match in the final block last night at Kieckhefer's rooms. Augie entered the seventh block trailing nine points but soon made up the handicap to win 59 to 43 in 43 innings. Layton, put on the defensive, played a safety game, but Augie's shots counted and he went into the final block with a seven point advantage.

Kieckhefer jumped out in front with a high run of ten, the highest of the match. Layton gradually wiped out the lead and won, 57 to 49 in a 64 inning game. Layton turned in a run of six in the final block. The final score was Layton, 400; Kieckhefer, 399.

Ray Bergren defeated Kluetsch, 35 to 33, in a three cushion billiard tournament match played at Stevenson and Schalk establishment last night. Bergren is announced as the winner of the tournament which has been progressing since last October.

Chicago Colt Beaten Head by Orestes II.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Orestes II., a six year old bred in France and which made the long overland trip from Tia Juana to New Orleans a few days ago, won the feature race at the Fair Grounds here today. Racing in the silks of Miss M. Kelly over a muddy track, he was the winner of the Caronia purse.

At Tia Juana Orestes II. did not win, but the start today was his first effort at the Fair Grounds and the result was something of a bombshell for the form players who have been taking many severe jolts lately. The weather was rainy and the track sloppy and deep in mud, and Charmarten, from Vol Crane's Chicago stable, was made a hot favorite. He finished second.

Orestes II. paid $20.56 for a $2 ticket and had only a head advantage at the end. There were five starters, and Little Colonel, which made a hot race of it against Orestes II. most of the way, was third, a length and a half behind Charmarten, which closed with a fast but fruitless rush.

Chewink Added to List of Winter Bird Residents

BY BOB BECKER.

Bird fans in northern Illinois can add the chewink or towhee to their list of distinguished and good looking winter birds, because Thomas E. Clarke of Hinsdale reports that he is "boarding" a towhee these cold winter days. A few days ago we were able to put on the roll of winter residents the names of the robin, cardinal, junco, chicadee, nuthatch, downy woodpecker, and red headed woodpecker, so with the good looking chewink added, the list becomes even more interesting.

This Hinsdale chewink really ought to be playing anywhere from southeastern Nebraska and the Ohio and Potomac valleys southward to Florida and Texas. That range is the usual winter playground of the species. Mr. Clarke says the bird shows up every morning at daylight for his free meal. On Jan. 7 when the thermometer registered six below zero, the chewink was as pert as ever when he checked in at the food counter, and, according to Mr. Clarke, "it would have done your heart good to see him rout the sparrows and bluejays until he was through eating."

Guy Nash of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., says he has a male cardinal way up in his neck of the woods where temperatures have gone down to 22 below this winter. Commenting on the red bird's ability to stand the cold, Mr. Nash reports, "The cardinal did not seem to mind it in the least, making himself very much at home with the mixed seeds and cracked corn provided. Like most of the winter birds, it is especially fond of unroasted peanuts, which we prepare by putting them through a meat grinder shells and all."

You can have a lot of fun these days drawing the winter birds around your home by putting out feed for them. A handful of crumbs, a chunk of suet, or a cupful of grain will enable these cold weather vagabonds to withstand the low temperatures.

HALL AND HAUGEN BROTHERS CLASH ON CARY SLIDE

15 Year Old Duluth Star in Big Ski Meet.

In the general interest and enthusiasm attendant on the Norge club's 23d annual ski tourney tomorrow afternoon at Cary two interesting sidelights have been overlooked. Among the 75 competitors will be two pairs of brothers, rivals for years, and a 15 year old phenomenal rider from Duluth.

The pairs of brothers, one from the Hall family of Detroit, which boasts five boys of exceptional skill with the skis, and the other from the Haugen family of St. Paul, have competed in jumps all over the north and east. The Haugens, Lars and Anders, are the most famous brothers in the ski riding sport and have represented this country at the Olympic games. The Halls rank well among the country's best, and Sunday, at 1 o'clock, when Capt. Harry Lien of the Norge club sails off the slide in the initial leap that formally starts the meet, another chapter will be opened in the spirited rivalry of these four.

The Star from Duluth.

They are outstanding in a tourney generally regarded one of the greatest held in the country.

The sensational youth from Duluth is George Kotlarek, the idol of winter sport enthusiasts around his home city. He is of Bohemian parentage and has won every boys' meet in which he competed. On several occasions he outjumped the big stars of the country. Kotlarek will practice on the Cary slide before the tourney, and should find it much to his liking, as in many ways it is similar to the slide at Duluth.

Slide Lightning Fast.

A score of workmen have been on the job during the last week, under the direction of Capt. Lien, gathering and packing snow on the jump. The cold weather has frozen the snow into hard crystals, and the slide will be lightning fast. Carloads of snow have been brought from Wisconsin as a precaution against a sudden thaw.

Ample conveyances have been arranged to transport the crowd to and from the meet. Special trains will carry many Chicagoans. Others will go by bus and auto, and they will find the roads in good condition.

In other matches, Live Stock Press won two from Bleck's Acmes; the Mineralites took two from the Goldammer Green Rivers; the Oh Henrys averaged more than 1,000 in three games to win a triple victory from the Mickleberries, and the T. J. Crowes did likewise at the expense of the Froehling Heppe outfit. The Commodore Barry team was the third quintet of the evening to come through with a clean slate. They won three from Burlington Route five. The Patterson Pies also rolled over 1,000 in each of three games but lost the last when Birk Bros. knocked over 1,075 pins.

PROSPERITY IS REAL AS DOLLAR GROWS BIGGER

Purchasing Power Is on Upgrade.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Perfecting of mass production and distribution has kept commodity prices down and wages and salaries up. The purchasing power of the American dollar is greater than six months ago and still is increasing. These factors are the chief basis for the present very real prosperity of this country.

A survey recently completed and covering general merchandise prices shows a gradual decline in practically every household commodity except certain lines of perishable foodstuffs. General merchandise prices are now at the lowest level in years.

"The survey reveals that the situation is probably due to some extent to tremendous volume buying of some of the principal merchandising concerns," according to an analysis of Montgomery Ward & Co., the Chicago mail order house. "These national distributors supply many millions of families.

Catalogue Comparison.

"In making price comparisons over a period of time, the index most readily referred to is the mail order catalogue, as it lists so many different lines of merchandise and enables quick comparisons with the previous issue. From the latest sales books it is apparent that substantial reductions have been made in practically every line of merchandise listed.

"The housewife who is accustomed to take advantage of white goods sales in January will find that standard bleached sheeting has been reduced approximately 10 per cent. Textiles generally showed marked reductions. Furniture and household equipment, due to greater quantity production and favorable raw materials markets, shows reductions ranging from 8 to 15 per cent compared to prices six months ago. Automobile tires have been reduced from 7 to 16 per cent. Ready-to-wear clothing for men, women and children also shares in the price reductions. Here again is seen the influence of chain store and mail order volume buying and selling."

New Sales Record.

The department stores of the country hung up a new sales record last month, according to the federal reserve board. Aggregate sales were 1 per cent larger than a year ago, although last month had one less business day than December, 1927. Average daily sales for 1928 also increased 1 per cent over 1927.

The Chicago stores showed the largest gain over a year ago, with 6.3 per cent. The New York, San Francisco and Boston districts reported smaller gains, while the Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, and Dallas districts showed slight declines.

Sales of two mail order houses were 25 per cent larger, and those of eight five and ten cent chain stores seven per cent larger than in December, 1927. Changes in the volume of business of both mail order houses and chain stores reflect in part an increase from month to month in the number of retail outlets operated.

Reviews Optimistic.

The weekly reviews of trade and industry are in a generally optimistic vein. Dun's review says there is no reason to modify confident opinions as to the industrial outlook, although some lines are still feeling the seasonal lull. The summary makes special note of the favorable steel trade reports, claiming that it is one of the first manifestations of a forward commercial movement not yet apparent in other lines.

Bradstreet's journal reports a cheerful feeling and an upward trend for the first full week of the new year, despite irregular weather and inventory taking. It finds optimistic symptoms in the sharp upturn in operations and employment in the iron, steel, automobile and machine tool industries and an active buying movement in coal. Early January trade in Chicago continues better than normal, both at wholesale and retail. Industrial employment at Detroit, the automobile center, increased 10,154 persons in the week ended Jan. 9, and now stands at 272,755, compared with 214,301 persons a year ago.

COMBINE OF GOLD DUST CORP. WITH STANDARD IS NEAR

New York, Jan. 11.—Merger of the Gold Dust corporation and the Standard Milling company, one of the largest flour milling concerns in the world, became a possibility today. The Gold Dust corporation, at the request of large holders of Standard Milling stock, offered to exchange two shares of Gold Dust common stock for one share of Standard Milling common and one share of 6 per cent preferred.

The Standard Milling stockholders today voted to increase the authorized common stock from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000. Stockholders may subscribe to 62,468 new shares at $100 a share, in the ratio of one new share for each two shares held. The stock sold yesterday around 162, making the rights worth about $20.50.

The company now has 124,937 common shares outstanding, of which 20,000 are held by the Gold Dust corporation. The proceeds from the sale of new Standard Milling stock will be used to retire the company's first mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds and gold notes, bringing funded debt down to $2,275,000.

1928 SET A NEW HIGH MARK FOR CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The adverse balance of British imports over exports amounted to $1,750,000,000 in 1928, according to figures published by the board of trade today. Corresponding figures for 1926 and 1927 are two and one-fourth billions and slightly less than two billions respectively.

The heavy excess of imports over exports is chiefly explained by the "invisible exports," while the big increase in textile exports was due to the increase in artificial silk export, which jumped from twenty-eight millions in 1927 to thirty-nine millions in 1928. The increase in vehicular export is due to the increase in ships and boats. The export was twenty-two and one-half millions in 1927 and seventy-seven and one-half millions in 1928.

Decreasing coal, iron, steel and cotton exports show the most important industries are still declining in the last year. Coal exports decreased thirty-two millions, iron and steel twelve and one-half millions and cotton seventeen millions.

BETTER GRADE BONDS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—Better grade bond issues showed a slight improvement today as a result of somewhat easier conditions in the time money situation, but the market as a whole was a thin affair and the vast majority of price changes were in small fractions. A few favored issues ran up gains of 2 and 3 points in the early trading only to slip back later in the day when the call rate was advanced to 7 per cent.

Market observers believe that the peak of time money rates has been reached and that better conditions may be expected from now on.

Considerable new financing is being postponed because of the market conditions. Two issues of bonds today overbalanced the offerings of new stocks. One represented municipal borrowings and the other a loan on real estate. There has been no important mortgage issue by either railroads or public utilities for some time.

UNITED FRUIT CO. NET INCOME IS OVER 20 MILLION

New York, Jan. 11.—The United Fruit company shows a net income of $20,606,393.16 after provision for insurance, taxes, and depreciation, for the year ended on Dec. 31, 1928, according to the annual report of the board of directors, mailed to the company's 26,219 stockholders. It is equivalent to $8.24 a share earned on the 2,500,000 no par shares of stock and compares with $19,621,340 net income, equivalent to $7.84 a share for the year preceding.

Of the 1928 net income, $9,999,842 was declared in dividends and the balance, $10,606,551.16, was added to surplus account, according to the report, which points out that an extra dividend of $3,749,920.50 was paid from earnings of previous years on April 2, 1928.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—Announcement was made today of a merger in the airplane accessories industry by which the Consolidated Instrument Company of America, Ltd., acquires control of two smaller companies engaged in this field. They are the Julian L. Friez & Sons of Baltimore, Md., and the Moulded Insulation company of Mount Vernon, N. Y. The Consolidated Instrument Company of America, Ltd., is a sales and distributing agency, and will hereafter handle the entire output of the two acquired concerns.

Berlin Steel Trust Ends Year with 12 Million Profit

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The steel trust concluded its third business year with a net profit of 52,496,000 marks, approximately $12,600,000. Today's board meeting in Berlin will propose that a dividend of six per cent be declared at the annual general meeting on Feb. 27. While business during the first half of the year was satisfactory, there was a setback later caused by the general depression in the trade, particularly due to the lockout which caused considerable losses.

Annual Settlement Strain Reflected in Failures

New York, Jan. 11. — (AP) — The strains incidental to the annual settlements are reflected more plainly in this week's record of 635 mercantile failures, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. In the corresponding 1928 week there were 628 failures. The increases this week were in the east and on the Pacific coast.

Forecasts of Weather Are Business Boon

BY SCRUTATOR.

The weather is front page news every day. To hundreds of Chicago business organizations it is news with a financial bearing. Information furnished by the weather bureau, admittedly of greatest value to farming interests, influences directly the spending of possibly millions of dollars in the city.

In reply to a question regarding the nature of business making most use of the government forecasts, C. A. Donnel, junior meteorologist for the local district, including eleven states, said that fruit and vegetable merchants had so far found them most valuable.

"Three hundred merchants in the new market that replaced old South Water street think so much of our information that each pays to have it sent him daily by special delivery," he said. "Arrangements for icing or for keeping perishables warm are dependent on the forecasts."

Heating Plants.

Engineers of a number of heating plants, in particular those of the University of Chicago and the Field museum, base their requirements on the forecast from the bureau. The university engineer obtains both the morning and evening predictions.

"These men inform us that they make large savings of coal by cutting down steam when a sudden rise in temperature is forecast," Mr. Donnel added. "There are many others, doubtless, who use the reports as they appear in the newspapers, but I believe there is still a large field for economy among those who don't keep in such close touch.

"Transportation companies watch our information. There is a tremendous increase in electricity used on the surface and elevated lines when cars must be heated in zero temperatures. Forecasts permit them to have equipment ready for peak loads. The Commonwealth Edison company is greatly interested in whether a day will be clear or cloudy, which has an important bearing on electrical consumption.

In Mercantile Program.

"One department store several years ago requested a special forecast on Friday for Monday's weather, that they might base their merchandising program for that day on it. A special messenger calls to get the information as soon as it is ready. Other loop stores use the service to some extent.

"The health department makes extensive preparations to chlorinate the city's water supply whenever we predict steady winds from the southeast, as these carry to the cribs industrial wastes from the Calumet region."

The government has furnished estimates showing that one forecast of a West Indian hurricane kept ships with cargoes valued at more than thirty million dollars safely in American ports. Henry Williams, a competent meteorologist, has figures showing that in one cold wave alone the weather bureau information was worth $3,500,000. Another estimate of the saving of a citrus fruit crop in California during a short period was fourteen million dollars.

Fruit Growers.

In the Pacific cost fruit belt, according to Mr. Williams, four million orchard heaters are owned by growers and are operated on advice of the bureau. A mistake of as much as 5 degrees in a prediction might cause the loss of the crop or the unnecessary consumption of fuel in the heaters.

A little known activity of the bureau is its research into solar radiation, the source of all the world's energy. One of the great dreams of hopeful scientists is that this radiation may sometime be harnessed to do mankind's work without passing through the coal oil or water power stage.

Chicago Is Hub of Air Service, Dec. Figures Show

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—The air mail service carried 537,113 pounds of mail during December, 1928, an increase of nearly 400,000 pounds over the amount transported in December, 1927. The increase last month over November amounted to 112,648 pounds. The Chicago-San Francisco air mail route led in number of pounds carried for the month with 142,897 pounds, while the New York-Chicago line was second with 126,179.

THOMPSON BUYS HENRICI'S; MEAL FOR ALL PURSES

Borg-Warner Merges with Disc Co.

A meal for every purse. This is the ambition of the John R. Thompson company, which operates a chain of 124 restaurants in Chicago and 43 other cities. President John R. Thompson last night announced the acquisition of the Philip Henrici company, which operates one of Chicago's best known restaurants at 71 West Randolph street.

Furthermore, the deal is a forerunner of other high class restaurants planned for Chicago and other cities. It includes the taking over of the Henrici company's lease on a property in Wabash avenue just south of Adams street. A six or eight story building will be erected on this site next summer. It will contain a restaurant and also house a commissary and offices.

Still other restaurants are planned. Mr. Thompson recently announced plans to establish fountain lunch departments in some of the company's restaurants, such as many drug stores now maintain. Thus the company will have eating places of every type, although its one-arm chair cafeteria lunchrooms will still be in the majority.

Preserves Identity.

The identity of the Henrici company and restaurants will be preserved, although the John R. Thompson company will acquire its properties and leaseholds in exchange for 20,000 shares of Thompson stock, which yesterday had represented a market value of more than $1,200,000, and cash. Mr. Thompson will become chairman of the Philip Henrici company. William M. Collins, now president of the Henrici company, will become chairman of the executive company and a director in the John R. Thompson company. Lawrence L. O'Toole, manager of Henrici's, will become president of the Henrici company.

The Thompson company is erecting two new buildings for new restaurants and recently purchased a site at 23-29 West Randolph street for a 24 story building.

"It is the intention to expand Henrici's restaurants in the principal cities of the country just as rapidly as good business dictates," Mr. Collins said last night. "Locations already have been obtained in Evanston and St. Louis."

Another big merger of Chicago concerns in the automotive field was consummated last night. The proposed consolidation of the Borg-Warner corporation and the Galesburg Coulter Disc company was declared effective.

Deposit Stock.

It was announced that holders of 85 per cent of the stock of the Galesburg-Coulter company had deposited their stock in assent to the merger, which calls for the exchange of one share of Borg-Warner stock for each Galesburg-Coulter share. The Borg-Warner corporation now has 410,000 shares outstanding and will issue an additional 100,000 shares to the Galesburg-Coulter stockholders.

Thereafter, it is understood, the Borg-Warner corporation will offer an additional 51,000 shares at $100 a share to stockholders in the ratio of one new share for each ten shares held.

RUBBER MARKET PRICES RISE IN RECORD SESSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—In a record market on the Rubber exchange today, in which the turnover reached a total of 3,887 contracts for an approximate value of $4,500,000, prices advanced 120 to 140 points in ten active deliveries. The previous record turnover was 3,594 contracts, on April 4, 1928.

Buying orders poured into the market from all quarters, local operators and trade interests with connections in all parts of the world sharing in the large volume and before the end of the first hour sales aggregated 1,504 lots, a new record for the period.

New York Life Pays Death Losses of $55,216,010 in '28

New York Life Insurance company's new paid insurance in 1928 amounted to $909,000,000, covering 301,176 policies, it was announced yesterday. The total outstanding insurance in force of the company is now more than 6¾ billions. In death losses on the lives of 13,421 policy holders New York Life paid in 1928 $55,216,010.

Seligman Interests Form $50,000,000 Investment Corp.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—Following the recently adopted policy of investment firms in establishing affiliated companies to trade in securities, J. & W. Seligman & Co., one of the oldest international banking firms in the United States, announced today the formation of a new investment corporation with an initial paid in capital of $50,000,000. The new company will be called the Tri-Continental corporation.

The company will have a broad charter, giving directors extensive powers. It will specialize in investments in securities and participation in syndicates and underwritings, both domestic and foreign.

Future Expansion.

The capital set up, which is expected to include preferred and common stocks, will be arranged to provide for expansion as rapidly as the corporation's activities require.

Five partners of J. & W. Seligman & Co. will be on the board, which will consist of not less than eleven members.

The Seligman firm, founded in 1848, has been prominent as reorganization manager of many railroads, notably the St. Louis and San Francisco, the Pere Marquette, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and the International and Great Northern.

Sponsors Issues.

The company has floated hundreds of millions of dollars in corporate and foreign government securities, including the recent Peruvian national loan. It also sponsored the issue of common stock of the Victor Talking Machine company at $38 a share two years ago.

Lehman Bros., Dillon, Read & Co., and Goldman, Sachs & Co. are among the other investment houses which have organized companies of the investment trust type.

PUBLIC SERVICE CO. ANNOUNCES FINANCING FOR SUBSIDIARY CORP.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Financing for a subsidiary company of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois was announced yesterday with the purchase of an issue of $6,000,000 Public Service subsidiary corporation 5½ per cent debentures, series A, due Jan. 1, 1949, by Halsey, Stuart & Co. This is the second issue of this nature of a Chicago organization which has been offered, an issue of $20,000,000 Commonwealth subsidiary corporation, a subsidiary of Commonwealth Edison company, having been sold in August of last year.

The corporation (all of whose stock, except directors' qualifying shares, is owned by the Public Service company) was formed in December of 1926 to take over, hold, and manage securities and other assets then owned by the parent concern. Those securities and other assets had been acquired by Public Service company from time to time but did not strictly constitute a part of its business as a public utility operating company and it was, therefore, considered advisable to transfer such assets to a subsidiary company, whose sole purpose would be the retention and management of the assets.

The investments of the Public Service subsidiary corporation range from substantial holdings in the stock of other utility companies to companies whose consumption of electric energy will stimulate the business of the parent company. It is pointed out in a statement by the bankers that while these assets are not strictly a part of the electricity and gas supply business, they are, nevertheless, vital to its continued growth.

TWO CONCERNS VOTE DIVIDENDS, STOCK RIGHTS

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company directors today voted to offer stockholders of record Jan. 24 right to subscribe to additional common stock at $140 a share in ratio of one share for every ten shares held. With the stock selling around $193 today, the rights are worth approximately $5. New funds will be used for enlarging tractor plants and to increase working capital.

The Brazilian Traction company declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents on common, placing the stock on a $2 annual basis, against $1.76 previously. The company offers common stockholders additional common stock at $40 in the ratio of one share to every seven held. At the current price of $80, rights are worth about $5.

REPORT $100,000 SALARY FOR HEAD; 'NO BASIS,' REPLY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 11.—Walter W. Head, who was recently made president of the State Bank of Chicago, will get in excess of $100,000 a year as his salary, according to a story printed in the Omaha World Herald this evening.

Mr. Head was president of the Omaha National bank until his resignation Tuesday to accept the Chicago situation.

The paper goes on to say that Mr. Head refused positions of one hundred thousand annually three different times last year and that two such offers were made to Mr. Head in the same week.

Mr. Head later denied that any intimation had been given by himself or any one "in a position to know" that his salary would be over $100,000 a year. "Any one should know that nothing concerning my salary has ever or will ever be given out by me and I am the only one who is in a position to give such information," he said.

MINISTER BUYS SEAT ON WALL ST. STOCK EXCHANGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—Chester Apy, who had found time to educate himself for the ministry in the eight years he has been in Wall street, was today admitted to membership on the New York stock exchange. He was formerly a telephone clerk for Jacquelin & De Coppet.

Mr. Apy, who is 24 years old, declined to discuss his church connections. He said that he was not the minister of any church. It is understood he has been active in church work for many years and is a licensed minister. So far as is known he will be the first minister to become a member of the New York stock exchange.

Mr. Apy paid $560,000 for his seat on the stock exchange, buying it from John T. Winkhaus.

Schwab's "Pipe Dream" of 20 Years Ago Is Realized

New York, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Charles M. Schwab's "pipe dream" of 50,000,000 tons annual steel production has been realized. Last year, production was 50,250,000 tons. When Schwab made his forecast 20 years ago nearly every one said he was dreaming. In 1908 steel ingot production fell as low as 13,177,000 tons and jumped to 28,298,000 tons in the following year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—Todays' operations on the stock exchange were marked by considerable confusion. The market started off in a somewhat buoyant mood but ran into a rather heavy selling wave, brought on by a series of bear attacks on recent favorites and fostered by profit taking and gave way all along the line.

Then, along toward the middle of the afternoon, the call rate was advanced to 7 per cent from the renewal figure of 6 per cent as banks began withdrawing funds from the collateral loan market for week-end adjustment purposes, and the realizing movement gained fresh impetus.

Early Support.

Strong support appeared for a wide range of issues early in the attack, however, and was sustained to the finish. The result was a highly irregular finish with the extreme changes in the more active issues ranging from a loss of some 6 points in Byers company to a gain of 9⅛ in Commonwealth Power. Changes of from 2 to 5 points were numerous on both sides of the column. The gains had a shade the better of it in the finals.

The news of the day was as badly mixed as price movements. The small drop in the loan totals following last week's tremendous jump had a depressing effect, as did the further "ear-marking" of gold reported by the reserve bank, which incidentally was largely offset to an extent by hitherto unannounced receipts of the metal from Canada. On the other hand, the weekly reserve condition statements provided no little stimulus to bullish sentiment and there was a worth while group of trade news items to help out.

GRAIN MARKETS LOSE SOME OF BUYING ENERGY

Selling Holds Prices Steady to Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets yesterday failed to show the buying pep which characterized the previous two days, but at the same time developed stubborn resistance to profit taking sales.

Buying of corn was of a good class, with increased interest on the part of the general public, and an early loss of 1c was recovered with the close unchanged at ¼c lower than on Thursday. March was 92¾@92¾c and May 95⅝@95⅝c, the latter being within ¼c of the best figure of the season.

Technical position in the wheat market was weakened by the bulge of 5¾c from the recent low point, and with Liverpool and Buenos Ayres lower there was increased selling pressure and a decline of 1¼c@1½c from the finish of Thursday with the close on a moderate rally at net losses of ⅝@1¼c with March, $1.17¼, and May $1.20⅝@1.20¼. Oats were unchanged to ¼c lower, with March finishing at 49⅝c and May at 49¾c, while rye was off ½@⅝c for the day with March $1.04⅛, and May $1.07.

Export Corn Bids Lower.

Houses that have been active on the buying side of corn of late gave support to the market on the break and there was persistent buying in more small lots by houses with country connections. Export bids for corn were less in evidence, with a decline of ⅛@1c as compared with May at the gulf, and no sales were claimed at the seaboard. Country offerings to arrive were fair with purchases of 75,000 bu to come here, and more was offered ⅛@1c above buyers views. Outside markets outbid Chicago 1@1¼c downstate.

Dry weather continues in the Argentine corn belt, and cables late in the day said it was clear in all sections, but Buenos Ayres May closed ¼c lower at 84⅝c, and Rosario was 1c lower at 83¼c. Liverpool cabled that the advance in American corn in the last few days had put it to a premium over new Argentine. Since November 1 American exports have been about 10,000,000 bu, and Broomhall estimates that Europe will require about 20,000,000 bu more before the new Argentine grain is available.

Short Covering in Wheat.

There has apparently been heavy short covering in wheat in the last few days, as the open interest in the May delivery at the close on Thursday was only 110,031,000 bu, a reduction of over 12,000,000 bu within a week. Foreign markets were weaker with Argentine breaking badly after Chicago closed. Buenos Aires being off 2⅝@2¾c at the last with May, $1.13⅜ while Rosario was 1⅝@1¾c lower. Winnipeg lost ⅞c for the day, and Liverpool was off ½@⅝d.

Expectations are for liberal worlds wheat shipments this week. Argentina cleared 4,964,000 bu and Australia 4,960,000 bu, the latter including 2,960,000 bu to non-European countries. North American exports for the week were 9,957,000 bu, against 8,893,000 bu last year. A private Spanish crop estimate suggested that the crop of 1928 in that country was about 40,000,000 bu below consumptive requirements, and another report said China had contracted for close to 10,000,000 bu for shipment from late December up to and including May, the bulk of which will go from Canada.

Fear Winter Wheat Damage.

Export demand at the seaboard was decidedly slow. Apprehension of damage to the new winter wheat crop is increasing as the result of cold weather following the thaw and B. W. Snow was out with a summary of conditions indicating that the situation east of the Missouri river was uncertain. Farm relief was not a market influence during the day.

Oats and rye were dull, and the markets influenced largely by the action of other grains. Cash houses bought oats, while there was selling of rye against purchases of wheat.

CURB MARKET PRICES HIGHER FOR MOST PART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—Prices were generally higher among active issues on the curb exchange today, but the widespread steadiness of yesterday's session was lacking. Public utilities, airplane stocks, and specialties attracted plenty of buying at various times, but many failed to hold their gains. Profit taking apparently based upon a rise in call money rates to 7 per cent was responsible for selling during the last hour. The turnover amounted to 1,442,600 shares.

Announcement of initial steps in the formation of a huge eastern power system failed to produce any great stir among utility stocks at the opening, but later the group assumed the lead. United Gas Improvement and Mohawk Power, two of the issues named in the contemplated merger, moved into higher ground during the early hours, but sold off rapidly late in the day and closed with a net loss of 3¼ and 4¾ points, respectively.

Trading was heavy in both stocks. Other utilities made substantial advances. Electric Bond and Share, up nearly 8 points at one time, closed with a gain of 4¼ points, and Electric Investors was up 4.

Airplane issues were among the speculative favorites still considered attractive. Sales in Universal Corporation in the first half alone totaled 1,000 shares, making one of the most active two hour trading periods since the stock was listed. Estimates of substantially increased earnings through the recent acquisition of a strategically located airline company was one of the considerations making for higher prices. Aviation Corporation of America and North American Aviation both went into new high ground, while E. W. Bliss gained 5⅝ points and Niles-Bement-Pond 1⅞.

SELLING WAVE SWEEPS OVER STOCK MARKET

N. Y. Stock Advance Is Stopped.

By holding concern with a capital stock in excess of two billion dollars, by Morgan & Bonbright interests served as a tonic for the utility division of the market.

The big feature of the day, however, was the heavy buying of steel shares. United States Steel common set the pace in this field, going ahead some 4½ points to a new high of 168⅝, but Bethlehem was in brisk demand and improved in price more than two points. A rise in steel always tends to establish confidence in the stock market and bullish forces seem to be making the most of the present situation—provided by favorable earnings reports and stimulated no little by predictions of a dividend at the next directors' meeting, to be held on Jan. 29.

A Bright Spot.

Another scintillating spot of an otherwise drab market was provided by the rubbers group. Demand for these shares was heavy and persistent, and as a result United States Rubber showed a gain of 4½ points at the end of the day. Buying of the stock was based on improvement in the company's outlook as a result of the Du Pont influence in the management, according to market observers.

The motor shares were subjected to further selling induced by large production schedules which were taken to indicate strenuous competition in the spring selling. Pressure was concentrated on Chrysler, which lost 1⅝ points; General Motors, off 2¼ at the finish, and Packard, down more than a point. Studebaker also eased off a little more than a point in the late trading after holding to its newly gained high levels throughout the better part of the session.

Marked advances occurred, however, in the motor accessory issues group, Stromberg and Stewart-Warner both shooting ahead, the first named issue for 1⅝ and the other for 5 points.

The tobacco shares continued in favor, American Tobacco adding another 2 points to its gain of yesterday and American Sumatra advancing 2⅞. Congress Cigar fell back from its peak of yesterday. Total turnover was 2,130,000 shares.

WORKERS' CLUB CLAIMS RECORD IN HOME FINANCING

A world record in home financing is being claimed for the Hawthorne Club Savings, Building, and Loan association at the Western Electric company's works in Cicero.

According to Louis E. Mulac, secretary of the association, which is composed entirely of telephone makers, the association in the last eight years has transacted more than $8,500,000 worth of business, including $4,900,000 loaned to Western Electric company workers for the purpose of building homes.

Supplementing the loans made on homes, the association has assisted its members by stock loans to the extent of about $1,000,000.

There are 3,300 members of the association paying for 67,000 shares, having a paid up value of $6,700,000.

MONEY RATE IS OVERLOOKED AS PRICES RISE HERE

Active Issues Make Small Gains.

BY GEORGE HAMMOND.

Active issues finished the day higher in Chicago stock trading yesterday despite the pushing up of the call money rate from 6 to 7 per cent.

Traders waxed enthusiastic in the early dealings over the decline in the brokers' loans figures. Later, when it was announced that the directors of the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago made no change in the rediscount rate when the advance of one per cent was marked up in the afternoon.

Best Gain.

Sonatron Tube established the biggest net gain of the day with a 4 point advance, reflecting, no doubt, the statement of President Nathan Chirelstein to stockholders that 1928 earnings will show an increase of 700 per cent over the preceding year. Utah Radio had a gain of 5⅜ at one time but lost part of the advance on profit taking, finishing the day 3⅜ higher.

Plans for the expansion of the company's plant and business brought a gain of 3⅛ in Oil-O-Matic. The understanding that steel company earnings for the year just closed will show a good increase in the forthcoming annual statements were probably responsible for a 3 point jump in A. M. Castle and a climb of 2 points in Keystone Steel and Wire. Inland Wire and Cable was up 1½. Process corporation moved 2½ higher.

Auburn Advances.

The automotive list was mostly higher. Auburn Automobile advanced a fraction on light trading. The company announced that unfilled orders on hand as of Jan. 1 totaled 5,208 cars. This compares with unfilled orders for 204 cars on Dec. 1 and 21,493 a year ago.

Muskegon Motor Specialties finished 2¼ higher on reports of increased business. The company is a newcomer on the exchange and was organized to take over a predecessor corporation and the Gordon Manufacturing, the only concerns in the United States specializing exclusively in the manufacture of camshafts for automobiles.

The Muskegon Motor Specialties company and the Gordon Manufacturing company were organized in 1909 and 1916, respectively, with a total capitalization of $75,000.

Net Earnings.

Original floor space totaled 14,000 square feet. The combined worth is now figured at $1,273,624, and the plants occupy floor space of about 76,000 square feet. Originally there were 25 men employed. Now there are more than 300 skilled mechanics on the pay roll. Net earnings equivalent to $4.45 a share on the outstanding "A" stock were reported for the first nine months of 1928, compared with $4.17 a share for all of 1927.

Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry led the few active soft spots with a 2 point decline. Art Metal Works common eased a point and the preferred sold down 2 points.

Parker Pen advanced a minor fraction. Reports were current that the formal earnings statement of 1928 will show an excess over the preliminary official estimates which placed net at $3.27 a share on the 200,000 shares of $10 par common stock. Net for 1927 totaled $3.74 a share on the same basis.

Kelvinator.

W. N. H.—Smaller sales by Kelvinator corporation (formerly Electric Refrigeration corporation) in the year ended Sept. 30, 1928, than in the year before are more than offset by lower expenses, so that the income account shows final loss reduced to less than $1,000,000 from nearly $2,500,000.

As a result of charges against surplus, the balance sheet surplus of over $4,500,000 is changed to a deficit of over $500,000 during the fiscal year.

Net sales for the year were $18,120,602, as compared with $20,122,865 for the year before.

After all charges there was a net loss of $999,821 for the latest fiscal year, against net loss of $2,467,248 for the preceding fiscal year.

The charges against surplus brought about a balance sheet deficit of $570,012 as of Sept. 30, 1928, as compared with surplus of $4,581,860 on that date in 1927.

This left net working capital of $3,964,869, which compares with $5,494,020 on Sept. 30, 1927.

President Woodbridge told the stockholders that many of the losses of the past year were a direct result of necessary changes in the product from that of the past, and "of the development of new designs following new knowledge and experience in an industry where all interested are continually applying results of research."

No dividends have been paid on the stock since Feb. 21, 1927.

The stock is a speculation.

Shipping demand for hogs yesterday was even broader than expected and all of the recent loss was replaced. Prices advanced 10@20c, equaling the highest in seven weeks, and show gains of mostly 20@25c since last week's close.

Extreme top advanced to $9.25, with general average 15c higher at $9.05, against a top of $8.90 and average of 8.75 the previous Friday. Arrivals at 46,000 exceeded expectations, including 17,300 directs to packers. The clearance was early and only 3,000 were left at the close.

Despite the fact that buyers handled the largest supply of cattle in nearly a month during the week, yesterday's supply of 3,000 cleared quickly at little price changes. Light weights and yearlings are closing strong with a week ago, while medium and heavy show losses of 25@50c. Quality was unusually good for Friday, one load averaging 1,321 lbs bringing $14.80, with bulk at $11.40@13.50, against $11.00@12.75 a week ago. Cows and heifers were fairly active at the week's 25c decline. Calves show $1.00 gain for the week.

Lambs Decline Again.

Larger receipts forced lambs down 25c further yesterday, the top at $16.50 being 50c under the high morning sales Thursday. Bulk of better grades brought $16.00@16.25, or mostly 75c to $1.00 under the week's high point. Aged and yearling sheep were scarce and little changed, some 97 lb yearling wethers bringing $14.00. Lambs are closing steady with a week ago. Yearlings show 25c advance for the week, with aged sheep up 50@75c.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 15,000 hogs and 7,000 sheep, against 239 cattle, 31,813 hogs and 1,012 sheep the previous Saturday and 56 cattle, 4,803 hogs and 3,358 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 49,000 to 65,000. G. M. Chandler marked 49,000, R. B. Ellis 50,000, J. M. Waters, W. T. Reneker and J. T. Brown 55,000, A. G. Welhener and H. Turner 58,000, F. M. Sherwood 60,000, H. C. Carlson, S. Lund, C. Southwick, William Ansel and C. H. Bensaker 60,000, W. C. White 61,000 and R. Greensley 65,000.

MILLS TAKE COTTON

Purchases of cotton by the world's mills in American markets the last week were 429,000 bales, against 341,000 bales last year and 304,000 bales two years ago. Textile trade is said to have expanded and it has created a more friendly feeling on breaks. There was buying attributed to Wall street and western trading interests who have taken hold of the market on the belief that it has been heavily oversold. Prices were advanced moderately with fluctuations in futures covering a range of 20 points.

There was selling at times for profits and offerings were fairly absorbed and the close was at gains of 1 to 4 points in outside markets, while at Chicago net advances were 1 to 8 points. Liverpool closed 6 to 7 points net higher, with spot sales 7,000 bales. Much colder weather is predicted for the belt.

Spots advanced 5 points, with New York 20.25c; Houston, 19.25c; New Orleans, 19.20c; Galveston, 19.05c. Prices follow:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A slight increase in inquiry for gray cotton goods was reported with prices a shade firmer. Finished goods were in moderate demand. Raw silk markets became more active and Yokohama's advanced for early shipment, with moderate trade. Silk fabrics are selling in printed crepe in good call. It is hoped to announce opening dates for all light worsteds and woolens on Monday. Worsted dress fabrics of a semi-staple character are in better demand. Burlaps were firmer.

SEVERAL

desirous of earning extra money doing part time work Friday and Saturday.

A large Chicago newspaper seeks the services of several young women, either married or single, between the ages of 22 and 26, for work of a clean and dignified character in its classified advertising department.

You need not have any previous experience in advertising work to qualify, but you should possess more than average determination and the ability to convince those with whom you would have contact of the value of consecutive advertising. In other words, you must be able to speak convincingly and persuade advertisers to accept your suggestions.

Do not hesitate to reply to this advertisement if you have not had sales experience, as we give employees entering this work a thorough training in the mechanics of advertising and the fundamentals of salesmanship.

The work is not easy, but will prove very interesting for one possessing the above qualifications. The earning possibilities, considering the amount of time put in, from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Friday, and from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. Saturday, are far above the average amount paid for part time work by other organizations. The environment and associations are of the best.

In reply give your age, education, business experience if any, whether married or single, and your phone number.
